

THE WOMAN CHIEF.

Continued.

At Janesville I had the bill changed, and after taking seven dollars and thirty-five cents for her fare, I gave her the balance, which was forty-two dollars and sixty-five cents, not waiting for her to count it, as I should have done. Upon coming by her about twenty minutes later, she stopped me and said:

'I gave you a $50 bill?'
'Yes, madam.'
'The fare was seven dollars and thirty-five cents,' said she.
'Seven thirty-five,' I answered.
'That would leave $42.65, wouldn't it?' she asked.

'Yes, madam, it would,' I replied, wondering what she was coming at.
'Well, you didn't give me but twenty-two dollars,' said she.

'You have made a mistake in counting, madam,' I answered. 'I gave you the full amount, I am positive of it.'

'But I say you didn't.'
'You are mistaken,' I said.
'I am, eh! You are going to try and beat me out of over twenty dollars, but you can't do it; no sir.'

'I am not beating or trying to beat you out of a cent,' I answered.
Her wrath was rapidly rising, and not wishing to have a scene, I left the car.

I informed Abe of the new game she was trying to play, when he gave utterance as follows:

'If you let that old she devil beat you, you're not half as smart as I think you be. She is playing some deep game, she is. I thought it funny when she so quietly paid her fare after making so much fuss. Just like as not the bill was counterfeit.'

Abe was right.
She was playing a deep game, and perhaps the bill was counterfeit, but I had got rid of it, left it with the agent at Janesville.

At A—the telegraph operator handed me a bundle of bills, which had been left with him, asking me to give them to the agent at C—, with the request to have them posted up conspicuously.

Such transactions were common, and I did not ask the nature of them. They were tied around with a small string.

After we left A—I gave the bills to the baggageman on the train, telling him to leave them at C—with his report, for I feared I might forget to deliver them.

About two hours after I wanted a piece of string, but could not find any on the train. Generally there was quite a large amount in the lamp-box, but not a single piece now. I discovered the bills (which were handed me at A—) upon the rack in the baggage car, and unwound the string from them and placed them back.

Going into the car sometime after, I found they had fallen on the floor. Picking them up I noticed the heading which read:

'ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS REWARD.'

The rest of the bill was as follows:
'The above reward will be paid for the arrest and conviction of the counterfeiters, who are now operating in this part of the country. The head or chief of the gang is a woman.'

Signed—Allen Pinkerton, Chief of Pinkerton's Detective Bureau, Chicago, Ill.'

I read the latter sentence of the bill several times. 'The head or chief of the gang was a woman.'

I put the bills up and they and their contents compassed out of my mind. On leaving home that morning, my wife had said:

'Remember, Leonard that the mortgage falls due in two weeks; if we can only discharge it and have our home clear, how happy I shall be.'

Her words recurred to me now. In two weeks, if not paid what then? It must be. But how?

The mortgage was eight hundred dollars and I had only six, which by dint of economy I had saved. My reveries were interrupted by arriving at C—.

On passing through the car in which the woman was, she stopped me and asked if I would send a dispatch for her.

'Certainly, but you might think I would charge you more than the cost of sending,' I said sharply.

'I was mistaken about the charge,' she replied, in an apologetic tone.

'What do you wish to send?' I asked.

'Here it is; I wrote it out before I got aboard,' and she handed me a slip of paper.

CATARRH.

Constitutional Catarrh Remedy CURES CATARRH.

Hear what a Reverend Gentleman says of the Constitutional Remedy.

T. J. B. HARDING, Esq., Brockville, Ont.:—
'DEAR SIR—It is now two years since your "Constitutional Catarrh Remedy" was introduced to me. I have waited this long to see if the cure would remain permanent before doing this, my duty, to you, as at first the happy effects seemed to me to be "too good to be true."

I was afflicted in my head for years before I suspected it to be Catarrh. In reading in your Circular I saw my case described in many particulars. The inward "drop" from the head had become very disagreeable, and a choking sensation often preventing me from lying long, I would feel like smothering and be compelled to sit up in the bed. My health and spirits were seriously affected. When your agent came to Walkertown in August, 1876, I secured three bottles. Before I had used a quarter of the contents of one bottle I found decided relief, and when I had used two bottles and a third, I quit taking it, feeling quite cured of that ailment, and have not used any since until of late I have taken some for a cold in my head. A sense of duty to sufferers from that loathsome disease, Catarrh, prompts me to send you this Certificate, unsolicited, with leave to make what use of it you may see proper Yours truly,

W. TINDALL, Methodist Minister.
