Mr. Nicholson Defended.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

DEAR SIR,—The attack on the respected candidate for this Council District, Mr. Nicholson, which appears in the last issue of that disrespectful and disrespected sheet the Patriot, is but in keeping with the tenor of its profane and wish-washly productions. Mr. Nicholson's honesty, manliness and christian qualities present too stubborn a front for even Henry Lawson to oppose; and he is compelled to confine himself to two thrusts, viz: inability and servility. As regards the first, reference can be made to Mr. Nicholson's representation of his district for the past four years. His remarks in the House were always characterized by common sense and pointedness, and his sound opinions and gentlemanly demeanor in debate, elicited respect from members on both sides of the House. Unprejudiced parties all agree that the Belfast District was never better represented than during the past four years; and "when the opportunity offered," the true electors of the Fourth District showed their appreciation of Mr. Nicholson's ability, by returning him again to represent them; but the Grit mortgages and jagged voters of Charlottetown it was who, by counteracting the will of the people, relieved him of his public duties and sent him back to private life. Those who attend the meetings at the present campaign, and listen to the addresses delivered by the candidates, can easily perceive Mr. Nicholson's superiority over Mr. Munn, who "is a man of more than average ability, and who has as good a knowledge of the needs of the county as any man that can be found in it." As regards servility, I find, on referring to the Journal of the House for 1880, that Mr. Nicholson stood, in division, opposed to his leader on four or five important occasions, whilst differing frequently on less important points; and it followed him on all other occasions, it was not because he had "no will or mind of his own," but because he knew that his leader was legislating according to the people's wishes; and, speaking of servile flattery, where can one more servile be found than Mr. Munn, whom Mr. Lawson takes occasion to laud to the skies?

Mr. Lawson designates his article "A Mistake," and well he may—a fact which will more fully realize when the intelligent electors of the District resent the insult offered to their friend, in the most emphatic way.

Yours respectfully,
Nov. 7, 1882.

Stanley Notes.

Captain John McKay, of Stanley, New London, has just returned home, after piloting the barque "Annie," belonging to John Yeo, Esq., from Port Hill to Buc-touche, where she is loading deals for Great Britain. This speaks bad for the oat trade, as heretofore she carried oats since she was launched.

Messrs. Henry and James Squarebridge are doing a good business shipping oats to Miramichi, and when "Lilian Bourke," owned by G. R. Garrett, Esq., returns, we expect lively competition in the oat market.

Appalling Murder in Ottawa.

One of the most appalling murders ever perpetrated in the Ottawa district occurred on Thursday last, but the news of the heartrending affair did not reach the city until the 7th. It appears that on the day mentioned a cripple named Robertson, son of a Vaekleek Hill man, left his home on a hunting expedition. Not returning, the some evening a party of friends organized and went in search of him. His mother accompanied them, but no success was achieved until Saturday, when his mother discovered the unfortunate man in his own room. His skull was fractured, evidently by some blunt instrument, and his face and body also bore marks of harsh treatment. It is thought that after being pummeled he was left to die in the woods by the villain who attacked him, but subsequently recovered sufficient strength to crawl home. The Crown Attorney has the matter in hand, and a detective is now at work on the case.

A paper on "The Teacher Out of School," read by Mr. Byington, Principal of the Manitoba Normal School, at a recent teachers' association, contained a number of good suggestions. The following are worthy of record:—The teacher should display the qualities of a gentleman in every act and word, whether on or off the school premises. He should occasionally take part in the out-door sports of the children, thus manifesting an interest in their games. He should chat occasionally with them on the subjects of the greatest interest to them and about which they know most, such as their dogs, kites, horses, chickens, trades, farming, &c. He might sometimes with advantage arrange for short excursions with special classes on Saturdays. He may sometimes profitably conduct a "Current Events Class," with the newspaper for textbook. He should visit his constituents, the children's parents, rich and poor. He (or she) should leave no part of the full man, physically, mental or moral, undeveloped to its fullest extent, and should on all occasions in school and out, practice the motto, Fac justitiam, erit cælum.

Count von Moltke celebrated last Thursday the 83rd anniversary of his birthday, and on Sunday the 25th anniversary of his elevation to the office of Chief of the Grand General Staff of the Prussian army. The late old Field-Marshal is now living quietly at his residence, Berlin.

Public attention in England is now being turned to several big undertakings, whose influence, though not international, are none the less likely to prove of lasting national benefit. The promoters of the scheme for connecting Manchester with the sea by a ship canal are vigorously pushing on their preliminary enquiries and estimates, while a counter enterprise which contemplates doing the same for Northwich, Cheshire, by means of the estuary of the Dee, is also talked of. It is likewise probable that London ere long will have its coveted and long-talked-of "Down-bridge connection" as the Thames, by means of a bridge near Tower Hill, supplemented, it may be, by two tunnels farther eastward.

Two hundred dozen Plates, one hundred and fifty dozen Cups and Saucers, and a lot of Dinner Sets, will be sold through the agency of the late Mr. W. H. P. & Co., of London.

A Sepulchre of Fire.

DESTRUCTION OF THE POOR ASYLUM, HALIFAX. HELPLESS INMATES FALL INTO THE FLAMES.

HALIFAX, Nov. 7—2 a. m.

A fire broke out at midnight in the eastern end of the Provincial Poor Asylum, an immense twelve-story brick structure in the south eastern suburbs of the city, containing about 400 people, and at 1 30 a. m., half of the building was a mass of flames. The fire originated in the bakery where there were twenty cords of wood stored, and the flames catching this then spread with lightning rapidity and soon had that part of the building used as the hospital in its clutches. The inmates rushed about the building in great confusion, seemingly out of their senses, and the work of getting them out was very difficult. It is thought that most of those confined in the hospital have been saved, but it is feared that a number of lives are lost. The whole city fire brigade is now at the scene of the conflagration but can do little, hardly any water being obtainable.

Later—3 a. m.

About midnight, while all hands were sleeping, the fire broke out in the bake house in the basement of the asylum. It is one of the largest buildings in the Maritime Provinces. Exactly how the fire arose is not very clear, but the smoke of smoldering wood spread through the building into the crowded dormitories, and

CAUSED THE UTMOST TERROR among the 400 or 500 inmates of the institution. There was no immediate danger so the officials of the asylum did not at once take steps to remove the people. The flames in the basement of the main building spread to the elevator, reaching to the top of the twelve-story building, and running up this draft with fearful velocity, set fire to all the upper stories in a few seconds. In the tenth story was the hospital of the institution and in it were about

SEVENTY HELPLESS PATIENTS, most of whom were unable to leave their beds. People early on the scene (the building is a mile or more out of town) were engaged in moving the blind and decrepit from other parts of the building, not thinking that the hospital was in immediate danger. When they heard the great roar of flames and saw them burst out from the very windows of the hospital itself, half a dozen patients were got out through a passage leading into the wings, but the majority of them perished. Some of them

IN THE FRENZY OF DEATH, dragged themselves from their beds and were seen to dash themselves against the windows and cling to the sashes till the flames licked them off, and they fell back into the seething oven before the eyes of the hundreds far down below, powerless to aid them.

Attempts were made to erect ladders, but they were too short, and the flames and falling sate and melted lead from the roof, and bricks from the chimney drove the firemen back again and again.

There is no doubt the whole building will be destroyed, as the fire is now beyond control of the firemen.

Current Notes.

In France a secret dynamite factory has been discovered.

There is a boom in real estate in Montreal. Properties offered have realized good prices.

All the English counties except Cornwall, Cumberland, and Lancashire have less live stock than they had thirteen years ago.

Heavy floods have caused great loss of life and property in the central provinces of Japan, and in the south-west cattle plague is killing the cattle. The financial position of the island is exceedingly bad; currency is at 60 per cent. discount, several national banks have failed, and the conduct of the whole banking system is regarded with suspicion.

It is estimated that from 450,000 to 500,000 tons of charcoal are annually made in the United States. No better way to get through forests: It was this which, more than anything else, deprived Ireland of herds. Few countries are now more barren of timber, although tradition avers that a squirrel could once travel from tree to tree from Antrim to Kerry.

NEW YORK REPORTS.—The exports of domestic produce from New York during the past week were quite small, their total being but $5,855,529. The exports of nearly all the chief articles of domestic produce were light; but the outward movement of hops, notwithstanding the unusually high prices prevailing, continues liberal, the shipments to Liverpool for the week amounting to 3,443 bales valued at $449,724. Since January 1, the exports aggregate $282,203,894, against $317,481,481 for the same time in 1881, showing a decrease of $35,000,000.
