A Prosperous Couple.

Wall, wife, it's fifty years ago since you an' me wuz tied,
An' we hev clum the hills or life together side by side.
How we hev prospered, hain't we, wife? an' how well off we be—
Wen we wuz splited we owned one cow, an' now, goah, we own three.

I owed five hundred on this farm, five hundred dollars then,
But I hev prospered far beyond the gen'l run of men.
A kindly Providence hev shaped the rough course of events,
An' now I owe four twenty-five and thirty-seven odd cents.

'Twas only fifty years ago you only had one dress
To aggravate your beauty and increase your loveliness;
Now you've got two sumptuous dresses an' a most tremendous bonnet,
With most'ous horticultural fair flourishin' upon it.

Three chairs wuz in our sittin' room, but fifty years ago,
But we hev prospered wunderfuly, an' now there's five you know.
We've gined a lamp, a puddin' dish, an extra yoke er steers,
A grin'stone an' a dingle-cart, an' all in fifty years.

It's all true w'at our pastor said, the world moves fast to-day,
An' w'ith a quick, electric whiz goes spinnin' on its way;
It jist goes spinnin' on its way until its work is done.
But there's few spinners, my dear wife, who've spun ez we hev spun. —Yankee Blade.

The Argentine Republic.

(The Empire.)

Recent reports concerning the Argentine Republic are deeply interesting. It seems as if the country which caused the fall of the Barings, and stirred the financial centres of Europe, as by a whirlwind, is hardly yet recovering from the comotose condition of the past year. And it will take a long time to do so. The terrible shock to its public credit following upon the bankrupt condition of its finances, and the disinclination of emigrants to seek a country which is liable to revolutionary outbursts of the nature of that which followed the overthrow of their Government, is likely to militate for a number of years against the progress of a republic which has in times past been a most formidable rival of Canada in attracting emigration.

In that respect, indeed, it has beaten the United States proportionately, having received in its great "boom" year, 1889, 64 emigrants to every thousand of its population, while the United States received only 12 per thousand. But that time has gone by, as the following table shows:

Year.	Total Im.	Total Emi.
1885	108,722	14,585
1886	93,116	12,907
1887	129,842	13,639
1888	155,632	16,882
1889	230,909	28,981
1890	110,498	40,649
Estimated for 1891	59,000	96,000

From May, 1888, to March, 1888, $6,000,000 was spent in subsidized passages to immigrants, the bulk of whom were Italians, if we may judge by the nationality of those who arrived in 1890. Of these, 39,000 were Italian, 17,000 French, 13,000 Spanish and the rest scattering, only 1,100 being English. To the native of Italy, however, the attraction would be considerably, as one fourth of the Argentine Republic is already Italian, and the customs in well as language prevalent amongst the different classes of his countrymen can easily be found there.

But from our standpoint and that of the unfortunate British investor in Argentine securities, the present position is not a promising one. Financially, it has been going from bad to worse. The paper dollar has been daily depreciating, and every one, excepting the rashest, hesitates to enter into commercial dealings until the now fluctuating value of the currency is settled. The premium on gold has risen by leaps and bounds from an average of 35 per cent in 1887 to 157 per cent in 1890, to 300 per cent in 1891, last October touching 1,352 per cent. At the time of the "boom" in 1889 it is estimated that forty-two per cent of the population of Buenos Ayres, which has 500,000 people within its limits, or one-eighth of the whole country's population, were engaged almost exclusively in supplying luxuries to the remainder. These luxuries, such as horses, carriages and servants, are now being largely dispensed with, and strict economy practised. But, while this is a good sign, speaking generally, it is very hard upon the many individuals who are thus deprived of a living, and obliged, in very many cases, to leave the country.

It would have been better for many thousands if they had never gone there. And wages are now down to $25 a month. Where lodging is given it is a mud hut, and food probably costs the employer about 25 cents a day, in the limited number of cases in which he provides it. Commerce is consequently at a standstill, retrenchment is going on in every public and private enterprise, thousands are out of employment, tramps are innumerable, and the financial condition of the Government and currency deplorable.

The moral is simple. It would have been infinitely better for all concerned if Great Britain had directed its surplus wealth for investment in safe Canadian enterprises, or in the development of colonial resources elsewhere rather than by pouring gold into the wild-cat schemes and national loans of a country such as Argentina. And by the fate of this southern country, Canada can take warning, that flashy prosperity is not always the best. Solid, substantial, though slow, progress is safest and best in the long run for nations as for men.

Phenomenon at the Amazon's Mouth.

One of the marvellous occurrences in nature is sometimes witnessed at the mouth of the Amazon river. Towards the ocean a white line or column seems to rise out of the water and increase in size as it approaches the land. At first its movement is so slight that it is comparatively noiseless, but as it draws nearer a rumbling sound is heard. This soon develops into a mighty roar, similar to that which is heard at Niagara Falls. It seems to gather momentum with each foot of its progress so that its velocity is something awful to behold. There is nothing strong enough to resist its overwhelming power. Everthing in its path succumbs to its ravages. The trees on the bank are torn up by their roots and hurled about indiscriminately. Huge boulders are hurled hither and thither like so many marbles. Islands are wiped out of existence in a moment and almost as suddenly formed in some new locality. Everything in its path both on sea and on land yields to complete destruction.

The explanation offered for this remarkable disturbance is, that when the incoming tide leaves the deep sea and strikes the shoals that lie just beyond the mouth of the Amazon, the resistance they make throws the water up into an immense column, which is carried shoreward by the movement of the tide.

As far as personal victories go in the present British campaign, Mr. Gladstone has had rather bad luck. His own majority decreased by 4,000 votes; that of his son Herbert by 1,000 in Leeds; John Morley very nearly defeated, and almost 3,000 behind the other for Newcastle, who is a Conservative. Worst of all, Chamberlain, the most disliked of all his opponents, captures the entire Birmingham district by 20,000 plurality.

The Empire remarks: So Mr. John Morley, who denounced the trade policy of the Government, and the wretched position of the Maritime Provinces especially, in a report which the Ministry very properly refused to publish, has now purchased 2,000 acres of land in the Souris valley, and intends to spend the rest of his days in Manitoba. We are glad to know this, and feel sure that it will not be long before he will still further appreciate the necessity and wisdom of the Conservative policy. He could hardly give a greater proof, however, than in coming to live amongst us.

The production of silver in the world in 1890 was $166,677,233. In the United States the silver production in 1890 was $50,000. In 1860 it was $150,000. In 1870 it was $16,000,000. In 1880 it was $35,450,000. In 1890 it was $79,464,000. The production of silver in the whole world for the last 500 years was $6,435,000. The total production of gold in the world in 1890 was $116,008,900. In the United States the production of gold in 1890 was $50,000,000. In 1860 it was $46,000,000. In 1870 it was $50,000,000. In 1880 it was only $36,000,000. In 1890 it was reduced to $32,845,000. The total production of gold in the whole world for the past 500 years was $7,240,000,000.

—The present eruption in the [79th in its written history. Volcanic activity in various countries during the past year promises some large upheaval of superfluous matter from the bowels of the earth. The physical laws which govern this planet of ours in so far as symptoms of disorder are concerned, do not differ from the constitutional government of each individual. Past eruptions have given forewarnings of the same kind. Happily for Italy, the destructive tide of the lava stream now cannot compare with many of the visitations of the past. In 1669 the fire belched forth from the crater destroyed scores of communities in towns, villages and hamlets, and set the sea on fire. It is clear that since the recent dreadful earthquakes in Japan the earth has been in need of an emetic.

A TERRIBLE SKIN DISEASE
Of Eight Years' Standing
"PERFECTLY CURED"

BY
Skoda's Ointment and Discovery.

LEWISTON, ME.—I wish to inform the suffering through you that SKODA'S GERMAN OINTMENT and SKODA'S DISCOVERY will cure the worst skin disease to be found. This statement may seem strong, but I think a true statement of my own case, will convince the most skeptical.

For some eight years I have had a terrible skin disease from which I have suffered untold misery. I have tried Physicians of repute and about all the so-called "skin cures," but the result was failure. My body was covered with white scales, I itched intensely, and when I would rub or scratch the scales, the same as if I was may know, tormented me.

My skin was so dry that my elbows, knees, hands, etc., would crack open so badly that they would bleed freely. My scalp was so that I could not comb my hair, and a good friend of mine clipped close to my head.

I have now used a half dozen bottles of SKODA'S DISCOVERY and about eight ounces of SKODA'S COLD CREAM. The result is PERFECTLY CURED. My skin is soft as an infant's. Instead of torment I have sweet sleep at night, and a good head of hair.
