HE MADE A MISTAKE!

"I made a mistake," the old man said,
"To spend money on shoes like those."
And a trickling tear escaped from his eye
As he looked at the holes in the toes.

He will never make such a mistake again, for hereafter we will buy GOFF BROS' Solid Leather Boots. feb20

THE GREAT INVIGORATING TONIC.

CAMPBELL'S QUININE WINE.

INVALUABLE in cases of Loss of Appetite, Weak or Painful Indigestion, Malaria, Lowness of Spirits, Fevers of all kinds, and as a general Strengthening of the System when weakened by changes of the season.

It is necessary to remember that there are many so-called Quinine Wines, but that the GREAT ORIGINAL is "Campbell's," and that the genuine bears our signature upon the label. The best proof of its value is the fact that its sale at the present time is larger than ever before.

The following certificate shows how CAMPBELL'S QUININE WINE is appreciated. Having submitted two samples of Quinine Wine, imitations of the genuine, along with a sample of our own, to the Public Analyst, we received the following reply: "CAMPBELL'S is the only genuine Quinine Wine of the three samples examined at Messrs. Kenneth Campbell & Co's. request."

SCOTT & BOWNE, Bellevue, N. Y.

THOUSANDS of bottles of DYSPEPTICURE have been sold during the past few years without any advertising whatever. It easily overcomes Indigestion, and POSITIVELY CURES the worst cases of Chronic Dyspepsia; its quality of curing the disease explains its large and spreading sale without having been brought prominently before the public.

THE PAMPHLET (Copyrighted.) on DYSPEPTICURE gives the results of many years study on Diet and the Diseases of Digestion. All interested in these subjects, Chronic Dyspepsia especially, should read this little book. It is wrapped about each bottle of the remedy, or will be promptly mailed free to any address.

Is sold by all Druggists—Sample Size 35 cts.; Large Bottles $1.00. Those who cannot get it easily will receive a large bottle by mail, all expenses prepaid, on sending $1.00 by registered letter or P. O. Order to the maker, Charles K. The Voice of Spring.

Tis heard in the rush of the waters,
It comes in the heat of the air,
'Tis found midst the trees of the forest,
It goes wandering everywhere.

The dear little bleat of the lamkins,
The buds of the tiniest flower,
Speak volumes of praise to the sender
Of all this life-giving power.

They jingle again, the cowbells,
That for months have been laid aside;
And the children are roaming again, dear,
The fields of their homeland wide.

But the spring of a grander country,
Where the souls of men are the flowers,
Bids me to resume my study,
A monition of happier hours.

My books I have sadly neglected,
Though perhaps it is no fault of mine,
Yet to dwell with them, talk with them
freely,
Is the freedom for which I pine.

Ah! near in the light of the future
A glimmer is flickering for me,
Though as yet in the distance between us
I scarcely know what it will be.

Yet beyond it the light from the heaven
Shines brightly by night and by day,
To tell its approach to the traveller,
As the fields speak the nearing of May.

FANNIE HAMILTON.

Love's Silence.

Of all the words that bear their part
In all the deeds of day to day,
One word is chiefly in my heart,
One little word I must not say.

The hills of truth are straight and steep,
They have a smart in every stone,
And climbing them I needs must weep
To think that love must die unknown.

Night follows day—day chases night,
And brings a lesson strange to teach,
That love is lifeless in the light,
And silence is the fullest speech.

Walter Herries Pollock, in Longmans' Magazine.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Civic Improvements.

SIR,—Much has been written and said of late touching civic matters. One subject, however, seems to have escaped comment. Some years since Rochford, King's, and Hillsborough Squares in this city received considerable attention at the hands of owners of property and others anxious to improve the appearance of the town. The efforts thus made were for a time backed up by the city authorities, but of late it seems that even the law relating to the protection of public property in Charlottetown is put at defiance. As this is tree planting time, it is fitting that attention should be directed to this matter. The city bye-law relating to which reads thus:—

"No person shall cut down, bark, lop, or otherwise injure, any tree planted under the authority of this bye-law, or any tree now planted and growing upon any street or square in the city—or shall cut down, break or otherwise injure the boxes, supports, or appendages to or around any such tree."

The penalty for the above offences by fine or imprisonment is at the discretion of the Stipendiary Magistrate. It is a notorious fact, however, that this law is openly violated and that no effort is made to punish guilty parties.

Experiments for the Artificial Production of Rain.

Among the United States government appropriations is $9,000 to be expended in making experiments on the artificial production of rain. We learn that the first experiment will be made in Western Kansas next June under the direction of Col. Dyrenforth, of Washington. Balloons filled with hydrogen and oxygen gas will be sent up and exploded by a steel wire attached to the balloons and connected with an electrical apparatus on the ground. Senator Farwell favors this idea, because the concussion will be greater, and because the concussion, the more copious will be the fall. The balloons will also be aided in their work by the explosion of dynamite on the ground. Drought is the curse of the Western farmer. In the State of Kansas, the western part especially, the eastern part of Colorado, the Northwest Territories, Texas, the two Dakotas, Nebraska, Minnesota, and, indeed, in nearly all the country west of the Mississippi River the dry seasons are frequent and dangerous to the welfare of the crops. The removal of this great bugbear of the farmer would be a boon that is beyond expression in words.

A TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE.

—Harry Wilder is the name of a Lynn, Mass., man who got drunk there on Saturday night last and found himself alone near Beachmont, on the Lynn Railway track. Under the impression that he was in his bedroom, he undressed and laid down to sleep, making a pillow of his clothing, his legs resting upon the rail. A late train came along from Boston and nearly amputated both legs. The shock sobered Wilder, and, covering the wounded parts as best he could, he dragged himself a mile and a half along the track, leaving a trail of blood all the way. He was finally discovered by a passer-by, who took the poor fellow on his back and carried him to a physician. He was finally removed to a hospital in Boston, where the surgeons completed the amputation of his legs.

OVERWORKED, broken down, prematurely aged men, or those suffering from excesses or indiscretions, will find a certain cure in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

They supply the material necessary to enrich the blood, build up the nerves and restore the shattered system. Never fail. Sold by all dealers, or sent on receipt of price—50c per box, or five boxes for $2—by addressing the Dr. Williams Med. Co., Brockville, Ont. 1w

Educational Thought.

The style of a writer is almost always the faithful representation of his mind; therefore if any one wishes to write a clear style, let him begin by making his thoughts clear, and if any one would write a noble style, let him first possess a noble soul.—Goethe.

It is easy for teachers to mistake excitement for enthusiasm. Haste to try all the new schemes which are praised by others will not take the place of genuine love for one's work and painstaking effort to achieve the best possible results which material and circumstances will allow. Real enthusiasm means unceasing, conscientious, unselfish devotion to one's profession, than which none can be more inspiring.—The Student.

The teacher has more encouragements than are found in most walks of life. They may surly have great and pure gratification when they see this pupil and that pupil growing like the plant in knowledge and all that is good. There will be fathers and mothers showing deep gratitude for the care taken of their children. In all cases the fruit of a faithful teacher will remain and go down to the generation following.—Dr. McCook.

To arouse, animate, awaken and strengthen man's joy in and power for working continually on his own education, had been and remained the fundamental necessity of my educational work. All my efforts and methods as a teacher are directed towards the awakening and fostering of this joy and strength, of this personality by which the human being first truly sets himself to work as a man.—Frederich Froebel.

Build the child's education up from a physical foundation. Bodily habits that are healthful and pure mess more to the republic's future than intellectual acumen or acquisitions. The man wonderful lives in a house beautiful, but science teaches, even as the Bible does, that "whoso defileth this temple him shall God destroy, for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are." The child should learn that this destruction is not wrought in vengeance, but as the inevitable sequel of violating natural laws so beneficent that obedience to them would insure a happy life.—Miss Wildard.

The greatest of all Teachers once said in describing his own mission, "I am come that they might have light, and that they might have it more abundantly." And may we not without irreverence say that this is, in a humble and far off way, the aim of every true teacher in the world? He wants to help his pupil to live a fuller, a richer, a more interesting, and a more useful life. He wants to train the scholar that no one of his intellectual or moral resources shall be wasted. That mind and soul according well May make one music. No meaner ideal than this ought to satisfy even the humblest who enters the teacher's profession.—Fitch.
