

Senate Tributes To The Late Senator James P. McIntyre

The text of tributes is in the Senate to the late Senator James O. MacIntyre is as follows:
Hon. W. Ross MacDonald: Honourable senators, before we proceed with the business of the house I refer to the sudden passing of one of our colleagues, Senator James P. McIntyre. I am sure we were all shocked last evening when we heard that he had passed away in Boston. It seems only a few days ago that he was with us. It is true that he did not then appear to be in the best of health; nevertheless we did not think for one moment that we would not see him again.

Senator McIntyre was a close friend of many of us. He was always ready to do our bidding; and he took a great interest in the Senate. The first time I ever heard him speak was in this chamber. I believe on that occasion he was speaking on the motion for an Address in reply to the Speech from the Throne. He did not have a note in his hand or on his desk. I recall that he made a particular reference to Canada's national debt and her per capita debt. He also gave the total debt and the per capita debt of each province and he did all this without reference to notes. He did not start at Newfoundland or Nova Scotia and go across the continent, but skipped from the east to British Columbia and back to Ontario, and then on to Alberta, and so on. I believe he also gave Canada's total population and that of each province. I thought it was an amazing performance. I had never heard anyone do such a thing before.

Senator McIntyre was born on July 19, 1889, at St. Andrews, Prince Edward Island, the son of William D. McIntyre and Elizabeth McKinnon. His parents were of that hardy Scottish stock which immigrated to this continent to escape religious persecution in their native Scotland. I am sure it is unnecessary to summarize the achievements of many of those hardy pioneers. Suffice it to say that that was the calibre of our late colleague.

The late Senator was born and raised on the farm, and became a farmer, but he also branched out into other endeavours and became one of the leading lobster packers in eastern Canada. He was president of the Savage Harbour Packing Company and a director of several other business developments in his native province. At an early age his ability in public affairs was recognized, and in 1917 he was a candidate for a seat in the Prince Edward Island Legislature, to which he was first elected in 1919. He was defeated in 1923, and re-elected in 1927, in

Legion Auxiliary Meeting Is Held

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary, Canadian Legion, Montague, was held at the home of Mrs. John Hughes, Friday evening, April 12th, with fifteen members and two visitors present. The president, Mrs. George McKeenan, was in the chair, and the meeting opened in the usual manner. The correspondence and the minutes of the last meeting were read by Mrs. Wellington Campbell. In the absence of the treasurer the financial report was read by Mrs. Jessie Shaw.

The sick committee reported that treatments and cards had been sent to two sick members and an ever-eran. Plans were discussed for holding an auction sale at the home of Mrs. Atwood MacDonald in May, each member to bring a friend. A donation was voted towards the Crippled Children's Fund, and five dollars to the Red Cross campaign.

Rebekah Lodge Has Regular Meeting

The regular meeting of Acme Rebekah Lodge, Montague, was held Thursday evening at the noble grand, Ruth MacLeod, presiding.

Following the opening ceremonies, the correspondence and minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Alice Green. Arrangements were discussed for holding the annual banquet on the 25th. Other business matters discussed included plans for assisting at the school of instruction which will be held in Charlottetown early in June.

The illness of Erma McGaren, deputy president of Acme, was deeply regretted by the members. Following the business, the members participated in a White Elephant sale conducted by Florrie White. Lunch was served by Mrs. White and Mrs. MacLeod.

which year he was appointed Minister of Public Works and Highways in the Government then headed by Premier Saunders. He was re-elected in 1931 and 1935. In 1935 he became Minister of Public Works and Highways in the Campbell Government and he continued to hold a seat in the local Legislature until 1943. He was summoned to the Senate on February 21, 1943.

Senator McIntyre was known to a host of friends on the Island as Jim Bill McIntyre. His kind and hospitable nature endeared him to everyone, and I am sure it will be difficult for many of his fellow Islanders to accept the fact that he is no longer with them. They will be comforted, however, by the fact that his was a life dedicated to high purpose and public interest, for he had left a legacy of good works long to be remembered.

I am sure honourable senators will join me in extending to his wife and children sincere sympathy in their very great loss.

Hon. Felix P. Quinn: Honourable senators, at a time like this it is difficult to find words to express what is in one's heart in referring to the passing of one of our most respected and lovable colleagues. I give that his full meaning, for since Big Jim McIntyre entered this chamber I have regarded him as one of my closest friends, and I feel his passing very keenly. I little thought when he said good bye to me, only a few days ago, that I would never lay eyes on him again in this life.

Jim McIntyre was a real Canadian citizen; he was a patriot, a man who loved his Canada, but above all his native province, Prince Edward Island. He proved that by his devotion to public life. The honourable Leader of the Government (Hon. Mr. MacDonald) has referred to his record as a public man. I can only repeat that for 40 years our late colleague gave of his best to the government of his province, and then he was rewarded by a seat in the senior chamber of the Canadian Parliament.

He was most attentive to his duties, and very seldom missed a sitting of this body. He devoted a good deal of time and interest to the work of this chamber; and when he spoke, he did so with meaning, as is indicated by the illustration which the honourable leader gave us in referring to one of the late senator's speeches.

Senator McIntyre had a wonderful memory, and a wide knowledge of the important affairs of his country. He was an honest, upright and God-loving Christian man. I do not think he did harm to anybody in his life. He was gifted with the help of a most wonderful wife; she was a charming and lovable woman and made for him a splendid home. About a year ago Senator McIntyre was much concerned when his wife had to go to hospital. Fortunately, she recovered and came back. We little thought at that time that in less than a year Senator McIntyre himself would have to go for treatment to the same hospital, from which he would never return.

I am deeply grieved by the passing of Senator McIntyre, and I wish to join with the honourable Leader of the Government in extending to Mrs. McIntyre and the other members of the family our most profound and heartfelt sympathy.

Hon. F. Elsie Inman: Honourable senators, it is with a great feeling of sadness, that we are called upon to mourn the passing of a valuable and highly respected colleague and member of this chamber. Senator McIntyre's death is a distinct loss to the Senate, and especially to Prince Edward Island, whose interest and welfare were so near to his heart. He was one of the Island's most outstanding citizens—well known throughout the length and breadth of the province, and indeed well known all over Canada. He visited every province in connection with his duties as Minister of Public Works in Prince Edward Island, and his opinions and judgements were sought and accepted as being sound and reliable.

Born at St. Andrews, Prince Edward Island, the late Senator McIntyre left his home as a young man to seek his fortune in the United States. After a short while he returned to his native province, where he found the way of life more to his liking. He acquired a farm on the beautiful shores of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, where he engaged in farming and lobster packing and made a success of both undertakings.

The McIntyre homestead has always been the epitome of hospitality, and both the senator and his wife extended a smile and the hand of friendship to all who came to visit them there.

Senator McIntyre gave 24 years of his life to the public service of his province, first as private member of the Prince Edward Island Legislature and later as Minister of Public Works, before being summoned to the Senate, in 1943. I knew Senator McIntyre for many years and found him always kind and sincere friend. He could not be a more ordinary school-teacher, but he was blessed with great natural talents, some of which were reflected in this chamber on one or two occasions when he sought to expand a bit, in a vein of eloquence which I think anyone might envy, on the beauties of Prince Edward Island.

He will leave a real void in this chamber; and on behalf of all of us from Upper Canada — if I may put it that way—who learned to have a real attachment for him, I express my deepest sympathy to Mrs. McIntyre and family.

Hon. Jean-Francois Pouliot: Honourable senators, the late Senator McIntyre well deserved the eloquent and moving tributes which have been paid to his memory; and it is comforting to those who survive our deceased colleague to realize that friendships made in the Senate are not broken even by death. I have a vivid recollection of the strong handshake that Senator McIntyre gave me after my appointment to this chamber. He said to me, "I am glad that you are with us." It was a touching welcome, and I shall never forget it. I remember the senator as a man who had a high sense of duty, and who remained at his post in the Senate until a grave illness forced him to go to the hospital. As I was walking up to this building in his company, only about a month ago, he told me that some medical men had warned him that his days were numbered. But he faced the inevitable with courage, a courage inspired by a profound and sincere belief in God. He said, "I cannot do otherwise than try as much as I can to stay longer with my family. If it is God's will, but he was a man of deep convictions. He was naturally gifted as a speaker. I remember his powerful voice and his accent of sincerity when he was speaking in this chamber. As he was kind, he had countless friends; and it is my privilege to join all those who have so well spoken of him, and who will still remember him, in offering most profound sympathy to his widow and their eight children.

There was a warm simple Celtic hospitality about Senator McIntyre and his wife and family and their own home, which I think might be regarded as characteristic of the kind of hospitality that one receives on the Island. I look back on that visit to his place, which occupied most of one after-

Poor Catches In Southern Kings

Reports from Southern Kings on the opening day of the trout season indicated a poor catch for fishing enthusiasts in general. Muddy roads kept most anglers from their favorite haunts in favor of easily accessible areas. However, several of the more ardent fishermen managed to catch their limit.

Mr. William Stewart, a season- angler from Milltown Cross, presented the largest trout of the day for the opening day prize of $5.00 which is donated yearly by Mabon Drug Co. The trout weighed 1 lb., 10 oz., and makes Mr. Stewart eligible for the $10.00 prize which is donated by the same firm for the largest trout legally caught during the open season.

Mr. Doug Sorrey was the envy of most anglers, coming home with four beautiful trout each weighing approximately one pound. Mr. Keith Collins, last year's prize winner was reported to have caught the limit, as was Mr. Kenneth Clements.

Game Warden John White reported that, in the ponds he inspected yesterday, the best catches were made in the evening. 115 trout were caught at Knox's Dam one at Brudenell and one at Millview.

First Pre-Easter Service Held

The opening meeting of the Pre-Easter services conducted in Montague this week was held at the United Baptist Church last evening, with Rev. D. A. Campbell, presiding.

The church was filled to capacity, and the music was led by a large choir composed of members from the various churches. The Scripture lesson, Galatians, the sixth chapter, was read by Rev. J. M. Fraser who also led in Prayer.

The guest speaker was Rev. M. North, and he chose as the theme of his sermon, "The Glory Of The Cross," using as his text, Galatians 6:14, "God forbid that I should glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ."
