THAT CLERK.

(Concluded.)

'Then you meet some that are true?'

'Yes, indeed; Judge Agate's wife, who always seemed so proud and distant, came up to me with a glowing face and fairly congratulated me. She did it like a lady, too, and like a friend. There was nothing patronizing about her. And there were several others to whom my position makes no difference. They prize me for what I am. Yet what a price to pay for learning the value of true friendship,' added Laura with a deep sigh.

'I met Aggie Doyle to-day, and she wouldn't speak to me,' said Alice, Laura's sister, who had come into the room and overheard the last remark. 'Why should she not speak to me, I wonder.'

'Because your sister is a clerk in her father's store,' said Laura, somewhat bitterly.

'That's no reason why she should treat me so,' the child replied.

'Of course it isn't; nor is it any reason why Lizzie, her eldest sister, should ignore me. I liked her so much, too. But to-day she came into the store and passed me with such a glance after I had prepared a smile and a welcome for her. Mr. Doyle has been so kind since papa's death that I looked for better treatment from Lizzie. That, I confess, wounded me; and I shall have to meet her so often! But never mind, I must remember my place,' she added. 'I have to work for my living now—but I will be proud of it! Good-bye, old life of lazy ease! Good-bye, old worthless friends! Your coldness cannot hurt the real me; it is only the worthless young lady of fashion who feels it, and she is slowly departing this life.'

* * * * * * *

'Have you filled all your invitations?' asked Lizzie's elder brother, one of the firm of Doyle & Co., some days after the preceding conversation took place.

Lizzie was arranging a hundred or more tiny, cream-colored envelopes, which she tied together with some pretty, bright hued ribbon.

'I believe so,' she replied, with a smile. 'I have asked every young lady of my acquaintance, and I think our party will be the finest of the season, if papa will have the carpets taken up in the west rooms and the floors chalked. Rutger will do them for fifty dollars, and you have no idea how beautifully he works.'

'I think father will not refuse that,' her brother replied. 'I'll speak to him.'

'Thank you, Al. Then I am sure he will have it done. I have asked him for so much that I was almost afraid to ask him for more.'

'By-the-by have you invited Miss Laura Stanley?' her brother asked as he was going out.

'Of course not,' said Lizzie.

'Of course not? and pray, why not?' he asked standing still.

'Why, Al, what an idea! She wouldn't expect. Our shop-girl—fathers's clerk; I wouldn't have her for the world!'

'Then, if you're sure she would not come you might have sent her an invitation out of compliment,' her brother replied.

'I don't consider her an acquaintance,' said Lizzie, and Al walked out of the room with a shrug of the shoulders.

Presently her father came in. 'Lizzie,' he said, 'I partrcularly wish you to send a note of invitation to Miss Stanley.'

'Papa, you don't mean it!' exclaimed Lizzie, chagrined.

'Indeed, I do mean it. What! slight the daughter of one of my most cherished friends, because she has come down in the world in a money point of view? I should despise myself for it.'

'But, papa, she won't come,' said Lizzie.

'Never mind whether she will or not. Write an invitation. I'll take it to her.'

Lizzie sat down, pale and angry, to write the note. After all her boasting of having 'cut the Stanleys,' it was very hard to be obliged to invite Laura. Her cheeks grew hot as she indited the polite little missive, while she remembered the many times she had ignored her to whom it was addressed. She would have disobeyed had she dared—would even have withheld the note aftes it was written, had her father not stood by to take it.

Later, her brother Al came to her.

'I should like an invitation, Lizzie, for a young lady of my aequaintance,' he said,, in a quiet voice.

'Who is she?'

'The young lady whom I have asked to be my wife,' he said, smiling.

'Oh, Al, of course you shall have it! I am to have a sister, then? I am so glad. What is her name? Is she in the city? Will she be sure to come? I'm sure I can't think of anyone.' And then she paused, puzzled at his shrewd smile.

'Do I know her?' she asked.

'You used to,' he answered. 'It is Miss Laura Stanley?'

'Oh, Al!' She sank down, covering her face with her hands.

'I was afraid she might feel the slight so keenly,' he said softly, 'that I hurried matters a little. So you need not be afraid now that she will not come. Will you not prepare an invitation?'

'I have. Papa has carried it to her. But oh, Al, a clerk!'

'A noble woman,' said her brother, 'who dares face the sneers of 'her set.' and take an honest position for the sake of those who are dependent upon her, rather than whine about her former dignity, and live upon charity. I wish there were more like her.'

So Lizzie was forced, for once in her life, to eat humble pie.

The Greatest Medical Discovery since the Creation of Man, or since the Commencement of the Christian Era.

There never has been a time when the healing of so many different diseases has been caused by outward application as the present. It is an undisputed fact that over half of the entire population of the globe resort to the use of ordinary plasters.

DR. MELVIN'S CAPSICUM POROUS PLASTERS are acknowledged by all who have used them, to act quicker than any other plaster they ever before tried, and that one of these plasters will do more real service than a hundred of the ordinary kind. All other plasters are slow of action, and require to be worn continually to effect a cure; but with these it is entirely different: the instant one is applied the patient will feel its effect.

Physicians in all ages have thoroughly tested and well know the effect of Capsicum; and it has always been more or less used as a medical agent for an outward application; but it is only of very recent date that its advantages in a porous plaster have been discovered. Being, however, convinced of the wonderful cures effected by DR. MELVIN'S CAPSICUM POROUS PLASTERS, and their superiority over all other plasters, they now actually prescribe them, in their practice, for such diseases as rheumatism, pain in the side and back, and all such cases as have required the use of plasters or liniment. After you have tried other plasters and liniments, and they have failed, and you want a certain cure, ask your druggist for DR. MELVIN'S CAPSICUM POROUS PLASTER. You can hardly believe your own convictions of its wonderful effects. Although powerful and quick in its action, you can rely on its safety for the most delicate person to wear, as it is free from lead and other poisonous material commonly used in the manufacture of ordinary plasters. One trial is a sufficient guarantee of its merits, and one plaster will sell hundreds to your friends.

Ask your druggist for DR. MELVIN'S CAPSICUM POROUS PLASTER, and take no other; or, on receipt of 25 cents for one, $1 for five, or $2 for a dozen, they will be mailed, post paid, to any address in the United States or Canadas.
