Home Economics Course at Notre Dame Academy

since its foundation in 1857, Notre Dame Academy has played an important part in the education of the young girls of this province. The religious instruction indispensable to the complete formation of character is given first place in the curriculum. In addition to the special advantage for the study of French to be of any practical value, the study of this language should be begun at an early age, and under the instruction of teachers who speak French as their mother tongue.

Notre Dame also provides a splendid Secretarial Course, where a certified teacher prepares students to obtain Gregg Shorthand, Filing, and Degan Typewriting courses. Training is given in other commercial subjects, and students are prepared to write Civil Service examinations.

The Music Department, for which Notre Dame has always been noted, is in the hands of competent private teachers. In addition to private vocal lessons, regular lessons in class singing are given in all the grades. Lessons in piano, forte, rhythmic music, theory, and harmony, will prepare the pupils of this department to obtain Allium Conservatory of Music.

The annual exhibition of drawing, painting in water colors and oils, china painting, metal work, weaving and other crafts is a sufficient recommendation for the Art Department.

Airy and attractive dormitories and rooms are provided for resident pupils, and for students attending Prince of Wales College, all of whom share the great advantage of supervised studies.

The Sisters, realizing that good housekeepers contribute largely to the solution of many social problems, are introducing a program of Household Science into the school activities for the coming year. This program will entail instruction in Home Management, Nutrition, Home and Invalid Cooking, Meal Planning, Principles of Pattern and Dress Design, Plain Sewing, etc.

DINNER SALAD AS THE FRENCH USE IT

In the household of a professional man a green salad always forms part of the evening meal and is dressed at table by the father of the family.

The green salad, lettuce, endive, or whatever may be in season, is prepared in the kitchen before dinner and brought in in the salad bowl and placed before the father of the family, together with cruet of oil and vinegar, pepper and salt. He takes the salad spoon and puts in it one spoonful of oil and half of pepper, and on this pours a tablespoon of oil, mixing it with the salad fork and pouring the mixture all over the salad. He then adds three more tablespoons of oil to the salad and tosses the whole lightly adding a tablespoon of sharp vinegar, tossing the salad again and then serving it.

The addition of a little chopped chervil and some chopped chives is an improvement, and two tablespoons of salad oil may be added to the original one, instead of three.

Potent Screen Hit Deals With Social Problem At Capitol

A grimly realistic drama of boys who live by the code of alley slums was unfolded when "Code of the Streets" opened last night at the Capitol Theatre.

With James McCallion, youthful stage favorite, as their new leader, the popular Little Tough Guys demonstrate how social environment influences the development of a boy's character and outlook on life.

Movie Veteran Tops Cast

Harry Carey turns in a warmly sympathetic performance as the police lieutenant who arrests a boy for murder and then risks his job trying to save the prisoner from the electric chair. Frankie Thomas is seen as an amateur sleuth who joins forces with the Tough Guys to seek the real killer and aid his father, Carey, who has been demoted to patrolman.

Ames, who came to Hollywood after many successes on Broadway, makes the most of his role as the big time gambling king. Dorothy Arnold lends sparkling beauty to the hat-check girl and Juanita Quigley, stands out as the neighbor child.

SWIFT ACTION

This production is strong fare loaded to the hilt with primitive emotions and power-charged action scenes. Highlight scenes include the hat-check girl warning his brother against the bad influence of the slums. In another sequence the kids force a commiseration from Ames while holding him prisoner in their alley hideout.

Peace
(A REVERIE)
(By M. M. M.)

O dear Angel of Peace, I had always pictured you as a shining spirit spreading your protecting wings over the earth, but now the scene is changed. I see you now, weeping and desolate, with your arms raised to Heaven, imploring the almighty Father to dispel the chaos which is draining the sap from the tree which shelters the Christianity and civilization of the world.

O spirit of countless martyrs who shed their blood in the fields, to insure the peace of the world, has that blood been shed in vain? Has the supreme sacrifice which you made been for naught? O Babe of Bethlehem, you came to bring peace on earth to men of good-will, but now the scene is changed. The good-will is tottering on the brink of a terrific precipice with an abyss of oblivion just beyond. The world now sees dictators whose greed for conquest makes them trample roughness over the rights and principles of their neighbors. They have no good-will for anyone except their own followers. They accuse other nations of interfering with the management of their affairs while at the same time they themselves slip across their line and not only tell their neighbors how to manage their affairs but they also try to possess and make their nation a vassal possession of their own. Talk about piracy on the high seas! That was mild compared with the wholesale piracy which we see on land today. The olden pirate murdered the body and seized the ship and goods but these dictators—pirates of today, not only seize the nations with all their possessions but they even try to rob them of their immortal souls which belong to God alone.

Peace on earth and good-will to all men of good-will means nothing to them. They constitute themselves Supreme Head of everything in which they take part. God and His duly appointed representatives on earth are secondary to them, to be pushed aside at will. If these dictators want only peace, why are they forever trying to grasp something which belongs to someone else? Their own actions belie them and show their hypocrisy. If persons of the same nationality as these dictators have become citizens of other countries, they owe their allegiance to the nation of which they are citizens. To aid or abet any foreign power to come and seize territory belonging to the nation of which they are citizens, constitutes high treason which is a horrible crime.

O Angel of Peace, make haste to take the world from another configuration. Whisper to these dictators that God is a Supreme Being who can never be pushed aside for mortal men. Whisper to these dictators that they can never out chase peace. The only lasting peace which this world can ever know is in respecting the rights and liberties of all men, and particularly their religious rights and principles. It is only by recognizing God as the Supreme Being of the Universe that the people of this world can draw hope from the faithful promise which has nothing but chaos and oblivion beyond.

In Memoriam

MRS. ARTEMAS COOK

There passed away at her home in Mount Stewart on Sunday, August 20, 1939, Mrs. Artemas Cook, beloved wife of Mr. Artemas Cook, and daughter of the late Haviland and Elizabeth Clark of Charlottetown, in her seventy-second year, though in uncertain health for several months. Mrs. Cook had been active until recently, and her passing was a distinct shock to her family and friends. She took an active part in community affairs, aiding every good cause, and was a loyal member of the United Church. Faithful to her family, loyal to the highest, consecrated to a life of service, she has left behind a worthy heritage of Christian achievement.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday, August 22. Following a short service at the home where the hymn "Safe in the Arms of Jesus" was sung, the body was removed to the Mount Stewart Baptist Church. Here a large number of relatives and friends gathered to pay their last tribute of respect and devotion to the departed. Special selections were "I Surrender All", requested by the deceased, and "We Are Going Down the Valley" by the Montague quartette. The hymns were "The Sands of Time are Sinking" and "Jesus Saviour Pilot Me."

Following the service the burial took place at the Mount Stewart cemetery. The services were conducted by Rev. Harry J. Vickerson, in the absence of the pastor Rev. Mr. Boyce.

There are left to mourn, besides her sorrowing husband, five daughters: Etta, Mrs. Harry Lane of Montague; Blanch, Mrs. H. S. Corliss of Somerville, Mass.; Hilga, Mrs. H. F. Brennan of Alberton; Jennie, Mrs. George W. Jay, Fanningbrook, Prince Edward Island; Pearl, Mrs. Edwin Craig of Cowhead, P. E. I.; and one son Hamilton, in Saskatchewan. Two children, Elsie Elmira and Artemas Haviland, predeceased her some years ago. There are also three sisters: Mrs. William Miller of Scotland; Amelia, Mrs. D. Stewart of Charlottetown; and Etta, Mrs. H. O. Ames Watertown, Mass.; and three brothers: Wellington Clark of Denver, Colorado, and Ira Clark Mount Stewart, and Charles in Massachusetts. There are thirty-three grandchildren and sixteen great grandchildren who will ever hold her memory dear.

The pall bearers were: Dr. A. B. Martin, Dr. Farmer, Mr. John Timmins, Mr. Ross Pigott, Mr. Adrien D. Feehan, and Mr. William McLeod.

To the sorrowing family the deepest sympathy of all the community is extended in their sad bereavement.

Lively Interest In Morning Walk Of Chamberlains

Prime Minister and His Wife Take 17-Minute Stroll Daily Among Birds and Flowers.

By JACK HARRIS

in St. James's Park which is a little under a mile.

Nature Interests

LONDON, Aug. 28—(AP)—At ten o'clock every weekday morning if 10 minutes is close enough you can set your watch by it—an inconspicuous black wooden gate in the back garden of No. 15 Downing Street opens and a middle-aged man and woman appear.

The man in his short black coat and gray striped trousers might be any one of hundreds of typical businessmen in the City. His collar is of the gates-ajar variety and his unbuttoned coat reveals a heavy gold watch chain drooping between the lower pockets of his vest. Usually he carries a light-colored umbrella. If the day is fair he substitutes a light brown walking stick.

The woman is attractive. Her long, dark blue silk coat, worn over a navy blue and white dress, comes her. A black purse and a rolled blue silk umbrella are held firmly in her left hand.

They are Prime Minister Chamberlain and his wife, off for their morning constitutional in St. James's Park.

Two Scotland Yard men in plain clothes who have been waiting on the corner swing into step six paces behind the couple as they cut through the rows of governmental workers' cars parked in the parade back of the War Ministry.

Mr. Chamberlain sets a good pace which is not varied once until he disappears through the black gate into his Downing Street garden exactly 17 minutes later. The invariable route is the macadamized walk around the Long Pond.

The passage of the couple raises a ripple of excitement among the free benches and penny-an-hour chairs that line the walk. The Prime Minister and his wife are impervious to all this. Their interest is reserved for the birds and flowers. She points out a bed of new pink blossoms. However, his real enthusiasm is reserved for the birds hopping along beside the walk and for the water fowl swimming about in the pond.

The Prime Minister knows his birds. His spotting of a kestrel several times last autumn and of a rare chaffinch during the cold spell just before Christmas are duly noted in the latest report of the Committee on Bird Sanctuaries in Royal Parks. His closest feathered friend, though, is the smew.

The sighting of a smew naturally made one of his recent morning walks memorable. His sombre countenance lighting for the first time of the day as he pointed with his stick to call his wife's attention to it.

The little black duck in question was completely unimpressed by the recognition and dived for a water bug. After the smew, the balance of this particular constitutional passed relatively uneventfully.

Seventeen minutes, to the second, after their appearance the Prime Minister and Mrs. Chamberlain had emerged from the Park, given a farewell salute to their guardians, and re-entered 10 Downing Street.

German Freighter Released By Court

QUEBEC, Aug. 28—(CP)—The Admiralty Court tonight released the German freighter Konigsberg, held in port since Friday after warrants were sworn out for her seizure when she failed to deliver cargo to Canadian consignees.

Adjutor Lachance, registrar of the Admiralty Court, gave the ship's release to Captain Wilhelm Siegest after the skipper had furnished a bond of $20,000 covering claims of four Canadian concerns which swore out warrants for the seizure when she put out from Sorel Friday without having delivered the cargo.

John Home, Quebec lawyer representing the four concern, informed the registrar that the bond satisfied his claims. The court registrar released the vessel and notified customs officials. The cargo had already been discharged.

The Konigsberg, headed for Montreal with general cargo, put out from Sorel Friday after receiving orders from Germany to return at once to home waters.

PARIS—(CP)—Reputedly the wealthiest man in Holland, Dr. Fritz Mannheimer of the Mendelsohn Bank, died in Paris, Dr. Mannheimer, German by birth, left an estate estimated at $47,000,000.

Tryon and Vicinity

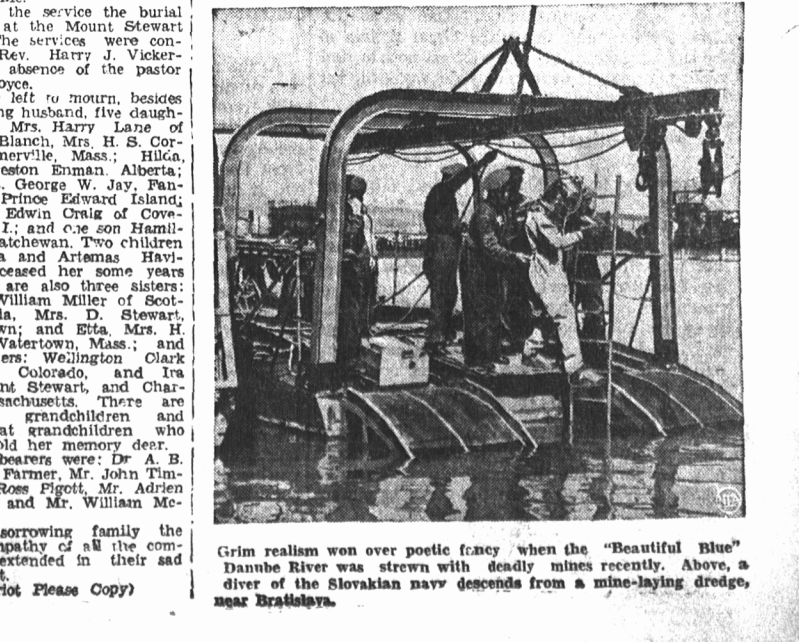

Misses Audrey and Marlon Crossman have returned from their home in Moncton, N. B. after spending a very pleasant holiday in Tryon the guest of their cousin Miss Olga Walsh.

The Tryon Baptist Young people held their annual picnic on Saturday August 19th at Mr. D. C. MacLean's shore, Argyle, when a very enjoyable afternoon and evening was spent in swimming and playing games. A very delicious lunch was also served.

The many friends of Mr. Sheldon Dixon are glad to see him out again after his recent operation.

A very enjoyable evening was spent in the Tryon Baptist Hall on Friday, August 22nd when a large number gathered to a farewell lunch in honor of Miss Elizabeth Nelder who is leaving early in September to train for a nurse in Quebec. The address was read by Miss Janie Thomas and the gift was presented by Elsie Francis after which Miss Nelder thanked the Young People very kindly for their gift. The remainder of the evening was spent very pleasantly in games and contests after which a very beautiful lunch was served. The party closed by singing "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow."
