THE TEACHERS' GRIEVANCE.

We overlooked the paragraph in which the editor of the Patriot absurdly states—so harshly he pressed—that we want to have some of the teachers of Prince Street School paid for fourteen months' service in the year instead of twelve. We want to see even-handed justice done—nothing less, nothing more—in a matter in which the public honor is concerned. The Patriot's plea that special favor should be shown the common school teachers of the old regime, because they had never been disengaged is, as we before pointed out, worthless. In fact, several of these teachers were not engaged for weeks after those of the Protestant Academy and those from St. John were engaged. The Patriot knows this right well.

As for the Patriot's irrelevant statement that the teachers in the Protestant Academy received their salaries up to the first of September last, we are assured that it is incorrect. We are also assured the protesting teachers demand only the proportion of salary they were led to expect would be paid them on the first of October, or they—or at least some of them—would never have come to Prince Edward Island if such be the case, there has clearly been a breach of faith, which we hope the Executive Council, when it meets, will repair.

SECOND METHODIST CHURCH.

This small, but neat edifice, was opened for divine worship yesterday. It is in Gothic style, with mullioned windows and pointed gable roof—thirty six by eighty feet, and two stories high. On the lower flat there is a small room for a library, and a large room intended for a Sunday School, but now used for public worship as well. The latter is thirty-four ft. wide, sixty-eight ft. long, sixteen ft. six inches high, and contains sitting accommodation for four hundred persons. The upper story is divided into five large class rooms twenty-five by fifteen feet, and eleven feet high. There are no pillars in the lower room. The whole of the ceiling is supported by trusses running through the partitions separating the rooms above. The building is well ventilated. It is to be heated by means of a furnace in the basement, and there is to be a "lift" thence to the upper rooms for raising hot tea, etc., in case of social gatherings. We are also informed that it is proposed to add, in a few years, a church and spire to the south side of the building, so that when the design is completed, the partially constructed will be, as it were, a transept to the whole structure. Mr. Robert Fennell is the builder; Messrs. Sterling and Harris, the architects. The work of both has been creditably done.

THE CANADIAN HARVEST.—The Monetary Times in an article comparing the late harvest with former years considers the present one exceptionally bountiful, and estimates that 30,000,000 bushels of wheat were harvested this year and 10,000,000 bushels of barley. The total figures for coarse grains will probably exceed 48,000,000 bushels.

OLD PROBABILITIES.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—Under the above heading, in your issue of the 13th, you say: "Telegrams have not, as formerly, been forwarded from the Meteorological Department to Mr. Cundall." Your authority for this, I suppose, is a conversation which we had together on the previous evening; but you misunderstood my words. As a matter of fact, there has been no change. I then said "that there is not the daily telegraph communication between this (Charlottetown) station and the Head Office in Toronto which exists between the latter and certain other stations in the Dominion;" and assigned as a reason "that the cost of telegraphing to this Island is so very much more than to any other station." I expressed an opinion also "that under these circumstances storms in this locality were not always predicted with that certainty which they might otherwise have been." The following extracts are from the Meteorological Report for 1876:—

"A warning is sent to any port whenever, in the opinion of the person whose duty is to attend to the prognostications of the weather, it is considered that a storm will probably occur within a distance of 100 miles, by water, of that port; so that when a port is warned it is not intended to be understood that the storm will necessarily rage at that port; but it is intended to warn those connected with shipping that a storm will probably rage within such distance that ships leaving port might be affected by it." Since the beginning of September (1876) warnings have generally been issued from Toronto without waiting for the receipt of the telegram from Washington, and the result has been that scarcely any of the telegrams have reached their destination after the commencement of the storm. Warnings issued since September, 1876, 341; verified, 266; percentage verified, 78."

PROBABILITIES.

During the summer (1876) and to the close of the navigation, a chart of the weather, with probabilities for the ensuing 24 hours, was issued from this (Toronto) office at 10 a. m., and furnished daily, Sun days excepted, to the Marine Exchange Board, Toronto, for public inspection. Since October these probabilities appeared in the Toronto afternoon papers, and in December were furnished to the Telegraph Companies, and were forwarded by them for publication in the various papers in Ontario and at Montreal. It is intended shortly to extend these probabilities so as to include the Maritime Provinces. According to the Report, the probabilities were, with few exceptions, verified. I understand that it is the intention of the Department to utilize the probabilities in the interests of agriculture.

Yours, &c., H. J. CUNDALL, Meteorological Observer and Superintendent

MR. MACPHERSON'S PAMPHLET.

To the Editor of the Mail:—

SIR—The Cabinet Ministers who noticed my pamphlet at their picnics, and their friends and organs throughout the country who essayed to weaken its force, became conscious early in the picnic season that, notwithstanding their recourse to the most barefaced misrepresentations, they had utterly failed to disprove any of my statements.

Unable to answer the pamphlet they turned upon me, its author, and emptied upon my head their copious vocabulary of disparagement, detraction and coarse abuse. Still they were not satisfied. They knew, and what was more distressing to them, they felt that the people knew, that they had not by their individual and combined attacks shaken, much less refuted, any one of the charges of political treachery and perfidy, of administrative blundering and incapacity, and of departmental extravagance and corruption made by me against the leading members of the Government.

When the Mini-terialists discovered that they could not answer or evade the damaging truths contained in the pamphlet—which to their intense vexation they saw in the hands of so many who attended their picnics—they seem to have bethought themselves of endeavoring to lessen its authority with the public by alleging that I was not the author, and that I had been guilty of the contemptible conduct of taking credit to myself for the work of another.

The Prime Minister, Mr. McKenzie, to his shame be it said, lowered himself so far as to give public utterance to this petty calumny. In a speech delivered by him at Galt, on the 20th September, and published in to day's Globe, he is reported to have said: "Senator McPherson a short time ago published a pamphlet which somebody wrote." And again: "The gentleman who wrote Mr. McPherson's pamphlet." The Ministerial press has done its utmost to circulate this absurd falsehood, and which I here declare to be an unqualified falsehood. Personally I am altogether indifferent to this and to the other slanders which have been showered upon me, and I only notice and contradict this one to prevent its being made to serve in ever so small a degree the purpose of its originators and propagators, which is the diversion of the public mind from the consideration of the facts submitted by me in the pamphlet. If the influence of the pamphlet with the public is enhanced in the smallest degree by the supposition that I had some knowledge of the subjects upon which I wrote, I shall not permit that influence to be diminished by allowing even so contemptible a misstatement as that made by Mr. Mackenzie to remain uncontradicted. Mr. Mackenzie will surely feel it due to himself either to state good grounds for his charge against me or retract it. If he does not do either one or the other—and I know that he cannot do the former—he will stand convicted of having cast a mean and pitiful imputation, an act especially creditable to one occupying his present high position. I shall reserve to a future occasion my comments upon Mr. Mackenzie's extraordinary utterances touching the contents of my pamphlet. Yours, &c., D. L. MACPHERSON, Toronto, 9th Oct., 1877.

PERJURY.—A Montreal dispatch says:—A woman named Walsh who swore she saw Hackett shot pleaded guilty to a charge of perjury on Sunday last.

WRECK AND LOSS OF LIFE.—Telegraphic intelligence was received yesterday that a trading schooner belonging to this port (name not ascertained) was wrecked at Langley Island, St. Pierre, on the 5th inst. Among those on board were C. A. Hutchins, Esq., of this city, and Messrs. Bowers, Mulcahy, Wm. Mitchell and a Mrs. Corkum, also believed to be of Halifax. The telegram, which is from Mr. Hutchins, states that Mrs. Corkum, Mulcahy, Bowers and one seaman were drowned, Mr. Hutchins and Mr. Mitchell were saved, and wandered about seven days before they obtained needful shelter and means of communication with their friends. Considerable excitement was caused by the receipt of this, to some extent, in definite news, and further particulars are anxiously looked for.—Hull's Mail.
