THE DAILY EXAMINER

APRIL 7, 1900

—An American expert has been on a visit to Siberia to examine its capacity for growing wheat. He found this to be so very inferior as to preclude the possibility of Siberia ever being a competitor with this continent.

A letter from the Rev. D. B. Mc-Kenzie, Canadian Methodist Missionary at Kanazawa, Japan, says: "We have had quite a taste of Canadian winter on this coast—very cold weather—and, what is very rare, a foot or more of good dry snow, with ice two inches thick.

—Although many feared the opposite, they say that the clover in our fields is looking well as the ice melts off it. In any case the prudent farmer will see to it that an abundant green fodder crop is early put into the ground.

—The very interesting letters we publish to-day, give particulars, which all were anxious to learn, as to the condition of the wounded and the burial of the dead. They also show that our Island boys were in the lead of the great fight in which Cronje surrendered and that they obtained no less than three of the enemy's flags. That is to say, they won honours with the best.

—St Helena formerly belonged to the Dutch, and for a prison is as pleasant a place as could be chosen. It is healthy, has no wild animals or noxious reptiles, and while much of it is barren, the centre is covered with grassy slopes and beautiful flowers. Add to this the historical associations, and it will be seen that it is really an attractive spot. The real ground of the Boers, objections probably is that it is a very difficult place to get away from.

—One of the first things Mr. Tarte did after his arrival at Paris was to have a long conversation with Dr. Leyds. The most of what was said is not known; but the following has been made public:
"Mr. Tarte said: 'Mr. Leyds, I am the son of a rebel, and I tell you you'll be beaten, you'll be crushed. If you're wise you and your people will do as we did—enjoy the freedom we enjoy.' Wisdom has spoken! Mr. Tarte is now said to be mediating between Dr. Leyds and some of the British officials. "Blessed are the peacemakers!"

—According to the Summerside Journal Rev. Father Burke, of Alberton, has a plan for turning Cascumpec harbor into the home of a fishing fleet as large as that of Caraquez, New Brunswick. If the New Brunswick fishermen have to come over here for their fish, which is admitted, it seems strange enough that a considerable fleet of Island codfishers could not make a good living at the same work.
There are too many neglected sources of wealth around our coasts, and we hope, with the way pointed out to them in this matter, that an attempt to make Cascumpec a live fishing port will be made.

—The statistical tables of Lloyds Shipping Register for 1899 state that the total addition of steam tonnage during the year has been 1,242,522 tons gross; and, of sailing tonnage, 33,108 tons gross. So large an addition of steam tonnage has not been recorded in any previous year. The steamers on the Official Register of the United Kingdom have increased during 1899 by 194 vessels, 520,402 tons, while sailing vessels have decreased by 389 vessels and 149,537 tons. During 1899, 687 new vessels have been classed at Lloyd's. Of these 664 are steamers and 23 sailing vessels. Of the tonnage classed 987 per cent has been built of steel, and about 1 per cent of iron. The size of steamers classed is about 1,955 tons and of sailing vessels about 745 tons. Of the tonnage 91 per cent has been built in the United Kingdom. Among other countries, Italy, Germany and France contribute the largest amount.

—L'Impartial in a good humored reply to the Pioneer which grew very wrathful at the fine thrust given it a week ago by its French contemporary, says: "Nevertheless we do not wish to blame him too much for we know he belongs to a political school which does not know the elementary principles of truth." This is hard on the Liberals from an impartial source. And we might tell our Summerside champion of grit that the fundamental canons of editorial etiquette should restrain him from answering the cold satire of its Tignish friend with personal allusion and abuse. This is unworthy of the profession. The matter in discussion had nothing to do with Mr.
Boote's election which, so far as Mr. Boote is concerned, will suffer the broad light of day to be let in upon it. But so far as many others are concerned, were they influenced from such sources as the Pioneer or elsewhere, was not anything to boast about, and Mr. Boote's day will come.
"All things come to those who wait," provided they are honest and principled.

THE NEW MILLINERY

Some Marked Changes in This Season's Wear.

What Our Lady Representative Was Shown at One of Charlottetown's Leading Millinery Establishments.

The changes in fashion, especially as regards millinery, that are always synchro-nistic with the change of season, as the latter come in with but little preamble in the shape of an intermediate stage of temperature, will of a surety be all the more welcome this year for the reason that they are of a more radical character than has been the case for some years past. Notwithstanding that they are radical, they are also distinctly pleasing.

Several hats of a very catchy appearance are especially noticeable among the large number displayed. Following are a few illustrations:—

No. 1 represents one of the popular Celeste toques, the crown of which is made wholly of pastel ribbon encircled with a garniture of white brillante mousseline de soie; a bunch of roses forming the effect under the brim on the left side of the hat, being in a faded tone of pastel blue.

No. 2 is a picture hat in black Tuscan braiding and white brillante mousseline de soie, a pastel ornament fastening a bow of black velvet ribbon at back, the other trimming consisting of a large Admiral Feather, hand-made, of mousseline de soie over yellow taffeta, (just lovely), high to the left side and quarster Ostrich Tips forming a perfect contrast.

No. 3 a large dress hat of white neopolitan straw, with hand tucked brim of white crepe de chene. Around the crown are folds of the same with three Prince of Wales plumes fastened in the centre with a cut steel buckle, giving the hat a most striking effect.

Equally striking is No. 4, composed of fancy black straw, with garniture of American Beauty Roses around the brim, while the crown draped in chiffon, represents panne velvet, with black mousseline de soie scarf with fringed ends. The scarf itself is caught up at the right side of the back of the crown by a rine stone pin, while the fringed edges are allowed to fall behind the hat reaching almost to the neck.

No. 5 represents a handsome brown Hobb's Hat, with velvet in the popular Khaki shade forming fancy puff bow in front. On the left is a bunch of blue taffeta silk, with Khaki straw edging.

No. 6 is another and most attractive toque in black plaited straw with an immense bow of black silk (shirred on wire), falling in folds over side and caught with a get buckle forming the fashionable bow, high to left side, with Bird of Paradise plumes, making a simple but very picturesque hat.

The line of children's headwear is especially beautiful and extensive this season and includes everything from the dressy hats to the most serviceable affairs that can be easily laundered. A child's poke bonnet in pink, cream and white lace pique and muslins, trimmed with lace and embroidery that looked delightfully summery and cool. In fact the little folks seemed to have been particularly looked after this spring and it is seldom one sees such an assortment in their especial line.

While in the work-room THE Examiner's representative was shown some Admiral Feathers made by Miss McEachern, which were perfect in design and workmanship, and showed the careful study needed to perform such beautiful and artistic work. Also some Agrettes made of maline edged with straw and Honoton braid, which the reader would have to see to have any conception of.

Perhaps the most noticeable feature of the coming season is that it will be more than ever a "made" one. Straw hats, for ordinary street wear, for the country, and for travelling, will be as numerous as heretofore, but for promenade purposes, gar-

Those authorities who direct the fashions of the present age, generally speaking, wise in their generation. Rather than force a taste on the people, they intuitively discover what the public need and proceed to fill the want. It is evident, to judge from the season's new shades and materials, that the improvement in good taste that has marked the last few seasons is still more accentuated with the advent of the spring of the year 1900.

A careful examination of the stock of a large Millinery House has demonstrated this fact beyond a doubt to a representative of "THE EXAMINER", who visited for this purpose the premises of Messrs Jas. Paton & Co. the well known Milliners of Charlottetown. Through the courtesy of their Head Milliner and New York buyer THE EXAMINER's lady representative as foresaid was enabled to look through the vast accumulation of Millinery, which has been the result of the labor of the above named lady.

When she visited the First Big Millinery show of the season in New York. It needed but a passing glance to gather that the outset one important fact, namely that Miss McEachern has not been idle since her return. She has trimmed Hats by the score all ready for Easter trade. Miss Mc-Eachern said that it is not going to far to say that the pastel shades introduced last fall have come to stay for some time, for modified tones these shades are the prettiest yet seen.

den socials, visiting, and all dress occasion, such delicate fabrics as soft crepe de chine, 'brillante' mousseline-de-soie. Malines, tulle, fancy gauzes, light laces such as the Cluny, Lyons and other varieties the most delicate of straw braids in both straw alone or with sequins, Tuscan gal-ons, and last, but far from least, as being a distinct novelty, ribbons in wide widths, will form the materials of the coming season's hats. Hats it may be said advisedly, for there is no sign as yet of bonnets becoming so popular as to be generally worn —a fact perhaps to be regretted when one remembers how pretty they seemed even on girls not out of their teens some ten years ago. Of hats themselves and the popular shapes a few words will suffice.

The brims are, as a rule, large and inclined to droop, and in crowns, toques and tams will be equally worn, while high crowns tapering to the top will continue to be used to some degree. Both toques and large hats will probably have an equal share of popular favor, the reason lying in the suitability of the one or the other to the individual.

In the all-straw hats, as may be surmised, the ever popular sailor, which never seems to die, is well to the front.
Some in rough straw of the khaki color (out of compliment to the gentlemen ordered south) looked particularly smart.

They are almost, but not quite, symmetrical, the crown being about half an inch higher than the width of the brim. Other sailors have tan crowns, and are in both rough and fancy straws of all shades many approximating to pastels, though of course it is impossible to give the same delicacy of tint to straw that can be given to soft glace ribbon and mousseline de soie.
