Mulroney likes panty raids

ANTIGONISH, N.S. (CUP) — Some of the best years of federal opposition leader Brian Mulroney were spent going on panty raids, pilfering from the liquor store and getting suspended from St. Francis Xavier University.

The handsome, chinly man took a fond look back at his college years while receiving an honorary doctoral degree at his alma mater, late last term.

"Had it not been for St. F.X., I might have been a truck driver," said the Tory leader, whose party is way ahead in public opinion polls. Mulroney explained there was nothing wrong with being a truck driver, but said the university gave him the opportunity to apply all his talents.

Aside from chasing girls, Mulroney participated in all facets of campus life — sports, politics, clubs — and made sure to stay "one step ahead of the sherriff." He was know for the gift of gab as a prize-winner orator.

Since his graduation Mulroney raised $12 million for the university, "because St. F.X. is family."
