

Long-Time Bakery Contest Winner at Stanley Fair

At the 100th anniversary of the internationally famous fair at Stanley, N.B., special honors are paid Mrs. G. Edwin Sansom, whose record as prize winner stretches back over decades. Mrs. Sansom was named "Most Worthy Settler" by the fair in 1947, and is here seen with the silver trophy accompanying that honor. Famed for her entries of rolls and bread, Mrs. Sansom pays full tribute to Fleischmann's Yeast. "All the prizes I have won for yeast-raised baking were won with Fleischmann's Yeast," she says. "It's so lively and dependable, I wouldn't use any other."

No doubt about it. The majority of prize-winning cooks place their faith in Fleischmann's Yeast—proved dependable for 83 years.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER — On Wednesday evening, Nov. 1st, the people of Cross Roads district and the members and friends of the Alexander Baptist Church met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wood, Cross Roads, to tender a miscellaneous shower to Miss Alicia Jenkins who is to be a November bride. Mr. Austin MacCallum escorted the bride-to-be to a beautifully decorated chair, after which two young ladies, Misses Eva Wood and Augusta Kennedy, wheeled in a basket dressed in pink and white, and laden with many useful gifts. Mrs. Robert MacKinnon read the verses, while the gifts were opened by Mrs. Frank Wood and Mrs. Winston Jenkins. Mrs. Elliott Campbell arranged the gifts on a table. A fitting address from the Alexander Baptist Church was read by Mrs. Bruce Judson, who presented the coming bride with a beautiful occasional chair. Several musical selections were rendered by Mr. Richard Brehaut. A dainty lunch was served by the ladies and a short sing-song brought a pleasant evening to a close.

God gave us strength to bear it,
And courage to face the blow,
But what it meant to lose him
No one will ever know.
Lovingly Remembered by His Wife and Family.

Forecast End Of Coalition In British Columbia

VANCOUVER, Nov. 7 — (CP) — Political signs today point to the possible end of Coalition Government in British Columbia before the next election in 1953.

The Coalition was formed in 1941 when the Liberals and Progressive Conservatives joined in a move against the C. C. F. and its socialistic program.

In recent months from political platforms and top leaders have come hints and outright declarations that Coalition may be abandoned.

The latest word comes from Finance Minister Herbert Anscomb, who in a radio address, told his listeners:

"... We may be going into the next election as a straight Conservative Party without any alliance with the Liberal Party in any way."

Mr. Anscomb recently was re-elected head of the Progressive Conservatives at a Provincial convention after a battle for the leadership. During the convention he resigned and the following day was re-nominated and won office.

Premier Byron Johnson heads the Liberals in the Coalition, a post he succeeded to when John Hart, who formed the alliance, resigned the premiership and leadership three years ago.

Another sign that coalition is near the end of its life is the possibility that the single transferable vote will be used at the next election.

Many of its supporters see it as a path to break coalition and also keep the C. C. F. out of power.

Harold Winch, the C. C. F. leader, has condemned plans for change in the voting system. He declared it is aimed solely at the C. C. F., a play to "keep us out of power."

Births, Deaths In Canada In August
OTTAWA, Nov. 7 — (CP) — Births in Canada declined while deaths went up in August and the first eight months of this year, the Bureau of Statistics reported today. Marriages were higher in the month, but lower in the eight-month period.

Births in August numbered 30,065, compared with 33,371 a year ago, bringing the cumulative total for the eight months to 234,469 against 235,890. Increases in the month were recorded only in Manitoba and British Columbia and for the eight months in Prince Edward Island, Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia.

Deaths in August totalled 9,582 compared with 9,138 in August, 1949, raising the eight-month total to 81,459 from 80,026. Increases in the month occurred in Ontario, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia and in the eight months in Nova Scotia, Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia.

Marriages in August numbered 14,077, compared with 13,205 in August last year, bringing the eight-month total to 74,465 against 76,311. Prince Edward Island, Ontario, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia were higher in August. In the eight months, increases were registered only in Saskatchewan and Alberta.

St. Paul's Laymen Dinner Meeting

The Armistice dinner meeting of the St. Paul's Laymen was held in the Church hall last evening, with T. D. DeBois in the chair.

After the introduction of guests a lively sing-song was led by Mr. A. J. Likely, and the newly formed Laymen's Band played a medley of marches. Members of the band are as follows: Royston F. Muford (piano), Jack McAndrew (Saxophone), Billy MacEachern (harmonica), James Haslam (harmonica), Percy Worth (harmonica), George Wood (trumpet), Gary McNevein (drums), and Nick Kay (violin).

Dr. Robins contributed to the entertainment with a group of humorous songs.

Guest speaker for the evening was Brig. W. W. Reid, D.S.O., E.D., who chose as his subject "Armistice Days from 1939 to 1945". He drew on his personal experience of incidents which marked observance of this day during the years of the war.

Following a most enjoyable supper served by the ladies of the Parish Guild, the regular business of the organization was dealt with, and two minutes silence observed in memory of Armistice. Benediction was pronounced by Rev. J. T. Ibbot.

Fantastic Story Of Boswell's Journal Revealed

By W. G. Rogers

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 — (AP) — Even the most thrilling story about pirates' buried treasure is hardly a match for the fantastic history underlining the publication of "Boswell's London Journal 1762-1783."

The book, which will be out Monday, is worth its weight in Spanish doubloons, too.

Copyright by Yale, published by McGraw-Hill, edited by Frederick A. Pottle and with a preface by Christopher Morley, it is the first volume of the recently-unearthed Boswell papers which have been described as "perhaps the greatest literary find ever made."

"Your strange journals... a register of your follies," was the disapproving comment of Boswell's father, who unscrupulously stole a peek at them. Strange is right, and so is follies, but there's also a lot more wisdom than most young men of 22, Boswell's age when he wrote, can claim.

Nearly 200 years have passed since the father, the eighth Lord Auchinleck, sneaked a look at both hidden and lost. The family was a little red-faced about James Boswell and his gay, dissolute career in London; the papers were the skeleton in the closet.

Most schoolboys have read Boswell's "Life of Johnson." Schoolboys are not likely to lay their hands on this book, but it seems to me that this volume makes the equal of the subject of his great biography.

Boswell named three friends his executors: they saved but did not publish his papers.

In the 1840s an Englishman found Boswell letters being used as wrapping paper by a frugal French shopkeeper. That was the tip-off.

In the 1920s Yale's prof. Chauncey B. Tinker got on the track of a treasure of manuscript near Dublin, in Malahide Castle occupied by a Boswell descendant. They were not for sale.

A third American, Lt.-Col. Ralph Heyward Isham, for 20 years spent time and money assembling the papers.

A second find, including the manuscript of this book, was made by chance at Fettercairn House, near Aberdeen. Now they are all together at Yale.

The fascinating story told in the Journal covers a nine-month period during which the young man pulled all sorts of strings to get a commission in the guards; fought off his father's efforts to make him study law; and wrote this day-by-day account... an account so frank that scholars of earlier and more-prudent generations might have burned rather than published it.

Of Boswell himself, we learn more of what we knew before, and some fresh items, too: his silly fear of ghosts, his inability to keep his mouth shut, his fondness for a foot bath, his growing thirst, his insatiable appetite for women
