Morell Soldier Wounded In Hand In Korea

Word was received by Mrs. Matilda Eldershaw of Morell on Thursday, November 8th, that her son, Private Ralph Joseph Eldershaw had received a minor hand wound from shrapnel in the Korean war theatre.

Private Eldershaw, 26 years of age, joined the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry in July of this year, and received his basic training in Ontario. He had previously been a fisherman. He returned home on furlough and left about a month ago for Vancouver, B.C., where he embarked for Korea.

Ralph is the fifth brother to see action in a war theatre, four others, Harry, Cecil, Wilfred, and Reginald, being veterans of the last world war.

Mr. Harold Mooney, Montague, was a business visitor to Charlottetown recently.

The many friends of Mrs. John Kelly (nee Nelly Mercier) of Gasperaux, are sorry to hear of her illness in the King's County Memorial Hospital.

Mr. Hiram Lecco and Mr. Irving Llewellyn of Summerside recently visited Murray Harbour North at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Llewellyn.

Attending the State Dinner from Montague at the Charlottetown Hotel on Friday evening in honour of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, were Senator T. V. Grant and Mrs. Grant, Hon. Keir Clark, M. L. A., and Mrs. Clark, Judge J. S. Desroches and Mrs. Desroches, and his Worship mayor B. H. Yeo, and Mrs. Yeo.

MANPOWER Vs. MUDPOWER—When this jeep couldn't make it, the broad backs of these U. N. troops supplied the power to push the heavily-laden jeep and trailer up to the top.

Souris Red Cross Nursing Committee

A Nursing Committee of the Souris Branch of the Red Cross Society was formed this week when a group of nurses from that area met in the office of the Public Health Nurse for the purpose of organizing.

Mrs. Melvin McQuaid was named chairman and the other members of this Committee include Mrs. W. P. B. Corkum, Mrs. Major Reid, Rollo Bay, Mrs. Howard Pouchere and Miss Noreen Noonan, Public Health Nurse.

The Provincial Director of Nursing Service, Miss Verna Darach, was present and outlined to the Committee the various nursing services of the Red Cross Society, viz: Sick Room Supply, Blood Transfusion and Home Nursing. She reported that a grant had been made available for the Souris Branch and was the latest piece of equipment added to the Leam Cupboard there. This bed, when loaned, must be recommended for use by the resident doctors. Other Sick Room supplies consist of crutches, invalid rings, thermometers, urinals and bed pans, back rests, rubber sheets, kidney basins, enamel bath basins and pitchers.

The organization of a Home Nursing class was considered and the new Red Cross Home Nursing Manual and Instructors Guide were discussed. It was decided to start an evening class in Home Nursing as soon as a sufficient number of women enrolled. Those wishing to take the course may get further information from any member of the Committee or by enrol by leaving their names with Mrs. Melvin McQuaid as soon as possible.

Three Motor Vessels Dock At Montague

Three motor vessels arrived in port at Montague yesterday morning.

The Nellie A. Cluett, mission ship for the Greenell Missions at Newfoundland, under the command of Captain Kenneth Iverson, will load a cargo of mixed produce for St. Anthony's, Newfoundland, mission port. This is the second trip of the Cluett, having been here several weeks ago.

The Shirley Blanche, under the command of Captain Cecil Paxon, is also taking on a cargo of mixed produce for Gasps, Newfoundland, and the Ruby Wiscombe, registered 140 tons, under the command of Captain James Wagg, will take on a load of potatoes, and other produce for Marystown, Newfoundland. Exporters are Poole and Thompson, local dealers.

Royal Couple

handed their little craft as though it was a fine day at a regatta.

The storm increased in proportions and a coaster lashed to the weather side of the pier and used as a sort of floating grandstand bumped and jarred as the seas pounded along its beam. One bump was so hard it jolted a car two feet that was parked on the jetty.

Inside the Maneco last-minute touches were being put to the tiny cabin that was to accommodate the Royal Couple. Brown and yellow mums and pompons and autumn leaves were used in the decorative scheme and a new carpet was laid on the floor.

Storm At Its Worst

Then the Royal Couple arrived. The storm was at its worst but a smart band which had taken up a position at the gusty end of the pier and had played bravely through the storm, struck up the National Anthem. The Royal Couple then waved appreciatively at the rain-soaked crowd and got wet themselves before moving under the apron of the bridge deck.

An informal honor guard of Newfoundland fishermen, all dressed in oilskins and all cheering, lined the pier. And then a choir started singing the old well-loved Newfoundland folk song—"The Squid Jiggin' Ground." Philip smiled broadly at the verses: "The man with the whiskers is old Jacob Steele, 'He's gettin' well up but he's still pretty sound, 'While Uncle Bob Hawkins wears three pairs of stockings, 'Whenever he's out on the squid-jiggin' ground."

And when the 248-ton tender manoeuvred in the heavy seas to make the channel between a dangerous ledge and the end of the pier, the Royal Couple waved and looked serious as the whole crowd joined the chorus and sang "Auld Lang Syne."

And in a few minutes the ship was pitching and shipping seas over her decks. R. C. M. P. Commissioner M.F.E. Anthony said he was glad he wore his spurs: "You need them on a bucking thing like this."

Thanks Captain

The wildly plunging tender moved with the liner to a better spot than the original trysting place. It was in the lee of the frowning sheer cliffs of Bell Island. Here the seas were calmer and the ships slid close together for the delicate transfer operations. Hundreds of passengers and crew of the liner watched the operation. But before the Princess left she asked for the Captain and told him he had done a "superb job under such tricky conditions."

Philip gave the press one last assist. He was starting up the companionway leading to the boat deck from where the transfer was to be made when some reporters, who didn't notice who it was, came crowding out of their little cabin. The Duke stepped back and with a smile and a wave said: "You chaps go on up first; we musn't get in the way of the press."

The Royal Couple stepped aboard the liner and the tour was ended. A box of codfish which had been presented at the last minute to the Royal Couple by the fishermen was pushed across the gangway. The fleet of fishing vessels set up a loud chorus of whistle shrieking and members of the crews fired their rifles in the air—an old Newfoundland send-off custom. They also cheered and their booming voices even outdid

Opening Today Of Supreme Court

Chief Justice Thane A. Campbell will preside at the sittings of the Supreme Court which open at Georgetown this morning. Six civil damage cases are on the docket.

The first is a case in which the plaintiff, Violet Reynolds, is suing William Miller for damages resulting from the death of Lawrence Miller in a motor vehicle accident near Murray River on Aug. 4th, last.

The case of Peter J. Solomon Georgetown, versus George J. Tweedy, where $20,000 damages are sought, arose from the death of Gerald Solomon at Southport on April 14th last. Further damages of $5,000 are also sought from Mr. Tweedy by Charles Gardiner, who was injured in the same accident.

The first of two damage suits against the C.N.R. is that of Chester Burke and Winnifred Burke for injuries received near the Cardigan Road crossing on Sept. 25th, 1950, and the second is that of Helena Robertson, whose husband was killed at or near the Cardigan Road crossing on the same date. The amount of the damages in the second case is $80,000.

The sixth case is that of the Haselton Granite Quarries, plaintiff, versus Vere Beck and Son, Montague, defendant.

The telegram expressed the cabinet's "deep appreciation of the visit which has given great pleasure not only to hundreds of thousands of Canadians who have seen their Royal Highnesses, but to the millions more who have listened to their broadcasts and enjoyed the descriptions of their activities. In bidding farewell, will you assure Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh that they have a secure place in our hearts and we all look forward to their next visit to Canada."

Gifts To Charities

Before sailing the Princess made known her decision regarding the distribution to charity of money presented to her during the royal tour. The money will go to Canadian organizations for the care of children and for cancer research. In all, the amount involved will be upwards of $6,143. The Canadian Save the Children Fund will get $1,143, and the King George V Silver Jubilee Cancer Fund will get $7,000. The gift to the children fund will include money sent from the Church of The Little Flower congregation, Quailum Beach, B.C., together with an amount as yet undetermined, from the proceeds of a sale by auction of 500 bushels of Saskatchewan wheat, gift of Regina. The gift to the cancer fund is made up of $5,000 from Manitoba and $1,000 each from Prince Edward Island and Ottawa.
