Defence Objects To Count Change

SOURIS — Three charges against Peter Daniel MacIntyre were heard yesterday here in Kings County magistrate's court before Magistrate James B. Johnston. J. Arthur MacGulgan represented the Crown.

swearing and obscene language. The change in charge brought comment from defence counsel Melvin J. McQuid who felt it was unfair for the Crown to change the charge without notifying the defence who had come prepared for the original charge. He also felt that the Crown should pay the expenses for the defence witnesses who had been scheduled to testify regarding the original charge. Magistrate Johnston said that if defence could find suitable precedent, the Crown would not be witnesses. The defence could offer no precedent at the moment.
