BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

(By Thornton W. Burgess)

JERRY MUSKRAT HAS A BAD MOMENT

When everything is said and done Bad moments come to every one.
 —Jerry Muskrat.

Jerry Muskrat was up at the head of the Smiling Pool cutting rushes. You know Jerry has big cutting teeth right up in the front of his mouth. It is easy to cut things with teeth of that kind.
 Jerry was cutting rushes with which to make over his old house out in the Smiling Pool. He had cut quite a number. He was just about ready to tow them over to the house, but before he did so he looked over towards the roofing standing out of water. He drew back hastily Mrs. Jerry, who was cutting rushes near him, noticed it.

"Is some one out there you're afraid of?" she asked in her squeaky voice.

"I wouldn't be if he were not where he is," Jerry squeaked back.
 "Who?" asked Mrs. Jerry.
 "Billy Mink," replied Jerry under his breath.

Mrs. Jerry's eyes looked startled.
 She stopped cutting rushes. She swam to where she could look across the Smiling Pool toward their house. Sure enough, there was Billy Mink. He was sitting on the roof of the house.

Jerry joined her. "Do you suppose he has been inside?" whispered Jerry.

"If he has I'll never feel safe in there again. If he has found the way in once he'll be sure to try it again, and you know as well as I do that Billy Mink is more than a match for either of us."

Side by side they floated in the water, watching. They saw Billy dive into the water and disappear.
 They saw his brown head pop out again. In his mouth was a fish.

They watched him climb out on the roof again and eat that fish.
 He was making himself as much at home as if that house belonged to him instead of to them.

It was a bad moment for both Jerry and Mrs. Jerry. You see, although they were bigger than Billy Mink they were afraid of him. Billy was known to do some dreadful things in a Muskrat home when he was hungry and food hard to get.

At last Billy slipped down into the water and swam off toward the lower end of the Smiling Pool.
 Would he go down Laughing Brook to the Big River? They knew he might because they knew he was a great traveler. They forgot the rushes they cut. Side by side they swam over to their house. Side by side they sat on the very top looking towards the place where Laughing Brook leaves the Smiling Pool on its way to the Big River. They didn't see Billy Mink again. Had he gone down to the Big River? Was he somewhere in or around the Smiling Pool? They wished they knew.

"I'm going inside to find out if he has been in the house," whispered Jerry.

He slipped down into the water. He didn't make his usual splash. He didn't slap the water with his tail. He dived down to the underwater entrance and there he hesitated. There he had another bad moment. He was afraid to go in and ashamed to go back and tell Mrs. Jerry that he had not been in.

Finally he did go in. He swam along the water filled hall and poked his head up out of the water inside the house. Perhaps you can guess how he used his nose then. It being dark in there he couldn't see anything. He heard no sound. He had to depend on his nose to tell him if Billy Mink was in there or had been in there.
 Noislessly he sniffed. He could depend on that nose of his. He knew that Billy couldn't have been in there and gone out again without leaving a scent. He could depend on his nose to tell him the truth. It did. It told him that Billy hadn't been inside there at all.
 There wasn't the tiniest bit of Mink scent. Jerry Muskrat drew a long breath. Then he hurried back to tell Mrs. Jerry.
