CONTRACT BRIDGE

By B. JAY BECKER

North dealer
Neither side vulnerable.

Hand diagram showing cards for North and South in two suits.

The bidding:
North 1♣ South 2♣
1 Pass 1 Pass
2 Pass 2 NT

FAMOUS HANDS

Opening lead—queen of clubs. This seems to be nothing, extraordinary about this deal when it was originally played, many years ago, the bidding went as shown. The contract was defeated one trick.

The remarkable part of the hand, though, is that a four heart contract cannot be defeated. At first glance, it appears that West has four trump tricks, and the defenders in addition, have two natural diamond tricks.

Assume the queen of clubs is led. Dummy plays the king, a spade is played to the ace, and a spade is led and trumped. The ace of clubs is cashed and a club is ruffed by South. Dummy's spade is trumped in dummy. Declarer now cashes the ace of diamonds and exits with a diamond. West must win the diamond. Eight tricks have been played. West is on lead, and he has no cards left but hearts. He leads a low heart and South, who holds A-Q-J, wins with the ten. It is his first trump endplay West runs into.

South next leads his losing diamond and West is forced to trump. Now West has left K-J-9 of hearts. He must lead into declarer's A-K. South for the second time West sacrifices a trump trick. Declarer's work is done. He now has two tricks. South has won the ace of spades and ruffed spades twice in dummy. The ace of diamonds and A-K of clubs produced three more tricks. South also made four trump tricks in his own hand.

West can do nothing to prevent South from taking ten tricks. Even a trump lead cannot affect the result. The order of the play changes but the same inevitable result is reached. The six losers are cut in half because twice West has to lead a trump and once he is compelled to ruff partner's diamond trick.
