

Political Leaders Wind Campaign In Nova Scotia

By DAL WARRINGTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HALIFAX (CP)—Nova Scotia's political leaders wound up their election campaigns during the weekend. Next to speak are the voters, who elect a 43-man legislature Tuesday.

Premier Henry D. Hicks running the first time as government leader ended his campaign tour in Bridgetown, his Annapolis Valley hometown. Progressive Conservative leader Robert L. Stanfield finished in Truro, where he was born.

Nova Scotia's economic state—good or bad—is the most talked-about issue. Both leaders dwell on it in windup speeches to cheering supporters.

"SPIRIT OF PROGRESS"
"There is a new spirit of economic progress in Nova Scotia," said the premier, a spirit fostered by good government.

"This just isn't so," said Mr. Stanfield.

"Our province is enjoying an economic expansion greater than in the past," said Mr. Hicks.

"Nova Scotia is walking backward into the future," said Mr. Stanfield.

The Conservative leader said Nova Scotia's economy is falling farther and farther behind the rest of Canada. The province had even lost Maritime leadership to New Brunswick, which has a Conservative government.

Mr. Hicks said 25 per cent more Nova Scotians work in manufacturing now than in 1950, a greater increase than the Canadian average. And per capita income in Nova Scotia was 14 per cent higher than in New Brunswick.

The 41-year-old Liberal leader, Canada's youngest premier, said the value of farm production is up more than 12 per cent; the fish catch is the highest ever; coal production is the highest in five years; forest output is at record levels.

NOT GETTING SHARE
Mr. Stanfield, who is just a year older than the premier, said the government's own economic advisers say Nova Scotia isn't getting its share of the Canadian economic boom. In fact, the province was relatively worse off because of rapid growth elsewhere.

The Conservative chief renewed his pledge to sponsor a $10,000,000 industrial development corporation, financed by private and municipal capital, which the government would match 50-50.

He promised stronger emphasis on Maritime rights. While other provinces got a trans-Canada pipeline and the St. Lawrence Seaway all the Maritimes received was a boost in freight rates.

Premier Hicks promised a $100,000,000 highway program and $30,000,000 for power development in the next four years.

Liberals and Conservatives are entered for all 43 legislative seats. The C.F. led by 47-year-old Michael McDonald, have 11 candidates, most of them in industrial ridings. This is five fewer than they ran in the 1953 election. Mr. McDonald has called for special boards to push industrial development. He also wants the government to take over private power companies. A close election could give him a bargaining position.

Party standing after the 1953 vote was: Liberals 23, Progressive Conservative 12, CCF two. Since then three Liberal seats became vacant. The Conservatives won one Liberal seat in a by-election and redistribution added six seats.

Visits Province After 40 Years

After an absence of forty years, Mr. Henry H. Costain, a former resident of Miminigash has just concluded a visit of ten days to the island where he visited friends and relatives in Summerside and West Prince.

Mr. Costain went to Western Canada in 1910 after graduating from Prince of Wales College and taught school in Alberta for twenty years. In 1930 he opened a hatchery (R.O.P.) in Saskatoon which he has successfully operated since that time. His only previous visit to the island was in 1916. Accompanied by Mrs. Costain he leaves on return West today after concluding his stay with his sister Miss Thursa Costain in Charlottetown. He also visited his brother Raymond and a sister Mrs. Sidney Currie at Summerside.

Five Collisions Over Weekend

Four collisions were reported in the city on Saturday and one yesterday. Two cars collided at the intersection of Prince and Water Streets on Saturday afternoon. Extensive damage was sustained to both vehicles and the drivers of both suffered minor injuries.

Early Saturday evening, a stolen car was involved in a hit and run accident on Longworth Avenue. Only slight damage was reported. The stolen car was later picked up on the North River Road and taken to the R.C.M.P. barracks for fingerprint inspection. Another hit and run incident occurred an hour later at the light at the junction of Custom Street and Longworth Avenue. The vehicle which was hit was damaged on the rear fender. Another car backed from a parking space on Great George Street, into a car stopped at a traffic light. Only slight damage was reported.

Extensive damage was caused to two cars in a collision on Spring Park Road early yesterday morning. No injuries were reported.

Boy Scouts Do Well With Apples

The returns from the Apple Day sales by the Boy Scouts and Brownies of Charlottetown on Friday and Saturday were most encouraging. Executive Commissioner Gordon E. Kerr, said last evening.

To boys turned in more than $1,400.00 as a result of their street and door-to-door sales and it is probable that an additional hundred dollars will be received as a result to hamper sales. "This amount exceeds the returns of last year, and it is probable that no greater success has ever been received in past efforts on Apple Day," Mr. Kerr said.

Complete returns are not expected for about ten days when all units will have sent in their reports. These include Tignish, Alberton, O'Leary, Summerside, St. Simon Park, Kensington, Borden, Souris, Montague and Georgetown.

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Red Cross has offered its cooperation in relief work in Hungary. Dr. W. S. Stanbury, national commissioner, said Saturday. Dr. Stanbury said a cable went Saturday to the international committee of the Red Cross in Geneva saying Canada is ready to assist in any relief effort.

Angus MacLean, D.F.C., M.P. will be a member of a parliamentary delegation flying to Germany and France for a NATO conference in Paris and to visit units of the Canadian Army and the R.C.A.F. About a score of Senators and Members will fly from Ottawa November 16 via Gander and Shannon to Paris.

Parliamentarians from the various NATO countries will confer there from November 18 to 25. After the parliamentary conference the Canadian delegation will fly to Gutersloh, Germany, November 26 for a visit to the Canadian Brigade. On the 28th they will visit the R.C.A.F. Wing at Marville; on the 29th the R.C.A.F. Wing at Baden-Sollingen and return to Paris December 2, taking off again the same day for Ottawa by way of Lajes and Gander.

High Level Maintained In Employment Locally

The Charlottetown National Employment Office, summarizing employment conditions for the month of October, reports that employment continued at a high level throughout the month. The local office has jurisdiction over Kings and Queens Counties, and the report refers to these counties alone and not to Prince County which is served by an employment office in Summerside.

The Charlottetown office credits the sizable amount of construction work of all kinds, including commercial building, private building, and government road work with the present favorable employment situation. A new building of a new theatre was commencing a few days ago, just at the time when the final touches were being put to the new Federal Building. At the latter building, only a handful of men are still employed, doing general clean-up work. On the outskirts of Charlottetown work on the new Royal Canadian Mounted Police barracks is proceeding rapidly, and the job is getting well on the road to completion.

POTATO PICKERS
The local office had a difficult time securing potato pickers for the many farmers who needed them. As a matter of fact, it was unable to fill all the orders received. In other years a large number of pickers were available in Pictou County, and adjacent areas, but this year the men from these sections of Nova Scotia went to the Annapolis Valley to pick apples. The price of apples this year is the best for some seasons, and seasonal workers were offered more money by Valley fruit growers than could be paid by Island farmers. Island potato growers, therefore, had to depend on help from Cape Breton and this was insufficient to fill the demand.

The Summerside office, which uses many times the number of men usually required by the Charlottetown office, was particularly hard hit, and at times was about 200 men short of actual needs.

Week Of Special Services Concluded At Zion Church

A large congregation was present in Zion church Sunday evening to hear the Rev. Stanley W. Vance deliver the final sermon in the series for the week of special services.

Speaking on the "Call to Worship," Rev. Vance took his text from Psalm 95:6 "In worship we render obedience to God" he told his congregation, "and with obedience to God life becomes an adventure to be enjoyed."

Assisting in the service was the Minister, The Rev. W. Harold Brown and the visiting Minister, the Rev. E.C. Evans. The choir under the direction of Mr. John Lea-Morgan, M.A., B. Mus., rendered the anthem, "How lovely are the messengers that bring us the Gospel of peace" (Mendelssohn). Mrs. Lea-Morgan was accompanist on the piano.

Following the service a fellowship meal was held in the church hall when many members of the congregation had an opportunity to meet the guest preacher, The Rev. Vance is returning by plane today to his congregation of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church in Hamilton, Ontario.

Navy Publication Takes Crack At Explaining 1872 Mystery

OTTAWA (CP)—The fate of the 10-man crew of the American brigantine Mary Celeste has remained one of the most baffling mysteries of the sea since 1872. That year, the 282-ton Mary Celeste was found adrift by the British brigantine Dei Gratia about 378 miles east of St. Mary's Island in the Azores. There was no sign of the crew and none was ever found.

The current issue of the Crowneast, monthly publication of the Canadian Navy, takes another crack at explaining the mystery. First, it publishes an article by Charles Edey Fay, 81, of Lake Worth, Fla., associated for 40 years with the New York insurance company which insured the Mary Celeste's freight—1,701 barrels of alcohol—on her fateful passage.

Mr. Fay sets out the facts of the case from his research, exploding several myths which have grown up around the crew's disappearance. The name of the brigantine has been almost universally misspelled as Marie Celeste.

The Mary Celeste, originally named Amazon, was built at Spencer's Island, N. S., in 1861 and registered at Parraboro, a few miles away.

She sailed Nov. 7, 1872, from New York for Genoa. On Dec. 4, the Dei Gratia, 285 tons, which had put out from New York Nov. 15 bound for Gibraltar, came upon the Mary Celeste.

Three of the Mary Celeste's sails were set. Two had blown away and seven were furled. The only lifeboat was gone. The 24 feet of water in the hold but was seaworthy. Three of the crew of the Dei Gratia pumped her dry and sailed her to Gibraltar.

Two of the Mary Celeste's three hatches were off. The pumps were in good order. The crew's clothing had been left behind, including boots, oilskins and pipes. The last entry in the log book was for Nov. 25 and showed that the Mary Celeste was off St. Mary's Island.

Mr. Fay says the records of the admiralty court hearings into the mystery show that there was no heat in the stove and no food on it as legend has it. On the cabin table was neither food nor drink of any kind and no signs of preparation for a meal.

Mr. Fay in this article avoids all speculation about the fate of the crew, which included the captain's wife and two-year-old daughter.

However, the Crowneast adds the footnote that in his writings Mr. Fay has suggested a plausible reason for the abandonment of the ship. This is the possible explanation:

During stormy weather—Atlantic storms were particularly bad in the closing months of 1872—some of the casks of alcohol were broached and the fumes built up pressure under the tightly sealed hatches.

NO GHOSTS
When the weather moderated, the hatches were opened to air the holds and the bursting forth of the fumes led the crew to fear that the ship would explode. They hastily took to the seaboard which was towed by a line from the un-manned ship. A sudden storm struck, the line parted and the ship's boat was lost with all hands.

"Mr. Fay does not insist that his readers believe this explanation," the Crowneast adds.

"But it rings more loudly of the truth than one put forward several years back by a Canadian writer to the effect that the crew had been frightened overboard by demons at a ghost."

Retired Miner Dies In Dwelling Fire

SYDNEY MINES, N.S. (CP)—A body found in a burned-out dwelling here Friday has been identified as Maurice MacAulay, 58, a retired coal miner. MacAulay was believed trapped in the two-storey home when fire broke out. Police say no one was injured in the blaze.

Either Typists Or Fleas Must Go

OTTAWA (CP)—It's a case of either typists or fleas at the ramshackle old number one police station.

Fumigating crews were at work Wednesday attempting to rid the station of a horde of cat fleas, so small they are almost invisible.

Police said they hope the cat fleas will be gone by today.

If not, the office typists say they will be.

Death On

Hungarians At Ottawa Parade

By GRAHAM TROTTER
OTTAWA (CP)—Hundreds of Hungarians in a spontaneous and impassioned demonstration, paraded in protest past the curtain-drawn Russian Embassy Sunday afternoon at the national war memorial to pay tribute to those who had fallen in the battle for freedom in their native land.

Plastering their cars with slogans, wearing black armbands and carrying hand-scrawled placards, they converged on the capital in droves from Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, Windsor and other eastern Canada centres.

Many were veterans of the Second World War who threw off the Soviet yoke a few years ago, escaping to Canada. These fervently appealed for Canadian government assistance to form a battalion of volunteers to help sweep the Russians out of Hungary.

MANY VOLUNTEERS
One of the leaders, Frank Marco Montreal paper and mill machinery designer, said more than 100 Hungarians had already volunteered. Efforts would be made today to get planes to transport them overseas.

The demonstration apparently caused some nervousness among Canadian diplomats. Jim Barker, of the external affairs department, protocol division, stood near the Soviet Embassy, watching the parade of cars. He was concerned lest the demonstrators attempt to force their way into the embassy or smash windows. There was no display of violence.

At the war memorial, in the heart of the capital, the demonstrators laid wreaths, sang national anthems and listened to rallying speeches from their Canadian leaders.

Their numbers were swelled by hundreds of Poles, Czechs, Ukrainians and others who escaped from their own countries.

In a statement to be presented to External Affairs Minister Pearson, the demonstrators praised the minister for supporting UN consideration of the Hungarian rebellion and called on the Canadian government to support fully the cause of freedom and help bring free elections to East European satellites.

"FIGHTING FOR WORLD"
At the memorial, the Toronto and Montreal Hungarians, which comprised the vast majority of the demonstrators, laid three wreaths.

The demonstrators, their faces etched in sadness and determination, sang God Save the Queen and O Canada.

There was a pause. Then, on the outer fringe of the crowd, Toronto theatre manager Stephen Makjic, in a rich baritone, began singing in Hungarian God Bless the Hungarian and his homeland's national hymn.

"They were about to leave without singing it and I couldn't let them," he said.

He had been frightened overboard by demons at a ghost."

See Serious Errors By Soviet Authorities Within The Month

By THOMAS P. Whitney
Associated Press News Analyst

It is entirely possible that one day soon Soviet Communist leaders will wake up to find that in the international Communist movement their party is a minority of one.

Recent events in Poland and Hungary are indications that the Kremlin unless it begins to manoeuvre with greater adroitness than it recently has shown, could wind up in a position of total isolation within the Communist world.

This possibility arises from the currently obvious inability of Moscow Communist chiefs to adjust to the fact that no longer are they the only system in the Communist world that Moscow is June one Communist capital among many, not the Communist capital.

THREE SERIOUS ERRORS
Three times in the last month the Soviet Communist party has made serious errors and dealt severe blows to its own prestige among Communist countries:

1. Nikita Khrushchev proved his inability to convince President Tito of Yugoslavia that it was correct for Moscow to exercise direct control over Soviet eastern Europe satellite states and to use its authority to slow down the de-Stalinization campaign.

2. Khrushchev flew to Warsaw to deliver an ultimatum to the Polish Communist party against declaring its independence of Moscow. His ultimatum was rejected and he had to back down.

3. The Soviet leaders Rev. themselves be put in a position in which they had to use Soviet armed forces in an attempt to crush the revolt in Hungary, thereby labelling themselves not only for the whole world but also among Communists as imperialists attempting to retain a colonial empire by naked force and terror.

KHRUSHCHEV OPPOSITION
The effects of these Kremlin defeats and errors will only be felt in full strength much later—but even in the near future they will begin to become apparent.

One of the effects within Russia is likely to be strengthening of opposition within the Communist party leadership to Khrushchev, to his rapprochement with Tito, to further development in replacing Khrushchev with some other leader, or it may impose on him a policy of combating Titoism within that portion of the Communist realm which remains Soviet-dominated.

Outside the Soviet Union effects are certain to be the strengthening of Tito in his resolve to remain free of Moscow's domination and continue an independent Communist line, the strengthening of Wladyslaw Gomulka in his determination to make Communist Poland totally free of Soviet rule and an increase in the longing of Communist leaders in other satellite countries for independence of their own.

In all this the key position might be assumed by Communist China. Mao Tse-tung could try to be a peacemaker between Moscow and the national Communists. He could attempt to grasp from Moscow's hands the banner of leadership over world communism. Or he could simply sit on the sidelines, continuing friendly relations with both sides. None of these prospects would be pleasant for Moscow to contemplate.

POLIO IMMUNIZATION Clinics conducted by the Health Department will be held in most of the rural schools during the next three weeks, or in regional centres. These are for first and second polio inoculations for children born before 1955 up to pupils in Grade X, and for expectant mothers. These latter must present a doctor's certificate confirming pregnancy when reporting for a first inoculation. Teachers will have information about dates and times of clinics. A re-inoculation for diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus will be given for infants and vaccination against smallpox.

PENDERGAST DEATH — William L. Pendergast, a native of Kensington, P.E.I., died Friday morning in Seattle, Washington, in his 76th year. He was a brother of James T. Pendergast, 171 Dorchester Street, Charlottetown. The late Mr. Pendergast left this province in 1902, and spent four years in Boston before accompanying his brother, James, to the wilderness of the Klondike country, where he remained for a year and a half. From here, he moved to Seattle, where he has resided for the past 47 years, over 40 of which he spent on the Police Force of that city, from which he retired a few years ago. Surviving are two sons and his widow, the former Margaret Kelly of St. Martin's N.B.
