By telephoning the Dutch settlers in this Province and expressed the hope that as many of them as possible would attend the meeting in the Legion Hall on Friday night.

The Netherlands' official remarked that almost half of the thousands of Dutch people who had left their country since the war had come to Canada. He corrected an impression that is prevalent in some parts of Canada, that his countrymen who come to this country are displaced persons.

He has been struck by the fact that everywhere throughout his country wide tour of Canada, which took him as far west as the Pacific Coast, no matter how remote the area, he has met Dutch people all these years with Canada.

Accompanying the visitor will be two members of the Dutch Embassy in Ottawa, Dr. A. S. Tuinman, and J. H. Athmer, and also Mr. V. F. Chisholm Settlement Officer for the Canadian Department of Citizenship and Immigration Halifax.

STRESSES NEED OF MAINTAINING HIGHEST TEACHING QUALIFICATIONS

"We need a clear vision of professional excellence. We need to recognize professional merit. We need to recognize and purge our ranks of professional mediocrity. If we turn our hand vigorously to these urgent tasks we will earn the lasting gratitude of our own generation and of the next," said Professor David Munroe director, School of teachers at MacDonal College, P. Q., in addressing the members of the Prince Edward Island Teachers' Federation at Prince of Wales College last night.

Chairman Earl Jelley, president of the P. E. I. T. F. presided. Mr. Raoul Raymond accompanied by Mrs. Raymond at the piano rendered three delightful baritone solos which were most appreciated. The speaker for the evening was introduced by Dr. L. W. Shaw, Deputy Minister and Director of Education for the Province. Dr. Shaw is reviewing Mr. Munroe's career pointed out that he was a graduate of McGill University and held a Master's degree in History and Political Science. "His long record in the field of education and the teaching profession," said Dr. Shaw "well qualifies him to speak to you tonight."

Mr. Munroe said that "many precious ties bind me to Prince Edward Island, not the least of which is the friendship I have formed through the years with many of your members who have made a contribution to the educational and professional life of the Dominion out of all proportion to their numbers."

Taking for his subject "Teachers for our times," Mr. Munroe remarked that it was difficult to find a phrase which would properly define a teacher. In tracing the history of teachers over the past two centuries he pointed out that the members of the professional excellence. We need to recognize professional merit. We need to recognize and purge our ranks of professional mediocrity. "His long record in the field of education and the teaching profession," said Dr. Shaw "well qualifies him to speak to you tonight."

Mr. Munroe went on to show that as education became available to larger number of pupils it was found that the professions of medicine, engineering, law, etc. became more and more attractive and many found that the teaching profession was a convenient stepping stone to something else in a more lucrative field. "The cynic again complained that the teacher preferred the cloistered life, surrounded by admiring pupils to the rough hurly-burly of the world at large," said he.

As a result of the crowding of the schools and the increasing number of teachers who were tempted into other occupations, the standards became relaxed and schools were staffed by young women with little experience and inferior qualifications or by young men on their way to some other career. Edward Thring of England said at that time, "We must depend on systems, because we can't depend on having the man."

Influence Unlimited

"No limit can be set to the power of a teacher," said Mr. Munroe "But in the other direction, no other career can so nearly approach zero in its effects." He pointed out that it is the problem of educators to determine what makes good teachers; "our challenge is to banish from our ranks those whose influences are zero."

The first requirement for a good teacher, he added, is "competence." A teacher should be able to think and plan for himself rather than depend on teaching manuals and aids. He must be master of his subject and competent to judge the needs of the child. "We must rise above the level of incompetence and be able to organize the subject material in a clear

MINISTER OF EDUCATION REVIEWS LEGISLATION AFFECTING TEACHERS

A comprehensive review of the various measures affecting education, passed at the last session of the Provincial Legislature, was given by the Hon. Keir Clark, Minister of Education, in addressing the opening session of the P. E. I. Teachers Federation convention yesterday. Following is the text of Mr. Clark's address:

"I am grateful and appreciative of your invitation to me to address you this morning. I am conscious, however, of my recent connection with the Department of Education, and realize that I have still much to learn about our educational problems. In conversation with the Provincial Ministers of Education present last fall during the Canadian Education Association Convention at Halifax I learned that among this group I was the only one who had not been a school teacher. I must, therefore, perform my duties in the capacity of a layman associated with the men and women of the teaching profession.

"In considering what I might say to you this morning I thought perhaps you might permit me to talk shop' and review to some extent the legislation pertaining to education which was enacted during the recent session. Perhaps many of you may have followed most of this in the press, but I trust that some review may now be in order. I would like to tell you something more than has already appeared in the Legislature or in the press by explaining to you why certain changes pertaining to our school law were made and the effect of those changes so far as I can now see.

"In all I presented to the Legislature six bills in connection with Education. Four of these were amendments while two were new. The amendments were made to the School Act, the Education Department Act, the Teachers' Superannuation Act and the Teacher's Pension Act. The new acts consisted of an Act to provide for the Rehabilitation of Disabled Persons and the Prince of Wales College Act. Besides this legislation there was also some notice taken of a report presented to the House from the Committee on Education. Regardless of the difference of opinions which may have arisen as a result of these discussions, my own deliberations think it is a good thing for our Legislators and the public to become conscious of our educational problems which must be solved if Education is to progress and go forward in our Province.

School Act Amendments

"May I first discuss the Amendments to the School Act. The first amendment was a section added giving the Minister of Education power to suspend or cancel the license of a teacher guilty of persistent neglect of duty, incompetency, drunkenness or immoral conduct. This, as you may observe, has never been in our Act in any form because it would be very difficult to cover, or required. With the general high standard prevailing among your profession in this Province I trust it will never have to be used. Yet there are always exceptions to the general rule and this is a certain safeguard to the profession and a guarantee of the quality of a teacher's license. There is also the protection to the teacher of an appeal to the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council. This section is not new to School Acts and ours was copied largely from the Ontario Act.

"The second group of amendments provided for the general overall salary increase of $50.00 together with an added increment of $50.00 for certain experienced licensed teachers. This is the third general increase since 1948.

standards became relaxed and schools were staffed by young women with little experience and inferior qualifications or by young men on their way to some other career. Edward Thring of England said at that time, "We must depend on systems, because we can't depend on having the man."

Influence Unlimited

"No limit can be set to the power of a teacher," said Mr. Munroe "But in the other direction, no other career can so nearly approach zero in its effects." He pointed out that it is the problem of educators to determine what makes good teachers; "our challenge is to banish from our ranks those whose influences are zero."

The first requirement for a good teacher, he added, is "competence." A teacher should be able to think and plan for himself rather than depend on teaching manuals and aids. He must be master of his subject and competent to judge the needs of the child. "We must rise above the level of incompetence and be able to organize the subject material in a clear and stimulating manner" said the speaker.

"The second requirement for a good teacher is "Conviction." Mr. Munroe felt that teaching should be to the teacher "a way of life." He stated that "no man was ever successful in the teaching profession who has not felt the pain of sacrifice, the strain of labor and the burning desire of conviction."

Hon. Keir Clark Minister of Education

The service requirements for increments will now be at regular three year intervals up to and including the fifteenth year.

"The increases become effective with the next school year and actually require an additional $58,000 making a total estimated cost to the Province of teachers' salaries and supplements of $338,000. In addition to this amount it you add the salaries of our school supervisors, administrative officials and teachers at Prince of Wales College and the Vocational School, we will in the current fiscal year for the first time in the history of the Province exceed the million dollar salary figure from the Provincial Treasury since 1948. To be exact $1,050,270. This is higher than the entire Provincial budget in 1927 at which time the total of teachers' salaries and supplements was $244,000.

Dual Salary Source

"There is also an additional point that I should mention and that concerns the dual source of teachers' salaries from both local and provincial funds. Our Government ranked second highest in Canada in the percentage paid at the Provincial level. The only exception is Newfoundland where the per capita expenditure on education is low. Actually, therefore, our Government effort here in the field of education appears in this respect to be the greatest among the Provinces of Canada. I trust that the Government effort may continue to be somewhat matched at the local level in order that our schools may progress and prosper. I believe that the people of this Province are becoming more conscious of the need of education and the value of an adequate school service to the community and that they will continue to put forth a greater effort to provide the best school facilities, and make improvements as far as possible.

"A further group of amendments provided increased salaries under certain conditions to Grade XI and XII teachers. The conditions are that the schools must conform to the regulations of our Department which provide for accreditation of non-resident pupils, limited fees, a reasonable number of students per teacher, and among other things, degree status for the teachers of these grades.

Other Amendments

"There have been several minor amendments concerning the method of electing trustees, poll tax on non-property holders, publication of delinquent tax payers and
