Double Ring Ceremony; Will Reside In Kingston

St. Vincent de Paul Roman Catholic Church decorated with white and pink mums and gladioli, was the setting for the pretty military wedding of Myrtle Theresa, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Shea of Alberton, P.E.I. and Sigmund Ivan Eugene, son of Mrs. John McKeeney, Mr. Stewart, P.E.I. The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. T. Hays.

The bride given in marriage by her brother, Ivan Shea, was beautifully attired in a floor length gown of white Chantilly lace and nylon tulle over tulle. The skirt flounce caught with tiny rings of seed pearls. The lace jacket had long sleeves coming to a point over the wrist and the Peter Pan collar trimmed with seed pearls and iridescent sequins.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Church Hall for 70 guests catered to by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Zion Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Edwin H. Cook and Mrs. T.B. Rogers poured. The bride's table was centered with a three tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. Pink and white Snapdragons and Petunias decorated the table.

The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Herbert R. Vessey and fittingly responded to by the groom. Mrs. Harry Cook and Mrs. Bernadette McManus were in charge of the guest book.

For travelling the bride chose a summer suit of white wool with navy neck and blue accessories. Her corsage was of red roses.

The couple will reside in Halifax, N.S., where the bride is employed with the C.B.C. television, and the groom is a student in Dentistry at Dalhousie University.

REDECORATE U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) One of the most widely publicized features of the United Nations General Assembly hall, the podium wall behind the president's desk, has undergone change.

The wall formerly was decorated with rows of concave discs which had almost become a UN trademark. The new scheme has entirely eliminated the discs and substituted a single, huge UN emblem more than 12 feet in diameter. It is a globe rimmed by olive branches, set against a larger disc, all in blue and white.

Sure-To-Fit Drapes

One of the big problems in buying window draperies has always been whether the selection would fit windows in the next house too. We're referring to families who rent, rather than own, their homes. As a rule when one rents a house or an apartment, it is taken for granted that some time in the future there'll be a move to another.

Home-owners, too. But as a matter of fact, why do we confine this type of thinking to people who rent? Even families who own their homes can be expected to sell one day.

Since window draperies often do involve a substantial investment, they should be as flexible as possible. They should fit more than one window.

This was not always possible but now we have draperies made in panels so many or as few as you wish. Slide fasteners along both edges of a single panel make the pattern completely flexible.

If it's a picture window, then use as many as the dimensions call for. If some day, you want to use them at a narrower window, all that is necessary is to unzip a few panels. The slide fasteners are, of course, concealed in the overlapping folds of the fabric.

The manufacturers have succeeded in matching the patterned panels. In other words, if you select your zip-up panels in a pattern, you can depend on having the design of one panel fit into the design of the next.

EASY TO LAUNDRER

When time comes to wash these draperies, just unzip the panels and launder each one separately. How much easier this is than trying to handle a million yards of fabric all at once!

Women Sing Icelandic Songs As Herring Return Again

By T.O. THORARENSEN. REYKJAVIK, Iceland (Reuters) Herring, "the silver from the sea," have returned to the waters off Iceland's northern coast.

After 12 years, during which the fish appeared to have deserted Icelandic waters, a spotter aircraft from Siglufjordur, the main herring town on the north coast, reported recently that a school of herring 60 miles long had been sighted.

At once an armada of nearly 200 fishing boats put to sea and in the short northern night, began to haul in what was probably the biggest catch they had ever made. The fish were so abundant that the boats could fill their nets in one casting. Often the fleet hauled aboard 300 tons of fish at a time.

Before the war, herring used to appear regularly off the northern coast of Iceland in schools hundreds of miles long. Then the fish left Icelandic waters. Nobody really knew why but it was suspected that the sea north of Iceland had become too warm for them. Experts discovered that the herring were going further north. But this spring ice from Greenland was the following: Mrs. H.S. Henderson, Mrs. J. Pope Clarke, Mrs. W.H.V. Dunbar, Mrs. Howard McInnis, Mrs. H. J. Brown, Mrs. Charles Trainor and Mrs. Laura H. Baker.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Huestis, North Carleton were pleasantly surprised Monday evening, September 11th, when their near relatives gathered at their home to celebrate their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. Rev. Emerson G. Huestis read an address and the bride and groom were presented with beautiful gifts. A social evening was spent with old fashioned sing song. A delicious lunch was served after which they departed to their respectable homes wishing the bride and groom many more years of happiness.

boy, the endless rope boy and the hip and valley maker.

This miner works on thin coal seams. The fat boy is a juvenile, unskilled general worker on the coal mines and the endless rope boy attaches or detaches the trucks to "endless" ropes. Hip and valley are names of curved roof tiles.

TONGUE TWISTERS

A pan doctor repairs conveyors in a coal mine and a puddler lays bricks above or below ground.

The mumber is another name for a glassblower.

Then there are the tropper and the tropper. A tropper catches shrimps on the east coast and a whammeller fishes for salmon or sea trout in estuaries, using a special drift net.

Here's a riddle—what's a rudderman? A hawson? A garthman? A rudderman brands sheep, a hawson is a headman on a Welsh farm and a garthman is a herdsmen.

Tongue-twisters are the stack thatcher and thistle spudder on the farm.

The warping worker clears out ditches. The chap who is a drowner floods pasture and other land.

Other occupations are listed with what appears to be uncalled for editorial comment—the push-over man, rat assistant, thickest cutter, shoddy grinder, sleeper picker. Then from out of the charming past there are the whalebone straightener and the corset threader.

HEARD BABY SON FROM ARCTIC STATION

WASHINGTON (AP) Charles Taylor, on weather duty in the Arctic, heard a scream Tuesday night and he was mighty happy about it.

The cry was that of his two-day-old son nestled in his mother's arms many thousands of miles away.

The long-distance communication between father and son was brought about through the efforts of amateur radio operators.

George C. Edwards, Springfield, Va., a radio "ham," made contact with Taylor on Friday and let go with a
