GRAIN

WINNIPEG, May 15 - (CP) - Prices generally took on a lower trend today on the Grain Exchange as selling increased towards the close of the session in response to declines on American markets. Oats and barley prices displayed a firm undertone at the opening on shipper and export demand, but fell off as the session proceeded. Flax attracted some processor buying on the declines, while rye was taken by American and shipper interests, which held losses within a narrow range. Trading was dull at the opening but speeded up as the session progressed. Export loadings of Canadian wheat saw the United Kingdom take 550,000 bushels; Belgium 200,000; and the Republic of Ireland 200,000. Indications were that some Canadian oats and rye had been worked in the export market.
