

Canada's Birthday Party To Be National In Scope

"Portable" seems to be the key word in Canada's plans for the 100th Centennial. It developed from an interview yesterday with John Fisher, commissioner of the national centennial administration.

Apparently, it means every effort will be made not only to bring parts of the Centennial to everyone in Canada, but also to have as many people in Canada travel to other parts of the country to see and take part in what is happening.

CONFEDERATION TRAIN
Not the least of the former, according to Mr. Fisher—whose knowledge of Canada and his ability to talk about it are equally as amazing—will be the plan with historical data, it will travel across the continent, and up and down it, bringing to the people the story of the great beginnings and greater development of their nation.

Mr. Fisher says the basic aim of the Centennial is to strengthen unity, and this can best be accomplished by persuading people to move around, get acquainted with Canada and their fellow Canadians, and see how they lived, only the participation of the people themselves can make them a success. There is no centennial Santa Claus, and no magic signal saying when to go; everyone must start his planning and work now, he stated. Governments can only give leadership, the people must do the things for themselves.

"Old Home Week on a national scale," is his description of the intent of the big celebration. On the local scene to address new graduates of Prince of Wales College this morning, "Mr. Canada," as he is known, has been the subject of local plans for the big 1967 Centennial here.

WAYS TO CREATE VOYAGE
Mr. Fisher said one of the finest ways to promote the basic plan unity will be in linking Quebec and Charlottetown to illustrate the start made on giving birth to a nation. One possibility, he said, is re-creating the voyage to this city of the delegates from Upper and Lower Canada who came to the Maritime meeting held in this city.

"Charlottetown wrote the first chapter in nationhood in 1864 when the great quest for Mr. and Mrs. James Dewar, Brudenell, is CONVALESCING made per capita grant to match them two to one. Here it would mean Ottawa would make available approximately $100,000 for the Centennial, or it could be spread around, Mr. Fisher noted. The decision would rest entirely with the provincial government.

Among the more important things Canadians can see in 1967 will be the Pan American Games in Western Canada and the World's Fair in Montreal. Many other major events will take place in a wide variety of different parts of the country.

In the provincial field of 1967, the federal government will make per capita grants to provincial governments provided local authorities plan to match them two to one. Here it would mean Ottawa would make available approximately $100,000 for the Centennial, or it could be spread around, Mr. Fisher noted. The decision would rest entirely with the provincial government.

Mr. Grant, who was elected in health for Nova Scotia, and the chairman for the exercise, Dr. C.M. Bethune, paid the tribute to Senator Grant on the occasion of the graduation of his youngest son, Raymond, as a doctor of medicine.

Dr. Bethune recalled that this was the fourth son of Senator Grant who himself a medical doctor, to graduate from Dalhousie University School of Medicine; and one of a number of Dr. Kenneth Grant, son of Dr. A.R. Grant, Summerside, is also a Dalhousie graduate. Dr. Bethune stated that had he known Senator Grant was in the audience, a special scroll would have been presented in his honor.

GIVEN A LIMITED building site, the best solution is the story and a half or two storey plan. In this particular design you can start out with a two bedroom one storey home. The upstairs bedrooms and bath can be added later, if necessary, especially if you have provided for future expansion in the original structure. The living - dining facilities are large enough for a 4 bedroom family. There are plenty of cupboards in the kitchen and eating space is abundant. Stairs to upper floor, basement and side entrance are located for easy traffic circulation. House is brick veneer but details for building in solid block or frame are supplied. Design could be built on a very narrow lot (less than 40 feet) but of course would require a wider one if an attached garage was to be included.

Wide Variety of Insurance Available To Home Owner

Insurance of one form or another, must be a major consideration for anyone thinking of buying or building a house. Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

There are many different kinds of insurance available to protect a home-owner's investment. The type that first comes to mind is fire insurance. If you own an NHA-financed home, it must be protected by fire insurance for an amount at least equal to the loan. For example, if you obtain a $12,000 loan you will need a $12,000 fire insurance policy on your property. In case of fire damage, the holder of the first mortgage, that is the lender, has first claim on the insurance proceeds. It is strongly advisable therefore to have fire insurance coverage for the extended period to protect your own investment in the house, as well as the lender's.

Fire insurance policies are normally renewable every three years. Your mortgage budget account should include savings toward payment of the fire insurance premiums. Your lender will usually send you a reminder before the expiration date of your policy, urging you to look after its renewal.

who says Bricks for outside only?!

Have you heard that said? Don't you believe a word of it! Brick—used mainly on the interior—is just about the strongest, simplest way there is for adding character to a house... can give an otherwise humdrum wall... an entrance hall... kitchen... (to mention only a few possibilities), a charm of contrast that literally sings!

And when you use SHAW BRICK, there's a whole wonderful range of tones and textures to choose from... bound to include several that will merge—accent, perfectly within the design-scheme of your home. It's worth thinking about... and the cost is unbelievably low! That's for sure with SHAW!
