

THE DAILY EXAMINER.

JUNE 13, 1892.

The Republican Convention.

If we may be excused for using an Americanism with respect to such a case, we may say that Mr. Blaine has been badly sold. He seems to have thought that he had nothing to do in respect to the Presidency but to let it be known that he was in the field. But the result proved that he had really less strength in the convention of the party than Major McKinley.

As THE EXAMINER intimated on Saturday, Mr. Harrison will again be the Republican candidate. He will probably again be opposed by Mr. Cleveland.

The result of the balloting is due to causes which are not apparent at present, but which will doubtless be explained later on in the campaign.

It is claimed on behalf of Mr. Blaine that he would have stood a much better chance were it not for his declaration a few months ago that he would not allow his name to go before the Convention, and that, accepting this statement, a number of States which might have supported him were instructed to go for Harrison.

It is also said that the Convention was packed with office holders appointed by Mr. Harrison, and these of course gave him all the support and assistance in their power.

Cementing the Fountain.

The fountain on Queen Square is being cemented for the better protection of the seals. This is a move in the right direction. The fountain, it may be explained, was only recently made water-tight and thoroughly and completely constructed to keep the water clear for the purpose it was intended for if the seals had not been placed there. But in view of the fact that the seals were to be allowed to remain it was found necessary to cement the fountain to prevent the puddled clay being disturbed by the seals rendering the water muddy and unfit for their habitation. The Garden Committee of course were obliged to decline incurring this extra expense for want of funds, and because it was a special undertaking entirely outside the legitimate garden work. Therefore a committee apart from garden affairs has now taken the matter in hand on its own responsibility and has engaged a competent contractor to cement the basin, who began operations this morning.

Subscriptions are being obtained for the purpose, and we are gratified to learn that the collectors are meeting with every success.

Crops in New England.

ACCORDING to the last bulletin of the New England Weather Bureau, just at hand, the weather for the week or ten days preceding the date of the report (June 6) could not have been more favorable for vegetation if made to order. It has been neither too hot nor too cold. The rain has come in gentle showers and there has been an average amount of sunshine. While the above is true of the greater part of New England, there are some exceptions however. In the northern districts of New England the temperature was low the early part of the week and some damage was done by excessive rains. From a trace to one half-inch of rain has fallen over Massachusetts, Connecticut and part of Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Maine, but slightly more than one half-inch fell in southern Rhode Island and from one to two inches in central and northern Vermont. Some corn and potatoes have rotted on low ground in the latter section, and some slight damage has been done by lightning strokes during thunder storms.

On the highlands of Vermont and in Western Maine the grass is reported thin and feed short in the pastures, but generally this crop is reported as growing thick and fast, and promising much above the average, with hay coming along earlier than is usual. The season continues late in all sections, but under the influence of the present weather is rapidly catching up. Much corn remains to be planted in the northern districts, but in the south all planting is practically done and hoeing is going on.

Reports from Arostook County, Me., indicate that the average of potatoes will be below the average. From other places it is reported that the space will be taken by a larger acreage of corn. Worms and insects injurious to crops are not generally reported so thick as usual.

On the whole, the outlook is very good for the greater part of New England.

The North Sydney Herald remarks that Provincial females who go to the United States take their "lives in their own hands." Hardly a week passes that the remains of some one of the many provincial girls in the United States are not carried home either by steamer or rail. Even this week the Herald's obituary column gives evidence of this. From comfortable homes they leave for Boston, where many of them have to work like slaves, until their health becomes impaired and they are obliged to seek the refuge of hospitals only too late to regain health and strength. A Boston correspondent writing to a Halifax paper says: "If Provincial girls knew how numerous the female element is here they would not crowd over the border so thickly. The females are said to outnumber the males seven to one. It may not be quite so bad as that, but they are certainly far ahead in point of numbers. They make a great scramble for situations.

The League Match.

The second of the Canadian League Matches was fired on Saturday afternoon throughout Canada. The weather here was not favorable for our boys, the light being variable with a strong gusty wind from the left, so that a miss between two bullets is a common thing on our score sheets. The totals are as follows:—

Table with 2 columns: Name, Points. Includes Capt H M Davison, Lieut E Stewart, Staff-Serg R V Longworth, etc.

Sudden Death.

We regret to learn of the sudden death of Mrs. John Byrne, the wife of Station Master Byrne, of Georgetown, which took place at West River on Saturday night last.

Notes and Comments.

A Boston paper says that an attractive list of summer excursions, to occupy from nine to twenty-three days' time, has been made up by Raymond & Whitcomb, the tourist managers. All of the popular resorts of New England, Canada and the Middle States are included in one tour or another, the range of sight seeing extending from Niagara Falls to the Saguenay River and Prince Edward Island. The Catskill, White and Adirondack Mountains are embraced in the programme, and with them of course the Hudson River, Saratoga and Lake George. In the course of the season no less than forty parties will leave New York on these short trips.

The uncalled for and unfair attack made upon Sir John Thompson by Rev. Dr. Douglas, at the Niagara Methodist Conference, is vigorously resented by the Toronto Empire. The Empire says:—

"Sensible men will, of course, not be carried away by the eloquent inaccuracy of the speaker, or be prejudiced by what is so evidently a bitter personal attack; but, nevertheless, a general sentiment of sorrow will be felt that Dr. Douglas should have so far presumed upon his personality and popularity as to have been the author of this stirring invective against Sir John Thompson. But the minister of justice needs no defence against such inflammatory appeals to bigotry. The whole country recognizes in Sir John Thompson a man who possesses a mind of most impartial and judicial type, who has never stooped to dishonorable action, or shown religious or political bigotry; a great lawyer, an eminently successful leader of the House of Commons, a man who has risen by his own ability and without fear or favor; a statesman who commands respect abroad, which even his political opponents at home are compelled to accord. Sir John Thompson, in his career and policy, is above charges, which, without proof or reason, have been made by a man so highly respected as we fully admit Dr. Douglas has always been."

Hon. George W. Howland.

The Senate has again resumed its sittings from which a very prominent face is missing. It is that of Hon. Senator Howland, who has recently gone to the great object of his labors, and may not return during the present session. The Senator is now everywhere recognized as a ready speaker and energetic worker, thoroughly posted on all matters relating to Federal and Provincial affairs in Canada. He very clearly proved his great knowledge of the Newfoundland difficulty lately and did much towards its present settlement. The Senator is a great worker, and seems to delight in labor. He entered active politics in 1863. Since, his life was a busy one; and, like most useful statesmen, full of trials. He contested eight general elections, winning six. He was the moving spirit in the formation of the Pope-Howland administration in P. E. Island, that constructed the Island Railway and carried Confederation. He was also a Cabinet minister of the Coles, Whelan and Haythorne administration. Public and private business has called him nearly a score of times across the Atlantic since his first voyage when a young "Irish immigrant."

In 1869 he was chosen a delegate to Washington by the Executive of the province on the trade question, then agitating his people; next in 1872, he was again selected to appear as a delegate in Ottawa, as well as in 1873, on the better terms delegation, and in 1891 he crossed the Atlantic in the dual capacity as a commissioner or delegate in the Newfoundland difficulty at the instance of the Federal Government and also on behalf of the Provincial Government and re the proposed Tunnel, which again demands his presence. Hence the want felt and noticed in the absence of one so noted.

POLICE COURT.—This morning two drunks were disposed of for fines of $2 or 8 days each; two nuisance cases were adjourned, and the defendant in a larceny case was discharged on his own recognizance to appear on the 15th. Joseph McLellan, farmer, of the Harbor, King's County, appeared on complaint of Richard Boraide, Inspector of Inland Revenue for Nova Scotia and P. E. Island, to answer a charge of having parts of an illicit still in his possession. McLellan was defended by Mr. H. C. Macdonald, and Mr. Morson appeared for the prosecution. McLellan's premises well searched on Saturday morning last and every part of a distilling apparatus, except the goose-neck was found therein. The search was made by constables Harry Wright, of Halifax, and Ewen McGregor, of Cardigan. Some punchons, washes, etc., were also found on the premises. After taking some testimony the hearing of the case was adjourned until to-morrow.
