Potato Picker Shortage Termed Acute At S'side

SUMMERSIDE — An acute shortage of potato pickers is faced by Prince County, according to Blanche Hogg, employment branch supervisor at the National Employment Office.

Miss Hogg said Friday one farmer, who came in seeking help, felt this was one of the worst years to obtain pickers.

The local office has placed 469 pickers on farms this fall, well under last year's total, and although almost all empoyment branches have been contacted, there are no more pickers available.

Miss Hogg said "we have clearance orders out everywhere for pickers and we've even gone to Dartmouth and Halifax this year, something we've never done before.

MORE COMBINES

More farmers are combining this year than ever before, Miss Hogg said, but as a result of there not being enough combines, the harvest is being held up. Also the pickers don't appear to be picking as fast as in other years.

The harvest is also late and one farmer stated that he still hasn't harvested. It's reported that a number of farms in the French River area also haven't been touched yet.

Asked how the situation compared with other years, Miss Hogg said that two years ago there was still some picking going on at the end of October and on into November.

The local branch has obtained less from New Brunswick and Cape Breton this year than other years and Miss Hogg commented that this appeared to be due to the fact that there seems to be some big construction project underway in every area where the province had obtained pickers in other seasons, thus employing men who in other years had been likely prospects for the potato picking season.

From statistics the economy appears to be healthy throughout the Maritimes, Miss Hogg said, and in the local branch at the end of September there were 16 per cent fewer unemployed than at the same time last year.

Miss Hogg also noted that there was an extreme shortage of warehousemen and good, unskilled construction laborers this year. One local shipper has been advertising for warehousemen for a number of days but meeting with little success.

Mr. Gillis lived with his mother, Mrs. Samuel Gillis.

Funeral services will be held Sunday from Peters Road Presbyterian Church at 1 p.m., with interment in Peters Road cemetery.

Dr. G.S.A. Inman of Montague, Kings County coroner, ordered an autopsy and an inquest will be held. Date for the inquest has not yet been fixed.

Jury members are: Kenneth MacPhee, Malcolm MacPhee, Orville MacDonald, Frank Greene, Douglas Collings, Arthur Brown, and Gilbert Clements, foreman, all of Montague.

Grade 8 Class Holds Own UF Campaign

The Prince Edward Island United Fund Appeal officially ends Tuesday.

This week two examples of special effort to aid the appeal, were recorded.

Friday, a group of grade eight students at Birchwood Junior High School organized their own appeal among classmates, and succeeded in reaching their objective, it was reported.

The grade eight students concluded the appeal, complete with a "thermometer," as used to indicate the success of United Fund appeal at large.

Principal of Birchwood Junior High School, is Leo F. MacDonald, chairman of the Charlottetown United Fund Campaign.

spirit of centennial year, displayed objects of his oric interest on their lawns other sites of historic or tourist interest were beautified and marked by attractive signs. Every gateway in the district had a sign naming the homeowner and large welcome signs were placed at all five entrances to the community itself.

Two picnic sites were established and equipped with tables, trash bins and barbeques, and a site for a community dump was procured. All ditches in the community were cleaned of rubbish and all posts along the highway whitewashed.

The judges pointed out that many of the 39 communities carried out programs of improvements and beautification similar to those in Cape Wolfe but the results could not match the "startling and spectacular Metamorphosis" which occurred to Cape Wolfe.

"It was an excellent and inspiring example of public spirit and cooperation among people living together in a community," the judges concluded.

YORK WINS BONUS

The community of York, which won the $500 bonus for its roadside entrance, has many beautiful homes with frontages which lend themselves ideally for beautification. The people of York took full advantage of this asset and by mowing the grass in the ditches in front of their homes and along their driveways, planting flowers, trees and shrubbery, beautifying their mailboxes and erecting flag poles, etc., created what one American tourist described as "the most beautiful stretch of rural road in North America."

The Centennial Competition, made possible by a grant of $3,000 from the P.E.I. Centennial Committee to the Beautification Society, created, in the words of society members, "miraculous improvements" in many Island districts and stimulated renewed interest in rural beautification, all over the province.

As an example of this they pointed out that in one district alone 26 dilapidated and unsightly buildings were demolished or otherwise removed, in another, 35 people of all ages turned out one day and conducted a community 'clean-up blitz' by removing unsightly debris from the ditches and roadsides. When the task was finished they all gathered for coffee and doughnuts at the community hall and their general feeling was, "Whether we get a prize or not is not important. We have had a lot of fun and we are proud of our district."
