

Bad Teeth and Disease.

Had we the means, we would endow a charity, the great aim of which should be to prevent diseases by establishing an institution for the treatment of decayed and imperfect teeth.

But there are persons of ample means who pay no attention to their own teeth or those of their children. They should be taught the importance of attending to this matter, and if they then refused they should be punished for the neglect of an important duty towards their families.

During the recent freeze up, a large buck deer, pursued by dogs, crossed on the ice near the mouth of Saline and fled up the Ohio bottom past the cabin of Patrick Henry, where the buck, close pressed, took to the ice on the river which was there frozen solidly for some distance over Cincinnati bar.
