GORDON'S

Mr. Nowlan noted Mr. Gordon's June 13 reference to a "face-the-facts" budget and then compared the Monday night statement to the retreat from Moscow.

Mr. Nowlan said with sarcasm that Mr. Gordon's June 13 budget speech had been so "absolutely non-partisan"—a reference to its biting political cuts at the former government.

That speech had been "the first chapter of Gordon."

It had been followed by clarifications offered by Revenue Minister Garland on some points.

WITHDREW TAX

Then in the third chapter of his budget book, Mr. Nowlan said, Mr. Gordon had withdrawn the 30-per-cent takeover tax.

Now the fourth chapter had been read.

Mr. Nowlan—who became finance minister in August, 1962 —also noted that he had been criticized by some as a finance minister who never had brought in a budget.

"I would rather be the minister of finance who never brought in a budget than a minister of finance who brought in the worst budget . . . " He said. Cheers drowned out his final words.

He suggested at one point that he did not blame Mr. Gordon too much since he had been hurried and had had certain imposition laid on his shoulders by the new government.

Mr. Nowlan argued it was an affront to Parliament for the government to bring in wide modifications of the budget in such a manner.

"This whole budget should have been withdrawn," he said. "To all intents and purposes it has been withdrawn through staggered dates and alleviating the burdens imposed June 13."

If anything showed the confusion and disorder of the government, Mr. Gordon's action was "the greatest example possible of it."

Perhaps it was because the government couldn't arrive at a decision about what they were going to do.

"Of all the irregular procedures that this House has been subjected to since Confederation, this is the worst."

WANT LONG LOOK

He indicated the opposition may take a long look at the budget resolutions when they come up for debate, suggesting it may be September before work is completed on them.

"It's going to be a long day and a long night before these resolutions are passed."

Mr. Nowlan said he wonders whether Mr. Gordon has made "a bad matter worse."

Had the minister not left unanswered more questions than he had sought to clarify

Mr. Gordon would be "naive" if he didn't think there would be "benefit" from removing the tax for machinery used in the graphic arts and newspaper trades.

But there were still "scores" of industries which would suffer.

Mr. Nowlan said that if the flow of foreign investment capital is ever cut off, Canada's economy might be "buried" and the exchange difficulties of last June would be like an "April shower" in comparison.

Winter Flowers, Vegetables Profitable To N.S. Farmers

HALIFAX (CP) —Indoor farmers in Nova Scotia now are earning $2,000,000 annually producing flowers in midwinter and vegetables in early spring.

H. A. L. McLaughlin of the provincial agriculture department says production in greenhouses has increased by 165 per cent since 1950.

Mr. McLaughlin said in a published statement increase in production and growth of the industry is continuous. He said established operators continue to enlarge their under-glass farms and new growers appear regularly.

Growers earned about $750,000 in 1950 when about 11½ acres were being cultivated under glass. Greenhouses now cover about 22 acres.

Production per unit also has increased. Mr. McLaughlin said that in 1950, for example, one tomato plant would produce five or six pounds. Today the average is about 10 pounds per plant and up to 15 pounds has been recorded.

SWITCH CROPS

He said the trend among greenhouse operators is toward planting flower crops for the peak winter periods and vegetables in early spring.

However, "we have not yet approached the vegetable production to fill our own markets," and some flowers still are being imported.

Greenhouse farmers, faced with the high cost of prefabricated construction, turn to local materials. Mr. McLaughlin said most have "an interest and ability" in metal working and are able to construct their own greenhouses.

Cheaper methods of greenhouse construction may not be far away. Already plastics are being used in limited amounts but Mr. McLaughlin says "a really suitable plastic is not yet available."

However, good crops have been grown in green houses constructed partly of plastic, he added. A good plastic would be a further boon to the indoor farmer because of its low cost.

Greenhouses have been built in all parts of the province, some with the help of the agriculture department which provides technical assistance in layout and construction of heating plants.

Banded Dove Is Discovered

ALBERTON — A brown and white pigeon bearing bands on both legs was discovered by James B. Myrick in his garden Sunday evening. Apparently quite tame the unusually colored bird seemed to be in good condition and able to fly if approached too closely.

It has a green band on the right leg and an aluminum one on the left with markings C U 62-27149.

Mr. Myrick is interested in learning where the pigeon came from and where it was banded.

Former Resident Dies In Alberta

ALBERTON — Word has been received by Mrs. A. C. Green, Alberton, of the death of her cousin, Mrs. Leith Currie, at the University Hospital in Edmonton, Alta., June 23.

Mrs. Currie, formerly Kathleen Reeves, lived all her life in Alberta. Her husband, who predeceased her three years ago, was born at West Cape, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Havelock Currie.

The Currie family will be remembered by older residents of the western part of the province. They have a number of cousins living on Prince Edward Island.

She is survived by two sons, two daughters and a number of grandchildren. Interment took place in Irma, where she and her husband formerly lived.

12 Teen-Agers To Compete In Driving

MONTREAL (CP) — Twelve Canadian teen-agers will compete for the national teen-age safe driving championship in Quebec City July 10 to 14.

The finalists, chose in local and provincial eliminations, are competing for $2,500 in educational scholarships. They will be tested for four days in safe driving skill, knowledge and aptitude.

First place winner of the expense-paid finals will receive a $1,250 scholarship. Second and third place winners receive scholarships of $750 and $500 respectively.

The finalists include Marcel Dupuis, Bourlamaque, Que.; Florent Gelinas, St. Boniface, Que.; Charles Edward Bourgeois, Truro, N.S.; and John Wallace Andrew, Charlottetown.

Commons Looks Towards New Province In Arctic

OTTAWA (CP)—Proposals to extend more responsible government farther north were made in the Commons Monday.

Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing introduced a resolution preceding a bill to cut the Northwest Territories into two, each with its own separate territorial council rather than the existing one for the combined area.

The legislation was prepared by the former Progressive Conservative government and accepted by the Liberals. It is based on recommendations from the existing council with its four elected and five appointed members.

If Parliament approves, the new legislation will create a council with a majority of elected members—five—for the Mackenzie District plus Victoria and Banks Island.

It will have much more local autonomy than under the existing system where the commissioner is resident in Ottawa. As Mr. Laing noted Monday, the new council will parallel the powers of the wholly elected Yukon Council.

PICK NAME BY POLL

As for the more barren eastern Arctic and islands, to be called Nunassiaq following a poll of the Eskimo residents, its council of seven would have only two elected members and a commissioner resident in Ottawa. The eastern Arctic got the federal vote only last year and has no elected member on the existing council.

The Northwest Territories and the Yukon still constitute more than a third of Canada's total area.

The present legislation is a further step in the Northwest Territories' evolution, Mr. Laing said.

Walter Dinsdale, the former northern affairs minister, said there has been a trend in the north toward more self-government. He said much tribute is due former prime minister Diefenbaker as the man who despite derision had and held a vision of northern development.

The tourist industry, virtually unknown in the north a few years ago, now has become the second most important economic asset north of the 60th parallel, he said. This resulted from a great urge to flee the confusion of big cities.

RUSSIAN-BELGIAN HIGH LEVEL TALKS

Belgian Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak, left, and Russian Premier Nikita Khrushchev face each other across a table yesterday at Kiev, where they conferred on easing cold-war tensions. Others at table are not identified. The conference apparently was a new Khrushchev slap at the Chinese communists. Chinese-Soviet showdown ideological meetings are in progress in a Lenin Hills villa, some 500 miles away from Kiev. This photo is from Tass, Soviet news and picture agency. (AP Wirephoto)

Heavy Canadian Demand Sparks U.S. Money Crisis

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon has picked out heavy Canadian borrowing of U.S. capital as one cause of an American international payments emergency. He called Monday for intensified action to plug the dollar-and-gold drain but ruled out use of devaluation and exchange controls to achieve a payments balance.

Appearing before a joint congressional committee to explain why the U.S. still is showing a heavy international payments deficit, Dillon said higher interest rates in Canada and Europe are attracting U.S. capital. He hinted the U.S. government will concentrate on ways to eliminate this interest gap, an indication there will be no immediate drop in U.S. rates.

He said also that during the first three months of 1963 the export of long-term capital from the U.S. "jumped sharply" to more than $1,000,000,000. This rise was due primarily to an exceptionally large volume of Canadian borrowings in New York and was "the largest single factor responsible for lack of improvement in our over-all accounts during the first quarter."

Dillon later explained to the economic committee that part of this heavy Canadian borrowing arose from Canadian government steps to strengthen Canada's official foreign reserves and partly because of such undertakings as Quebec's expropriation of private hydro power operations through bond issues floated in the U.S. He anticipated this heavy rate of borrowing "is not likely to continue."

Dillon told the congressional joint economic committee the Kennedy administration will continue to push for tax reduction, price stability and export promotion as its basic approach to the international balance of payments problem.

Dillon said private U.S. investment abroad now totals about $60,000,000,000 and government investment $18,000,000,000.
