Ask For Ayer's

Sarsaparilla, and be sure you get it, when you want the best blood-purifier. With its forty years of unexampled success in the cure of Blood Diseases, you can make no mistake in preferring Ayer's to any other. The fore-runner of modern blood medicines, Ayer's Sarsaparilla is still the most popular, being in greater demand than all others combined.

Sarsaparilla

"Ayer's Sarsaparilla is selling faster than ever before. I never hesitate to recommend it."—George W. Whitman, Druggist, Albany, Ind.

"I am sure in saying that my sales of Ayer's Sarsaparilla far exceed those of any other, and it gives thorough satisfaction."—L. H. Bush, Des Moines, Iowa.

"Ayer's Sarsaparilla and Ayer's Pills are the best selling medicines in my store. I can recommend them conscientiously."—C. Bickhaus, Pharmacist, Roseland, Ill.

"We have sold Ayer's Sarsaparilla here for over thirty years and always recommend it when asked to name the best blood-purifier."—W. T. McLean, Druggist, Augusta, Ohio.

"I have sold your medicines for the last seventeen years, and always keep them in stock, as they are staples. There is nothing so good for the youthful blood as Ayer's Sarsaparilla."—R. L. Parker, Fox Lake, Wis.

"Ayer's Sarsaparilla gives the best satisfaction of any medicine I have in stock. I recommend it, or, as the Doctors say, 'I prescribe it over the counter.' It never fails to meet the cases for which I recommend it, even where the doctors' prescriptions have been of no avail."—C. F. Cahoun, Monmouth, Kansas.

Confronted by a Monster Snake.

THE CAPTAIN WAS SCARED, BUT THE PYTHON WAS SECURED.

(From the New York Herald, Aug. 24.)

The monstrous python which has had full and complete charge of the main hold of the little barque Monrovia for the past four months, was captured on Wednesday night by William Kimbel, a porter employed at No. 60 South Street, by the use of chloroform. The snake was finally confined in a strong box and removed to the upper deck.

The vessel sailed from the port of Monrovia, Africa, early last April, with a cargo for New York. Captain Rogers was in command on that voyage, and purchased from a party of natives several large pythons. The boxes containing the snakes were placed in the hold before the vessel left port, but, after she had been at sea about a week, the captain thought it better to have them on deck. While the crew were engaged in the work, one of the boxes fell through the hatch into the hold, and its occupant, one of the largest of the pythons, twenty-five feet in length, was liberated. The hatches were battened down and nothing more thought of the matter until this port was reached. The captain supposed the snake had gone overboard. Nothing was seen of the snake during the unloading, after which Captain Rogers left her and Captain Chase took his place. Captain Rogers neglected to speak to Captain Chase about the snake, and the latter went rummaging around the piles of rubbish that had accumulated in the hold without the slightest sense of danger. Words can hardly express his surprise when he, pulled a pile of old canvas out of a corner and a monster snake raised his head about three feet from the deck and calmly gazed into the thunderstruck Captain's eyes. The Captain is a man of action. He dropped the tools he carried and ran up the ladder. Captain Chase said yesterday: "I had just pulled the pile of old canvas to one side when the snake rose up and looked me full in the face. I ran up the ladder and met a porter named Kimbel on the deck and inquired the way to the nearest animal dealer. He said he was not afraid of the snake and would capture it. When Kimbel went down into the hold the snake was coiled up in a corner and he simply threw a lot of canvas saturated with chloroform over it, and in a few minutes with the help of a couple of fellows deposited it in a box."

The snake has not dined for about five months, and probably would not hesitate to swallow a man before taking another long sleep.

What is more valuable when it is upside down? The figure 6. Before slates were in use people multiplied on the face of the earth. A boy's description of having a tooth pulled expressed it about as well as anything we have seen: "Just before it killed me the tooth came out."

Winks—"Has your wife a cheerful disposition?" Blinks—"Oh, yes; very cheerful. Last night when I was dancing around the room on one foot, after having stepped on a tack, she laughed till her sides ached."

Brown—"Ah, so that is young Jones. What profession does he follow; may I ask?" Smith—"Oh, he is in the sugar trade with his father." Brown—"Ah, indeed. It's sanded down from father to son, I suppose." Smith thinks it over.

"Poor John; he was a kind and forbearing husband," sobbed John's widow, on her return from the funeral. "Yes," said a sympathizing neighbor; "but it is all for the best. You must try to comfort yourself, my dear, with the thought that your husband is at peace at last."

In a house in the Highlands the other day a visitor happened to remark that a thermometer—notice one hanging on the wall—was a very useful instrument to have indoors. The mistress of the house replied:—"Ay, Ay—oor Jeems brocht it in the other night for the heat o' the room. For ma ain part, hoover, I dinna see that it makes it a bit warmer."

Weemin Folks are Fules.—McTaggart has a brother in New York from whom an American journal is received by the grocer in his Scottish home. One arrived the other day, and Sandy, opening it with alacrity, prepared to read some of the choicest bits to Kirsty, who was busy with her knitting. "Eh! bit the American chieftain are awfu' cute," he exclaimed; "here's a doctor in New York says that hauf the weeman folks are fules!" "Well, he's no' far wrang," said Kirsty, quietly. "Dy'e ye say sae?" retorted her surprised spouse. "Oo, ay; ma' than hauf the weeman mairy," was the answer, and the reading was suspended.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—There was a great upheaval in the wheat market to-day, occasioned by the receipt of what was claimed to be an authoritative forecast of the estimates of the Vienna Grain Congress on the European wheat crop. The results were so astounding that they were accepted with extreme doubt when first ascertained. Excepting Turkey, Greece, Spain and Portugal, for which no figures are received, Europe shows a full total of 892,357,000 bushels, against 1,124,090,000 bushels last year and 1,114,329,000 bushels average crop for five years. This makes an apparent European deficiency of 321,742,000 bushels, as compared with last year, and of 222,622,000 bushels as compared with the average of five years.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—When the alleged estimates of the Vienna Congress became known at the Produce exchange here to-day there was considerable excitement. Grain went up one cent over Saturday's closing and one and a half cents over the lowest figure of the day. The market gradually settled and peace reigned before the close of the day.

VIENNA, Aug. 26.—A report just published shows the Austrian grain yield has decreased as follows: Wheat, 15,000,000 hectolitres; barley, 12,000,000 hectolitres; rye, 11,000,000 hectolitres; oats, 11,000,000 hectolitres.

FREDERICTON, Aug. 28.—The closing proceedings of the Baptist Convention were very interesting. Rev. Mr. Saunders, Rev. Mr. Higgins, and Mrs. Higgins, missionaries, told of the work, and Miss Fitch also spoke. Rev. G. O. Gates called for volunteers for missionary work, and one young man and two young women arose. Rev. Mr. Crawley said the Fredericton Church had decided to add $500 to the convention—they had already given $1,000. Dr. Sawyer, Dr. Saunders, Dr. Day and Prof. Kierstead were appointed a committee to confer with the Baptist re-participation in the mission work; also resolved to take collections in the churches in aid of the scheme, and also to endeavour to raise $100 for North-west missions.

A Christian greeting was ordered to be sent to Rev. David Crandall of Springfield, who is over 90 years old, and the oldest minister in the Dominion. The usual thanks were voted, and the Convention adjourned. About three hundred left by boat to-day for St. John.

Golden Grains.

To deal frankly, honestly and firmly with all men turns out best in the "long run."

It has been truly and tenderly said, "Even that perfect petition, the Lord's Prayer, gains something from the fact that every man who repeats it remembers that he learned it at his mother's knee."

The responsibility of any wrong action begins long before the action is committed; it deals with the source and the growth of motives. It is not enough to say we should resist the motive which urges us to do wrong. This is, of course, true; but it is also true that we should not have permitted the motive to attain such strength. We know not what particular temptation may assail us next month or next year; but we can so order our present life as to weaken wrong desires and withdraw the force of evil influences.

THIRTEEN GRAVE MISTAKES.—To yield to immaterial trifles. To look for perfections in our own actions. To endeavour to mould all dispositions alike. To expect uniformity of opinion in this world. To expect to be able to understand everything. To believe only what our finite minds can grasp. To look for judgment and experience in youth. To measure the enjoyment of others by one's own. To make allowances for the infirmities of others. To worry ourselves and others with what cannot be remedied. To consider everything impossible that we cannot perform. Not to alleviate all that needs alleviation, so far as lies in our power. To set up your own standard of right and wrong, and judge people accordingly.

WORTH REMEMBERING.—That the tongue is not steel, yet it cuts. That cheerfulness is the weather of the heart. That sleep is the best stimulant, a nervous safe for all to take. That it is better to be able to say "no" than to be able to read Latin. That cold air is not necessarily pure, nor warm air necessarily impure. That a cheerful face is nearly as good for an invalid as healthy weather. That advice is like castor oil, easy enough to give, but hard enough to take. That it is not enough to keep the poor in mind; give them something to keep you in mind. That life's real heroes and heroines are those who bear their own burdens bravely, and give a helping hand to those around them. That hasty words often rankle in the wound which injury gives, and that soft words assuage it; forgiving cures, and forgetting takes away the hurt.
