Russians Blame Chinese For Lack Of Co-Operation

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union has charged that China's leaders refused to co-operate with the rest of the world Communist movement to defeat the United States in Viet Nam.

"There is no justification for the refusal to co-operate, for the rejection of unity of action in the sacred cause of helping the fraternal democratic Republic of Viet Nam and all the Vietnamese people," says an editorial in Pravda, voice of the Soviet Communist party.

The editorial said the Kremlin hierarchy had been stung by Chinese charges it was not doing enough in Viet Nam and, in fact, was underhandedly co-operating with the Americans.

Pravda said Nov. 28 China turned down "specific proposals"—not spelled out—to aid the Vietnamese Communists.

The editorial, strongest attack on China since the ouster of Nikita S. Khrushchev October, 1964, said joint action by the Soviet Union, China and their allies was "especially important in the struggle against American aggression in Viet Nam which is extending a direct threat to world peace."

During the last two months Russians have dropped their silence in the dispute with Peking and have answered Chinese attacks in strong terms.

Pravda said the Soviet Communist Party "has done everything in its power" to normalize relations with the Communist Paarty of China.

It charged the Chinese leaders with ignoring the opinion of Marxist-Leninist parties and rejecting all initiatives toward unity of action. It added that the Chinese leaders have stepped up activities to split the Communist movement.

Despite the criticism of China, Pravda made it clear the Russians were not relaxing their stand against the United States.

"The greatest danger to the peoples today comes from the imperialism of the United States, the leading force of the imperialist camp," Pravda says.

It added that the best way to heal the Chinese - Soviet breach is to concentrate on what unites rather than what divides it.

Ont. Premier Has Message For Food Industry Leaders

TORONTO (CP) — Canadians have no one but themselves to blame for the fact that Canada, one of the world's leading industrial and agricultural nations, is an importer both of manufactured products and foodstuffs.

This was the message Premier Robarts carried to a gathering of more than 1,000 leaders of the food industry from both Canada and the United States. He spoke to a luncheon in honor of Norman Stapleton, president of National Food Stores.

Mr. Robarts said it is "symptomatic of the weakness in the Canadian character" that Canadians let others invest in their country and refuse to take the risks necessary to develop Canada themselves.

"The Canadian investor too often looks for security and is reluctant to take a risk," he said.

"Yet, this same investor is disturbed at the thought that someone from outside Canada is willing to take risks in our country to develop industry or our material resources."

The premier said the government had encouraged Ontario manufacturers to seek out export markets after finding four years ago that industry had not actively explored them. This was the start of the Ontario trade crusade.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars have flowed into the provincial economy and thousands of new jobs have been opened up by he trade crusade, he said.
