Plans Finalized For Rotary District Conference Here

"It is within the power of the members of this club to bring distinction to the city and Province at the District Conference here next week by extending true hospitality to the delegates for the spread of goodwill, understanding and fellowship," General chairman Edwin Johnstone told Rotarians at the weekly luncheon meeting at the Charlottetown Hotel yesterday.

Mr. Johnstone described in detail the plans formulated by the various committees for the housing and entertaining of the visitors, and the necessary arrangements for the carrying out of the business of the Conference.

Four banquets will mark the outstanding features in entertainment. Rotarians will be on the boats at Borden and Wood Island to welcome the delegates and give them instructions as to routes to be followed to the city, which will have special Rotary sign markings. The guests will arrive in a flag bedecked city with Rotary welcome signs and strings of coloured lights. They will receive special police protection and parking priveleges.

Sunday evening an informal reception will be held at the Charlottetown Hotel. On Monday morning, all delegates staying at the Charlottetown and members of the Charlottetown and Summerside clubs will march to the skirl of the pipers to the Prince Edward Theatre, where an official welcome will be tendered by the Lieutenant Governor, the Premier and the Mayor. Leo Golden of Hartford, Conn., representing Rotary International and Rotary Governor Alan MacDonald will be presented with keys of the city by Mayor Stewart.

Committee heads speaking briefly on their work were: Bill Reid, Randy Manning, Jim Montgomery, Canon J. T. Ibbott, and George Rogers reporting of special road markings for Bill Nevins in his absence.

Alan Holman made a stirring appeal on behalf of the Blood Donors clinic to be held at the Clover Club on Wednesday and Thursday. He stressed that "We are away in debt to the Blood Bank, a debt that should be liquidated at the earliest possible date." The Kinsmen are giving leadership in a parade to the Armouries clinic on Wednesday night in which Rotary and all other service clubs should join as a matter of duty," he said.

Lowell Hancock of the Summerside Rotary Club, who will be song leader at the Convention, conducted several peppy numbers on the theme of Rotary. President Earle Cannon and past president Frank Arnett, also of the Summerside Club were present and announced the intention of that club entering wholeheartedly into the work of the Conference. Rotarian Dr. Ed. Wilson of St. John's, Nfld. was also a guest. All were welcomed by president Hal Shaw who presided.

Time out for the Rotary Anns to see the city and do some shopping has been arranged. Through the kindness of Rotarian Alan Holman, they will be treated to coffee at Holmans. Rotary Anns will be in attendance at the Art Exhibit at the Civic Centre. Dr. Will R. Bird will be the first conference luncheon speaker and will be heard at noon Monday. The piper will pipe the guests to the head table on this and all similar occasions. Special music will be by Lowell Handcock of the Summerside club. The ladies are serving tea at the Y.M.C.A.

Dr. A. E. Kerr, president of Dalhousie University will be guest speaker at the banquet at 6.30 p. m. Special music will be by Mrs. Pauline Fear. The chairman will be president Hal Shaw. At 9 p.m., His Honour Lieutenant Governor Prowse and Mrs. Prowse will receive at Government House.

Following the sessions on Tuesday morning the noon luncheon meeting will be addressed by Very Rev. Father Durney of Kentville, N. S. President elect Frank Curtis will preside. The conference will close with the Governor's Ball at the Charlottetown Hotel.

He attended school at Queen Square and took an active interest in sports.

Nationalists Reject Red Offer of Talks

TAIPEI, Formosa, (Reuters) — Nationalist China Monday rejected a Chinese Communist offer to hold direct negotiations with the Nationalists on an "internal and general" basis.

National Foreign Minister George Yeh said "it is not worth any comment" when asked for his reaction to the Communist stand.

V. K. Krisha Menon, Indian diplomat, had said in New Delhi Monday that the Communist regime had no objection to negotiating with Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek on an internal basis.

Menon was speaking of the results of his recent visit to Peiping, in which he was said to have discussed the Formosa issue and general problems of Far East tension with Communist Premier Chou En-Lai.

20 Injured When Bus Rams Highways Truck

QUEBEC (CP)—More than 20 persons were injured Monday, none seriously, when the front of a provincial transport bus was sliced open in a collision with a Quebec roads department truck some 50 miles north of here.

Police said six of the injured required hospital treatment. Four injured passengers were taken by ambulance to hospital in Chicoutimi while the bus and truck drivers were brought to Quebec.

Police said it was impossible to estimate the exact number of persons injured. Many were treated on the scene and returned to Quebec in private cars.

The bus, owned by provincial transport on lease to Autobus Saguenay Ltd., carried 36 passengers. Bound from Montreal to Chicoutimi, it left Quebec City on the final leg of its trip shortly after 2 p.m. EDT. The accident occurred at 4 p.m.

According to eye-witnesses the truck, a road-scraper attached to its front, was levelling off a shoulder of the road when the accident occurred.

The bus apparently tried to pass the truck when a car came along in the opposite direction. The bus-driver, identified as Lio Pedneault, swerved in to pull behind the truck again and the front of the bus struck the truck's rear.

Parts of the bus were hurled 200 feet by the impact. The wreckage was later towed to Quebec City and another bus was sent from here to pick up stranded passengers and finish the journey.

Residents Of St. John's Stay In City During Raid

By STEWARD MacLEOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Streets of this island seaport were deserted for a half-hour Monday during a civil defence exercise that called for a mass evacuation of the city.

Authorities reported that the planned exodus from the city was "a success" although traffic was described as "light." Most residents sought cover and took their vehicles off the streets as sirens screamed and Canadian and American planes scheduled to make a mock attack on the city were grounded by bad weather.

There was no accurate tabulation of the persons who left the city in trucks, cars and buses but the figure was said to be far short of the expected 50,000.

100 CARS

An RCMP count at one of the main exits showed about 100 cars passed constables after sirens had sounded the first warning of the simulated air attack.

Participation in the biggest exercise ever tried by a Canadian city was voluntary but all persons who could get away from work were asked to co-operate.

Stores were closed as usual Monday and civil servants were given the afternoon off to take part.

Most residents stayed in their homes when the "red alert" sounded. Cars that didn't join in the evacuation were quickly put in driveways and motorists scurried for shelter.

All highways leading from the city were guarded by special constables and city police and civil defence patrols roamed through the streets. Fire trucks roared to the scenes of imaginary blazes and first aid equipment was taken to "disaster areas" by Red Cross and St. John ambulance workers.

TERMED A SUCCESS

The only persons seen on the streets during the half-hour raid period were Portuguese sailors who apparently hadn't been told of the plan. They are visiting the city in connection with festivities marking the discovery of the grand banks fishing grounds.

Major P. J. Cashin, director of civil defence, said the operation was "a success".

Earlier he said he hoped that 50,000 of the city's 70,000 residents would evacuate their homes.

"Although the actual number was far below that, most people did get under cover," he said.

Begin Fund For Exploration of Mountains

By Emerson Chapin

LONDON, (Reuters) — The conquest of Mt. Everest, which stirred the imagination of countless mountaineers, now will help provide the financial means by making many of their dreams come true.

British mountaineers and geographers today announced establishment of a special foundation to promote world-wide exploration of mountain areas. Called the Mt. Everest Foudation, the new organization said in its initial statement that its purpose will be to encourage enthusiastic and adventurous mountaineers and mountaineering scientists.

It will provide financial support for expeditions prepared and competent to tackle explorations in "the mountain regions of the earth."

INTEREST AT PEAK

The announcement comes at a time when interest in mountaineering already has surged to its highest level in history. Spurred on by the 1953 successful British assault on Everest, the world's highest peak, Italian and French climbers have surmounted two more of the five top giants.

And funds of the new foundation already are helping a British party in its attack on 28,168-foot Kanchenjunga, the world's third-highest mountain, Sir John Hunt, leader of the successful Everest team, has disclosed.

The foundation is a trust sponsored by Britain's Alpine Club and the Royal Geographical Society. Its "substantial" funds are the royalties on Hunt's book on the conquest of Everest and proceeds of motion pictures and lectures about the historic climb.

The foundation warned that it will "not normally expect to make more than a limited contribution to an expedition's expenses." But its help is likely to mean the difference between success and failure for many groups falling just short of the resources needed for expensive expeditions to distant mountain regions.

The British team now is in the early stages of its attack on Kanchenjunga. Lhotse, 27,890-foot south peak of Everest, is also due to feel the climber's ice-axe soon.

The Kashmir giant, Nanga Parbat, yielded to an Austro-German party in 1953. Only last week the world's fifth highest summit was reached when a French expedition led by Jean Franco, announced the conquest of Makalu's jagged 27,900-foot peak.

Rotary Critical of Performing Rights Society

OTTAWA, (CP) — The Rotary Club of Toronto Monday acused Canadian performing rights societies of a lack of charitable feeling.

The charge was made in a brief to the royal commission on patents, industrial designs, copyright and trade marks urging that fraternal organizations should be exempted from payment of fees for music played at their meetings or at events held to raise money for charity.

The Composers, Authors and Publishers Association of Canada and BMI Canada Ltd. have urged the deletion of a section of the Copyright Act under which churches, schools and fraternal organizations are not required to pay fees on music played at charitable events.

"This is further evidence of their lack of charitable feeling and supports the view of this club that the law protecting religious, charitable and fraternal organizations should not be done away with but should be strengthened and broadened.," the brief said.

Sees Canada's Literature "Academic And Rootless"

TORONTO, (CP)—F. M. Salter, professor of English language at the University of Alberta, Monday deplored Canadian literature as "academic and rootless."

Addressing more than 100 university professors and teachers from many parts of the Dominion at the annual meeting of the Humanities Association of Canada, Professor Salter urged all interested in literature to "dig out the traditions of folk poetry and folklore on which any healthy literature must depend."

"The best in the arts springs direct from the people," he said. "If we are ever to create a distinctive Canadian literature we must anchor ourselves to the Canadian way of life."

Recalling his childhood in New Brunswick, Professor Salter said that Canada is rich in poetry, folklore and superstition which has never been studied or collected. No other country had been so negligent of its heritage and no other literature remained so ignorant of its origins.

COLLECT FOLK POETRY

He advised the humanities association to institute a regular periodical aimed at collecting and making known Canadian folk poetry "before it is irrevocably lost in the onslaught of radio and television."

Members of the association, founded in 1950 for the purpose of fostering the widest interest in the humanities in Canada, were quick to debate Professor Salter's thesis.

"The folk ballad as it has been brought to birth in Canada is poor stuff," Professor Henry Alexander, head of the English department at Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., said. "Apart from the folk ballads that reflect a British inheritance and possess antiquarian interest, the modern ballad is a very poor specimen of writing—one couldn't call it literature."

"I hold we should do all we can to search out our inheritance of poetry, whatever its quality," said Fred Cogswell, assistant professor of English at the University of New Brunswick.

BUSH-BALLADS

Two speakers, Dr. C. T. Bissell, vice-president of the University of Toronto and associate professor of English at University College, and John Mathews, graduate of the University of Melbourne and fellow of University College, spoke of Australian literature which they said was founded on a tradition of bush-ballads. Dr. Bissell suggested Canadian literature had gone to the other extreme, isolating itself in universities and ignoring the country's natural life.

Commends Enthusiasm Of Red Shield Campaigners

"I am happy to see the people of a community interested in the purpose of uplifting and assisting those who require attention, such as the Salvation Army is devoting time, talent and money to," Premier Matheson, honorary chairman of the Red Shield campaign committee, said at a supper meeting in the Salvation Army Citadel last evening.

"If you can do a good job, and I am confident that you can as in the past, the immediate effect is much better than can be done by Government," the Premier said. "By arousing a sustained interest in the part of those who give, you will strengthen the hand of those who may have to give later."

Hon. B. Earle MacDonald, member of the Advisory Board of the Salvation Army, said: "I am never reluctant to approach anyone to ask for assistance for the great work of the Salvation Army. It is not a difficult task, and the kindly interest taken in their activities will count in the final analysis of life."

In announcing the start of the city canvass this morning, City Chairman, Major George W. Craig, E.D., expressed his pleasure at meeting more than 80 workers at this get-together, who were evidently ready to accept their responsibilities and put forth every effort to assure success in the campaign on behalf of the Red Shield and Sunset Lodge.

Provincial Commander Norman Lowther was greatly pleased and encouraged to see several new volunteers accepting leadership in the campaign. "A thorough and vigorous coverage will assure success," he said.

Tom DeBlois, Special Names chairman, reported splendid success on the coverage so far which he described as slightly above that of last year. More than half of the cards have yet to be accounted for, the delay being due to the election activities.

"The Salvation Army campaign is always well received by our citizens as they know, and many can testify, that they do a grand job at home, and have done a grand job overseas," he said.

Major Stanley of the Salvation Army described the work of the Army in its varied interests which are well known to most of those who subscribe to the end they have in view. He was particularly grateful for the leadership given by men in every walk in life in the campaign for the upkeep of Sunset Lodge and the general work undertaken by the Army under the Red Shield Banner.

The enjoyable chicken supper to which the workers sat down was arranged by the ladies of Memorial Orange Lodge under leadership given by Mrs. A. W. Downe as convener.

NOT RIGHT TREATMENT

LONDON (Reuters)—The Soviet newspaper Pravda, as reported by Moscow radio, Monday attacked the ministry of heavy machine building for "not treating inventors right" and said there was too great a time lag in application of inventions. In several other ministries, it added, inventions were "shelved for years."

CARS ARE OUR Line

by Earle G. MacLeod

There must be a moral, or a lesson, in this story somewhere, but I'll pass it along as is just because it tickled my fancy.

It happened a few weeks ago in the town of New Milton, in England. A man named Charlie Chandler had an old car, badly in need of an overhaul. He decided to do it himself, stripped the engine and the rear axle and did the needed repairs.

Then he and his wife set out for a spin. It was an English model, of course, and he put it in first, then second, third and fourth gears. All was fine - - - except that the car was going backwards. Then he put it in reverse - - - and it went forward. Instead of having four speeds ahead and one back, Charlie had four speeds back and one forward.

I think I know what make of car it was, from the mishap, but it could only happen to a very old model. He had assembled the differential the wrong way round.

This won't happen, needless to say, with any of our cars. Before they go out on the lot our quality used cars are checked and examined and put through their paces. But, just to make sure your wife won't be able to say the car was in reverse when it shot forward through the garage, take the model of your choice out for a thorough-going test drive before you buy. Put your head under the hood if you want, and check the important little things like the doors, windows and upholstery. But please - - - don't tamper with the differential.

Last night we concluded a most successful opening day of our big sale by auctioning off a 1949 Ford four-door sedan. We had this car on our list at $595, it was purchased for $400. There is many a bargain around when you know where to look.

We continue the sale today and there are many, many good buys to see. This evening another car goes to the auction blockwhere genial Wendall Beaton will preside.

Good Motoring.

Earle G. MacLeod

But Wasn't Last Week Safety Week?

Yes, last week was Safety Week on the highways but this week is safety week for the buyer of used cars on Allison MacLeod's car lot down on Cumberland and Kent Streets.

It's no accident that the car pictured in the photo above is upside down and its no accident either that the prices on used cars down at Allison MacLeod's are upside down and well down in every way you wish to use the word.

It was no accident yesterday that the car salesmen down at MacLeod's were kept on the hop dealing with customers who were eager to buy cars and who knew where to get them at the lowest prices.

This week the prices and bargains on used cars at Allison MacLeod's are really tipsy-turvy. The prices are so low and the values so high that a customer who buys a car from Allison MacLeod literally drives out walking on air.

Although yesterday was a big day in used car business at MacLeod's, there are still plenty of top-notch values left. If you get the buy of a lifetime in a used car at Allison MacLeod's this week remember it will be no accident. The prices have been cut so low that you must get much more than value for your money.

And also remember that each evening at 7:30 one used car will be auctioned off. This is the first time this has happened on P.E.I. This is the buyer's chance to price his own car, a privilege which Allison MacLeod's are only too glad to offer.

The car in the above photo may be seen at the corner of MacLeod's car lot on Cumberland and Kent Streets. Advt.

How much of a Diamond is lost in the cutting?

It takes 10 TONS of ore to produce ONE CARAT of rough diamond. Then ONE-HALF of that is sacrified to cut out flaws and to bring out the fire and brilliance of the gem.
