

Maritimes Feed The Goose But Ontario Keeping Eggs

OTTAWA (CP)—The Maritimes are helping to feed industrial Ontario's goose that lays golden eggs but Ontario is keeping the eggs, A.R. Lusby said in the Commons Monday.

The Liberal member for Cumberland, N.S., criticized a recent statement by Premier Frost of Ontario who had said federal fiscal policies should not harm the central province—the goose that lays golden eggs.

"Ontario lays no golden eggs for us," Mr. Lusby said. "She draws from us the wherewithal to lay the eggs for herself."

Mr. Frost's statement had merely confirmed Maritime feelings that "Ontario is not only the heartland but the hogland of Canada."

Mr. Lusby spoke during debate on a resolution by Walter Dinsdale (PC—Brandon-Souris) which urged government action to promote decentralization of industry.

He said the government should give serious consideration to the possibilities of encouraging decentralization.

Clarie Gillis (CCF—Cape Breton South), supporting the resolution, said it would not result in a shift of industry to the Maritimes to overcome that area's economic ills.

MANY PULLED OUT
Before joining Confederation the Maritimes had industrial wealth. But in a 60-year period more than 50 major industries had been siphoned off and relocated in Ontario and Quebec. Many of them could have made just as good a contribution to the economy of Canada by remaining where they were.

Mr. Lusby said there are limits to what the federal government can do to spread industries more evenly across the country.

But it should give careful study to the joint proposal of the Canadian Congress of Labor and the Trades and Labor Congress that the Maritimes be considered a special area to be helped by tax concessions, channelling of government contracts and subsidization of freight rates and power production in certain areas.

Mr. Lusby suggested that defence contracts be allotted on the basis of preferential treatment for certain areas.

In the Maritimes the lack of industrial development had been one of the main handicaps since Confederation. There had been a steady and continual hemorrhage of it, people to other parts of the continent.

Industry and population also should be dispersed as a defence measure. At present a single hydrogen bomb could destroy a substantial part of Canada's population and industry. In nuclear war, any shreds of victory would go to the side which had best preserved its people and vital industries.

SAME AS U.S.
Mr. Gillis said the steady concentration of industry in Ontario and Quebec shows nothing is being done on the lines of the proposed resolution. Canada was following the same pattern as the United States, possibly because of the control and influence of U.S. industrialists in Canadian companies.

He said he cannot understand why the federal government is pouring millions of dollars into defence industries in central Canada and paying rail costs on arms shipments to this country's European allies. It would be cheaper to make such goods in east coast cities.

The Maritimes were paying millions each year because of the tariff protection to central Canada industries. Much of the industrial concentration there was the result of heavy federal subsidies and establishment of crown corporations by the government itself.

Mr. Gillis said he is not suggesting the Maritimes can do anything for themselves. The Atlantic Provinces Economic Council had been established with the aim of organizing the Maritimes' 1,500,000 people into a market for the region's industry. But until that program took effect, federal assistance should be given.
