WEAK AND EASILY TIRED.

From the Moncton Transcript.
One of the happiest couples in Notre Dame, N. B., is Mr. Will Colborne and his wife. For the cause of so much happiness they are indebted in a great measure to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, by which Mrs. Colborne was quickly cured of most stubborn malady. This is how Mrs. Colborne tells the story of her illness and cures:—
"When I was three years old I had an attack of inflammation of the lungs from which for a long time I did not wholly recover. I was ever after a weak and delicate child, very languid and the least exertion fatigued me. I was extremely nervous, my appetite was never good and my nights frequently sleepless. Growing up I felt my affliction less severe and at times went on I married. Shortly after my marriage all my old symptoms came back in an aggravated form. I could eat nothing and not sleep at all. My blood became thin and weak and I felt dull and spiritless. I had no ambition and the

The rugged and the strong do not appreciate, to its full extent, the blessing of perfect health. It is only those who have passed through a trying illness, who feel that health is a treasure to be valued more than silver or gold. Among those who have experienced the truth of this is Miss Sabra Rector, of West River Hebert, N. S. This lady has passed through a trying and wearisome illness, from which happily relief was found through the medium of a medicine that has brought health and strength to thousands of others, and whose medicinal virtues will work equally good results in all cases where it is given a fair trial. Miss Rector says:—"I feel it is my duty to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as they have done wonders for me. About two years ago I became very ill with a complication of diseases. I was suffering with indigestion, biliousness and the resulting nervous disorders, such as sick headache, loss of appetite and flashes of heat and cold. I began doctoring and although I had the best of care I seemed to grow worse every day. I slept but little and when lying down would get hot and suffer from a sensation of smothering that I would find it necessary to arise. Then the other extreme would come and I would shiver with cold. Time wore on and there was no improvement in my condition. I was not able to do any work about the house and even the exertion of moving about would tire me out. If I attempted to walk any distance or hurried in the least I would gasp for breath and could scarcely speak. I had a very poor appetite, and what food I ate did not seem to agree with me or furnish needed nourishment. I also suffered with a severe pain in my side and back. During this time I tried many remedies, but they gave no relief whatever. I had become so weak, and my system was so run down that life was a burden to me. At this stage my attention was directed to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I determined to give them a trial. After using four boxes I felt so much better that hope and encouragement

A WORD OF CAUTION.

A few unscrupulous tradesmen—their cupidity excited by the great reputation of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—make up or buy in the wholesale market ready-made, some cheap pills, colored pink, which will sell as "Pink Pills" and offer as a substitute for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Such pills are a fraud. The recipe for Dr.

Pink Pills for Pale People." Inside the wrapper are Dr. Williams' directions for use. Pay no attention to any dealer who claims to have "the same thing under another name," or something else "just as good." In case of doubt it is better to write (enclosing price, 50 cents for one box or $2.50 for six boxes) to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

FAINT AND DIZZY.

Among the remarkable cures which have followed the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is that of Mrs. Geo. N. Goddard, a well known resident of Annapolis Station, N. B. Mrs. Goddard says:—"For five years I was a sufferer from a most peculiar trouble, which seemed to baffle the skill of several physicians. The first symptoms of my trouble I cannot characterize better than by calling them blind spells, as my head would get so bad that I could not see and a blindness would come over me. Then I would grow faint and dizzy and could not walk about. My hands and arms would become perfectly

DEPRESSING HEADACHES AND WEAKNESS

From the Alexandria News.

Another voice in Glengarry county is willing to swell the chorus of praise to the restorative value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. In the township of Lancaster lives Mrs. Rory McCrimmon, the wife of a well known farmer. Years ago she became subject to severe headaches, intermittent in character, and more or less painful in character. The advance of time saw no improvement. In the spring of 1894 her ailment assumed a more serious form, depressing headaches and extreme weakness. In this condition she consulted one of the best physicians in the vicinity, and after numerous visits and much medication, there was no improvement. Before the year was gone, with the hope of obtaining better results, a visit to Caldonia Springs was made. The visit lasted about three weeks, but, unfortunately for Mrs. McCrimmon, there was no discernible im-

LADIES' AFFLICTIONS.

Many women suffer in silence for honorable reasons. They alone know the pains which afflict them—continuously or at regular intervals. Agonizing backaches, headache, prostration, irregularity of vital functions, the change of life, weakness easily accounted for. All these things have been cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They cannot harm the most delicate girl or woman of advancing age.

came to me once more. I continued the use of the Pills and found myself steadily gaining. By the time I had used four boxes more I had fully regained my health and strength and I am not only able to do my full share of household work, but also attend to my Sabbath school class and other church duties. I look upon Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a priceless boon to suffering humanity.

Williams' Pink Pills is known only to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. All substitutes are therefore useless. To be sure of having none but the genuine pill, purchasers should not ask for Pink Pills, but for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and see that they are set up in a package, the wrapper around which is printed with red ink on white paper and bears the full trademark "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People."

numb and would sometimes remain in this condition for days. Later the attacks grew more frequent and more severe. I became so nervous and run down that life was indeed a burden to me. My appetite was very poor and I was pale and emaciated. As regular medical treatment made no improvement in my condition, some of my friends strongly urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and at last I consented to do so. I had only been taking them for a short time when there was a decided change for the better in my condition. I continued their use and every day my nerves seemed to grow stronger. I gained in flesh and felt like a new woman. I know the load of misery from which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have relieved me and I am more than grateful and will never lose an opportunity for saying a good word of this grand medicine."

provement arising therefrom. By this time the frame of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had reached her, and she was seized with a desire to share in their worth. The experiment was duly entered upon and faithfully carried out, until the looked for result came. The persistent headache, which defeated the skill of doctors, has vanished; lost vigor is recovered, and the general health so completely restored that Mrs. McCrimmon has been able to work and go about with comfort as she had not been able to do for years. Unmistakably Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for her what other things failed to do. Since the first use of the pills Mrs. McCrimmon has recommended them to others and occasionally taken them herself to advantage. Money spent in the purchase of health cannot be ill spent.

A Notable Pair of Royalties.

King Christian and Queen Louisa of Denmark are a notable pair of royalties. In 1842 King Christian was a poor young officer in the Danish army, and when Queen Louisa married him in that year she did her own sewing and kept house in its practical sense. Between them they had a small income. In 1852 they became the rulers of Denmark, and their children have made exceedingly brilliant marriages. Their eldest daughter, Alexandra, married the Prince of Wales and some day may be queen of England. Their second daughter, Dagmar, is the dowager empress of Russia. One son, George, is king of Greece, and another son, Waldemar, will wed Princess Marie, a daughter of the Duc de Chartres, the Orleansist pretender to the throne of France.

Milk.

Milk should always be sipped slowly, so that, on reaching the stomach, it will be in the form of a sponge, through which the gastric juice can perform its duties properly. For dyspeptics the milk should be boiled. Cases of inflammation of the stomach have been cured by living on bread and milk alone for a time. The addition of a little lime water makes it still better.—Housewife.

What to Buy.

A young man once called upon Travers, the veteran Wall street operator, and said: "Mr. Travers, I have $30,000 in bank which I obtained by mortgaging my house. As you know all about stocks, I have called to ask what I shall buy." Travers eyed him with that well known quizzical look of his and stammered, "B-b-buy th-th' mortgage."

Bacteria as Vermin Exterminators.

Perhaps one of the most remarkable uses to which bacteria have been put is that of vermin exterminators or poisoning agents. It was in the year 1889 that Professor Loeffler, while experimenting with mice in his laboratory at Greifswald, discovered a micro organism which was extremely fatal to all kinds of mice. The happy idea occurred to the professor that this lethal little microbe, which he christened bacillus typhi murium, might be turned to excellent account in combating the devastation committed by these voracious rodents had become in parts of Greece and Russia a serious source of loss to agriculturists. Experiments were accordingly made on a small scale to test the efficiency of this bacterial poisoner in destroying field mice, and so successful were the results that Loeffler confidently announced the possibility of keeping down these pests by distributing food material infected with these bacteria over fields which were invaded by them. The Greek government took up the question, and Loeffler's method was applied with brilliant results; the disease was disseminated with extraordinary rapidity and severity and the mice were readily destroyed.—Longman's Magazine.

No Confidence in the Guru.

It is not safe to trust utterly the guidance of the Hindoo fancy or to put great reliance upon intellects which are so little troubled by contradictions and absurdities. Of course there are notable exceptions in such careful scholars as Dr. Bhandarkar of Poona. I may tell right here a brief story which throws light on some of these things. The late Ramkrishna Paramahansa was called by one of his disciples in talking with me in Calcutta "the greatest man of the nineteenth century." He is believed by some to have influenced Keshub Chunder Sen. He was the religious teacher, the guru, of Vivekananda.

Max Muller dubs him "a true mahatma." The learned Oxford professor told me that he asked Vivekananda if Ramkrishna knew Sanskrit. The answer at first was evasive, but finally he said, "When Ramkrishna was in the jungle as an ascetic, a beautiful woman came down from heaven and taught him the language." Max Muller's very natural reply was: "Nonsense! The only way to learn Sanskrit is to get a grammar and a dictionary and go to work."—Outlook.

A Social Business Man.

One young business man in New York has succeeded in making himself valuable to his employers in a peculiar way. He started in mercantile life with a firm that has a large number of employees, and the indications were that progress along the ordinary lines of the business would be very slow indeed. It was only by accident that an opening suddenly came which made this particular man almost indispensable to his employers and the recipient of a salary proportionately large. The firm of which he is a member happens to have important social relations with many of its large customers who live in different cities over the United States. There is scarcely a day that does not bring one of these customers to call on the firm. One day this young employee was called upon to attend to such a visitor, and he did it with a tact and completeness that showed his inborn aptitude for such transactions. Gradually other duties were handed over to him, and before a long time had passed he was relieved from other work in order that he might devote himself exclusively to what might be called the social end of the firm's business. His salary has been raised several times in view of the capable manner in which he attends to these transactions and takes the burden of the principals in the business. He represents the members of his firm at funerals, weddings and all social functions, traveling sometimes to remote points for the purpose, and as his utility to his employers grows daily greater they hold him in proportionately higher esteem. His case was one instance in which certain unusual talents asserted themselves and won the success that comes from the ability to fill a particular sphere capably.—New York Sun.

A Well Dressed Man.

Lord Russell, when practicing at the bar, one day examined a witness, whose evidence promised to be damaging unless he could be previously confused. The only vulnerable part of the man was said to be his self esteem. The witness, a portly, over-dressed individual, went into the box, and the great lawyer took him in hand. "Mr. John Tomkins, I believe?" "Yes." "You are a stockbroker?" "I am." Lord Russell regarded him attentively for a few moments, and then said, "And a very well dressed man you are, sir." The shout of laughter which followed completely disconcerted Mr. Tomkins, and the lawyer's point was gained.—Scottish Nights.

Odor of Flowers.

It is said the odor of flowers is antiseptic and that during epidemics the workmen in perfume factories are exempt. Some essences are good for the nerves. Ambergris clears the brain and induces thought. Musk in tiny quantities acts as a tonic. Citron and aloes are soothing to the nerves. A chemist believes that each scent can be symbolized by a musical note, and a French romanticist in a book says on inhaling the fragrance of flowers on shore and hearing the strains of music borne on the air from the deck of a vessel, "I could not tell whether I breathed music or heard flowers."—Exchange.

Donkey and Wife.

Among the lower classes in Tenerife the woman is very badly treated. The husband, brother or even son is a species of petty tyrant, and 99 times in 100, when on his way to the town in company with his wife and his donkey, he rides the donkey, and she carries the burden on her head. A great weight is often so supported.
