ADVERTISING RATES

For small advertisements which are ordered for only one or two weeks the charge is 5c cents per inch for the first insertion, and 20 cents for each continuation. Rate cards are furnished on application at the office. Special contract prices at a reduced rate are quoted for advertisements four inches in size or larger, which are to run for three months or longer.

No special notices inserted unless paid for at the rate of 1 cents per line, and under no circumstances will such paid notices appear in the local column.

Special discounts made on all advertisements connected with Church Fairs, Bazaars, Picnics, etc. o notices will be inserted with the same unless the regular rate of 10 cents per li e is paid.

That THE EXAMINER is considered by local Merchants and Manufacturers to be the leading newspaper in P. E. Island, and consequently the most valuable advertising medium through which to make their announcements public, is abundantly proved by the fact that in order to accommodate our advertisers we have been compelled to enlarge the paper to its present size.

Cottolene
A SHORTENING.

Down the street through the busy way
A lady passed on marketing day.
Who, pausing at a grocery store,
Stepped quickly in at the open door.
With bated breath and anxious mien
She queried: "have you COTTOLENE?"

The grocer, leaving off his work,
Interrogated every clerk;
But none up to that time had seen
An article called "COTTOLENE."

"What is it?" said he to the dame,
"That answers to this curious name.
What is it made of? What's its use?
My ignorance you'll please excuse."

"You're not the merchant for my dimes,
I see you're quite behind the times.
For COTTOLENE, I'd have you know,
Is now the thing that's all the go,
An article of high regard;
A healthful substitute for lard.
Its composition pure and clean;
For cooking give me COTTOLENE."

As from his store the lady fled,
The grocer gently scratched his head—
On his next order, first was seen,
"One dozen cases COTTOLENE."

HUNTING FOR PREHISTORIC MAN.

An Extensive and Tireless Search With Only Meagre Results.

Civilization and science hold a serious grievance against the prehistoric man, granting, of course, that there was such an individual. They have sought for him high and low, but without success. They have dug for him in gravel banks, dredged for him in swamps, explored for him in caves and ransacked the four corners of the earth to discover his hiding place, only to be baffled in every quest. If the prehistoric gentleman is a reality and not a fraud or a myth he should kindly come to the surface and permit himself to be discovered. At present he is an object of suspicion and of doubt, and if he has any regard for his own reputation as our oldest inhabitant he will lose no time in coming forward and establishing his identity.

The department of archæology of the University of Pennsylvania has made still further advances in its search for prehistoric man in the United States. The explorations of last summer along the Delaware Valley determined the department on a new course of investigation. Instead of trying to trace how far back man existed from gravel cuts and mounds, it was decided to investigate in caves. For this purpose a party, headed by H. C. Mercer, started for the caves of Texas and Tennessee about two weeks ago. Their investigations proved to be important. In the caves of Texas it had been asserted that human remains had been found, with which were found shells and pieces of pottery. Thinking a clew of the period might be found the party explored caves in Duval county and Bee county, Texas, but discovered that the remains were found in one layer, while the shells and pottery occupied a higher layer, but had fallen down by the gradual caving of the bank, so that nothing important resulted. In Tennessee, however, some important discoveries were made. The Nickajack and Lookout caves, near Knoxville, were thoroughly explored, and human remains were found, while in the same layer were found bones of the deer, tortoise, elk, rabbit, raccoon, soft shelled turtle, catfish, opossum, spade-footed toad, wildcat, wild turkey, squirrel and others, besides seven species univalve shells. There is no question but that man was associated with these animals, as but one layer exists, and the bones have been positively identified by Professor E. D. Cope.

The most interesting feature, however, was the discovery in the same layer of the bones of the extinct peccary, which have also been found in New Jersey, and also of two teeth of the tapir. The character of the other relics proved the cave to be inhabited by Indians, while the fact that but one layer exists leads to the belief that they had no predecessors in that region. The discovery of the tapir adds one to the list of animals extinct in that region, and dates it Indian further back than had previously been discovered.

BOILING WATER NOT ALWAYS HOT.

Strange Effect of Atmospheric Pressure at Certain Spots of the Earth.

"Cold boiling water, indeed! Boiling water is the hottest kind of thing. Don't I know? Haven't I scalded my fingers more than once with water from the teakettles?"

The speaker was right, and yet, according to the New Orleans Times-Democrat, he was wrong. Boiling water is not always very hot water, in spite of his painful experience. When water boils ordinarily it is because great heat has separated the tiny particles of the water, forcing upward and outward in lively bubbles the air which is contained in them. This is done in spite of the downward pressure of the atmosphere. After the water has become not enough to boil it can get no hotter, because the air escapes as fast as it is sufficiently heated to do so. There are places on the earth where the pressure of the atmosphere upon the water is so slight that it requires but little heat to push apart the particles and set free the air bubbles which are confined in the water, so it begins to boil before it gets very hot. It ought hardly to be called cold water, perhaps, but it is certainly far from being as hot as ordinary boiling water. This state of things is found on all high mountain tops, as the atmosphere grows weaker and its pressure less as one ascends. A gentleman traveling at a great elevation in the Andes Mountains put some potatoes in a pot of water over a hot fire. The water began to boil almost immediately, but the potatoes did not cook. All the afternoon and all night the water bubbled and boiled, but still the potatoes were not cooked. The boiling water was not hot enough.

Bible Confirmed by Discovery.

Infidels believe some statements in the Bible to be made out of whole cloth. Sceptics accept the book as far as "their reason" permits; like a woman who was rating a runaway, and said she "trusted in Providence—till the harness broke." Some Christians look upon the Scriptures as a child does the science of electricity. They cannot see the why and the wherefore, but suppose they will understand some day. But time and again discovery blows a bugle call of victory. The advance of science is a Juggernaut that crushes underneath its wheels the captives of unbelief and denial. For example, the description of the armour worn by Goliath is considered a little "stretched" by the incredulous. Of course, 208 pounds for a coat of mail was a little more than modern warriors can carry. A spear-head weighing 25 pounds required a mighty arm to wield it effectively. But along comes discovery with "the colossal head of an immense lance," found in an ancient Armenian royal palace. Its breadth is five and a half inches, its length 31½ inches, with six holes by which it was fastened to its shaft. The Old Testament story is not so bad after all.

Besides, news is continually flashed over the wire of archæological discoveries which confirm the Bible history. Every find in this century has been like a lightning bolt to strike into everlasting annihilation the doubts and quibbles of the infidel or the agnostic.

Velocipede Chairs in Paris.

An invention which will drive the poor cabbies of Paris almost entirely out of the field is Bertoux's velocipede chair. In this chair ladies can be wheeled all over town by their gallants without sacrifice to their modesty. Any bicycle can be transformed into a cabriolet with this chair. The apparatus consists of a lightly built and comfortable coach seat with a wheel on the right hand side to which a wagon pole is fulcrumed that can be screwed to the hind wheel of any bicycle. The lady mounts the seat and her escort on the right supplies the motor power on his wheel, and can entertain her most pleasantly besides.

An Accomplished Insect.

The bee is an artistic upholsterer. It lines its nest with the leaves of flowers, always choosing such as have bright colors. They are invariably cut in circles so exact that no compass would make them more so.

Deafness Caused by Catarrh.

Capt. S. F. Belyea, of Greenwich, King's Co., N. B., suffered from an aggravated form of catarrh which had in his case induced serious deafness, closed the nasal passages so that he could scarcely breath and caused him great pain and trouble. He tried many remedies, but all failed until he got Hawker's Catarrh Cure, three 25 cent packages of which effected a cure. "I can honestly say" says capt. Belyea "that I am practically well, and I take great pleasure in recommending Hawker's Catarrh Cure to those who may be suffering from this very troublesome disease."

A LOST OPPORTUNITY.

BY VIRGINIA B. BASH.

It was a little town of perhaps not more than three or four thousand inhabitants but it was a live town and an energetic town, and withal, a pious town. It had a half dozen pretty churches, and a Y. M. C. A. building, and a gymnasium and a schoolhouse for every few blocks.

Of course, with all these advantages, it was a temperance town. Scarce a saloon dared show itself, or if it did, it was in some ob-cure corner, and any respectable young man would have blushed for a week if caught in the vicinity. Altogether, it was just such a community as anxious fathers and mothers, seeking a healthy, moral atmosphere in which to rear their boys and girls, gravitate toward as surely as the needle to the pole.

As time went on, the largest church in the town outgrew, or thought it outgrew the building that had sheltered it for years, and by a mighty effort a new one was erected, handsome and fashionable—none too good for the worship of the Lord—no building can be that—but a little to expensive for the worshippers, and so a mantle of debt overshadowed it, which reached beyond the new roof and overlapped the eaves and tucker under the cornice. The original plan had been to retain the old building as a mission chapel, but under the new state of things it seemed inevitable that it should be sold.

The grief of the membership was great: the aged remembered the joys and the sorrows which had culminated within these sacred walls and wept to give them up; while the young and the agressive, who gloried in dealing hard blows at Satan's bulwarks, felt that this was a step backward. Still that dreadful debt remained, and if a purchaser could be found, here was an easy way out of the embarrassment.

The citizens generally regretted the proposed sale. It was such a friendly community that what hurt one hurt all the rest, and so by way of compromise an effort was made to raise the purchase money and dedicate the building to the young people for a reading room and lecture hall, the whole to be under the supervision of a committee drawn from the various churches. For days the scheme was eagerly canvassed and then reluctantly abandoned. So much money had gone into the new church that no more could be done at present.

But although it was given up in the form proposed, one man caught an inspiration from the failure. He was an importer of wines and liquors in the city, who spent his summers in this delightful suburb, and now saw an opportunity to do a stroke of business in his own peculiar line. When the interest in the first proposition had somewhat cooled, he went quietly among the business men, expressed his sympathy with the debt of the church, and proposed that they should relieve it by purchasing the old building for a club house—an institution that so progressive a town could no longer do without. The idea was popular from the start, and the money quickly raised, not only for the purchase but for the necessary improvements.

AN AGED LADY.

Mrs. Ecclestone's Sufferings from Kidney Disease Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills—A Medicine that Produces Good Results for both Old and Young.

ST. CATHERINES, Feb. 5.—Mrs. F. E. Ecclestone, aged 69, a well-known resident of this city, has for some time been afflicted with kidney disease, the symptoms of which were severe pains in the small of her back. She is now perfectly cured This happy result is due to the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills, the famous and infallible remedy for all kidney disorders. Mrs. Ecclestone says the pains have never returned since her recovery, and her happiness over her restoration to sound health is indescribable. These pills are manufactured by Dr. L. A. Smith & Co., Toronto, and are sold by all dealers, or will be mailed on receipt of price: fifty cents per box, or six boxes for $2.50.

Boston is fast becoming noted for its packing and distribution of finnan haddies. During the season of 1892—93, as near as can be estimated, 1,800,000 pounds of these fish have been smoked there. They have sold from 4½ to 8 cents per pound. The amount smoked this season it is thought, will be larger than last year.

The Modern Invalid.

Has tastes medicinally, in keeping with other luxuries. A remedy must be pleasantly acceptable in form, purely wholesome in composition, truely beneficial in effect and entirely free from every objectionable quality. If really ill he consults a physician; if constipated uses the gentle family laxative, Syrup of Figs

It is calculated that in fifty years the population of London (England) will be ten millions; and if the suburbs are taken into count, two or three times that number. No wonder politicians belonging to both the great English parties are taxing their brains to find out a plan to prevent the rush of the country people to the cities and the glutting of the labor market, with all the miseries that follow in the train of cheap labor and the hand-to hand fight for bread. Those who have seen laborers actually fighting at the London dock gates for the privilege of earning 12 cents an hour know the real meaning of the Liberal idea "unrestricted competition."

Notice to Parents.

All parents are especially requested not to neglect to give their children Hawker's Balsam of Tolu and Wild Cherry for Coughs, Colds, Croup, Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Influenza, etc. It is the children's favorite and a sure Cough cure. Sold everywhere. Price 25 and 50 cents a bottle.

If half that the critics say is true, the French navy is in a bad way, and the British war alarmists have been making a big fuss with very little reason. There is no doubt that France has been spending a great deal on her navy, but it looks as if she had not got good value for her money. Britannia still rules the waves, and seems likely to do so for some time to come.

Success produces Imitations. Genuine Pond's Extract is sold only in bottles, with landscape view on buff wrapper.
