In the Great West.

Our Grand Mountain Scenery,

Our Wealth of Minerals,

And Our Splendid National Park.

Not the least pleasurable part of a trip from ocean to ocean is the wild and beautiful mountain scenery. To attempt to describe it would be a task far beyond our power. And it has been pictured time and again by our best pens, as far as pens can paint. Going west we enter the Rockies a few hours' drive from Calgary, and wonder after wonder opens on our gaze as we pass from base to base of those rugged pyramids towering thousands of feet above the world-worshipped monuments of the Pharos, and laved by singing rivers, deep-bosomed canyons and rushing cataracts. One stands mute at the foot of Mount Stephen, as he throws up his apparently impenetrable barricades to our way, and trembles to see the daring villagers posted far up on his right flank, penetrating into his very vitals to expose the precious silver found there. Verily, man will venture anything for money. Let only one of those frowning boulders break loose and the whole miner's camp, perched twelve hundred feet above the road bed, is crushed into atoms and buried in irremovable debris below. But silver is not the only treasure of the Rockies. They are mining anthracite coal in several places, and gold and other metals are found almost everywhere. Little villages stand sentinel at each opening turn of the range, and a station houses beautifully fashioned out of round, peeled and varnished pine logs receive their complement of freight and passengers of every passing train. All the mountain peaks are named—some of them from their appearance, as Castle, Cathedral and Citadel Mount; others from our public men, as Hector, Stephen, Van Horn, etc. Just at this side of the castle range, and surrounded on all sides by the boldest peaks of the great Pacific chain, we came upon Banff. Here, in the presence of every variety of lake and mountain scenery, is located Canada's National Park. We stopped off a whole day to enjoy its pleasures—to climb rugged mountain sides, rove over the mirror-like surface of Devil's Lake, plunge into the much-frequented Sulphur Springs, and enjoy the sumptuous fare of the luxurious and charmingly pretty G. P. R. Hotel. A village, or what Banffers call a town, surrounds the station on the bank of the Bow River. You can get almost anything in the shops, and at prices to make a calculating P. E. Islander gasp for breath. Here, too, are many rustic summer houses constructed from logs like the stations, where the blue blood of the land languishes for months in the sultry summer. Lady Macdonald has recently had constructed a log hut of this style, and we expected there to occupy it shortly after we passed. From Banff we went on next morning, surleiting on every new object of admiration espied from the always occupied observation car; now looking up thousands of feet at a glistening snow-capped peak, now anxiously surveying the black depths of some rushing river hundreds of feet below. The wonderful loop whereby a descent of several hundred feet is effected lies slightly on the other side of the glacier house, which looks out upon a great mountain side of eternal ice. Many tourists stop to climb the ascent and stand on an immense body of solid ice in the burning sun of a July day. We admired and passed on, feeling that our obligations called us elsewhere and that they must be faithfully discharged before the inviting shores of dear Prince Edward Island again loom up before us. Going west one enters the Selkirk at Golden. There are two great mountains beautiful, if not so stern and majestic, clothed in their deep green tints, than the bare and overhanging Rockies. And as we get on in our course the steep-banked and turbulent treacher keeps us company. We see the Indian villages at regular intervals and the rough, narrow and dangerous mountain path to the Caribou gold mines all along for miles upon miles. Viewing it, the conviction grows upon us that it sings the sad dirge of many an unfortunate gold seeker, for whose return many deep sighs were heaved and heaved in vain in many a distant home.

To GAIN the public confidence is essential to business success and it can only be gained by a steady course of faithful dealing with them. It is by this course that Messrs. Tuckett & Son have secured the great success of their "Myrtle Navy" tobacco. This confidence is not only a source of business to the firm, but also a source of economy which the consumer gets the benefit of. The merchant never loses a moment of time in examining the quality of the tobacco. The name fixes the quality as absolutely as the mint stamp fixes the value of the guinea. It is not even necessary for the commercial traveller's trunk to be burdened with a sample of "Myrtle Navy." All his customers know what it is, and know in an instant when it has been supplied. There is no room for any dispute about it. No waste of time or postage in writing complaints about it. These may look like trifles to the uninitiated, but they save money, and enable merchants to perform the work of distribution at the smallest possible cost. They are part of the reasons why the finest quality of tobacco grown can be sold at so cheap a price.
Fruit jars, porcelain tops, glass water set, porcelain and glass lamps, will be sold cheap at W. P. Colwill's. j25 w41 dy eod

Trout Fishing at the North Lake

Wishing for a good day's sport, and as past experience in that line determined our objective point, a party of four set out from Souris early on one cool morning last week for the North Lake. Among our number were Yankoo and a Nova Scotian. As we drove along through the fine stretch of country, up along the North Side, our friends were loud in their praise of the scenery. As for ourselves "familiarity begets unconcern" we only wished to get to the fishing grounds as quickly as possible. After a pleasant drive of two hours from Souris, we arrived at the Lake. Our friends the American and Nova Scotian, were not slow to admire the broad sheet of water of the Lake, glistening in the morning sun like myriads of the most precious gems. We drove up to "Paddy's," who has every want supplied for the accommodation of the patrons of "ye gentle art." Friend Paddy soon had our horses unhitched and made comfortable, when he conducted our party down to a commodious and well fitted boathouse, erected at the edge of the lake, comfortably shaded by groves of birch. Here he found everything required by the most ardent sport. Boats, rods, fishing tackle of every description, except nets, ice, lockers, the boathouse is divided into several compartments. One division being fitted up as ice-house, parties wishing to spend several days fishing can have their fish preserved on ice for an indefinite time. Mr. Melvin is also prepared to supply the sportsman with every kind of refreshments. After doing ample justice to the inner man, we were ready to man the boats; and, having selected our rods and flies from several offered us by our host, we started up the stream, and such fishing. Our Yankee friend, who said he had cast his fly in the mountain streams of the Adirondacks, in the Kennebec in Maine and in the far-famed Restigouche of New Brunswick, admitted that the North Lake for trout could not be beat. Our Nova Scotia friend, who was quite an angler, felt assured that there were some pretty good streams in his own Province, but 106 fine trout in three or four hours, which he had taken for his share in the North Lake, was the biggest catch he ever got. As for ourselves, who never cast a fly outside of the Island, we were always of the opinion that the North Lake was the best water for trout in the world. And when we returned to the boathouse in the evening with 380 fine trout, 25 weighing over 3 pound, as the aggregate result of the four of us, we thought we had no reason to change our opinion. We confess we then felt like doing justice to the good things prepared for us by "Mac," destined both to satisfy our hunger and quench our thirst. The drive back to Souris in the "cool of the evening" was delightful, and all of us felt fully repaid for our visit that day to the North Lake.

Canada's Oyster Beds.
HOW THEY ARE TO BE PRESERVED.
(Despatch to the Montreal Gazette.)
MONSIEUR N. B., July 30.—The energetic policy now being pursued by the Department of Marine and Fisheries at Ottawa looking to the preservation and extension of the oyster beds of the Maritime Provinces cannot fail to be productive of much good and add materially to the annual wealth of this important fishery. It is a well-known fact that a great many localities in the Maritime Provinces, which were, at one time, noted for the quality of their oysters, as well as for the fertility of the beds from which these molluscs were taken, have of late years become greatly depleted, and in some cases entirely exhausted, owing chiefly to reckless and inordinate modes of fishing and the utter absence of any artificial aid in the propagation of the species, or care in the protection and cultivation of the grounds to which they were indigenous. Among the exhausted oyster beds are those at Shediac, N. B., once the most famous in all the country, but now of no commercial value whatever. Senator Poirier, whose forefathers fished these beds, was the first to bring the question of restocking them prominently to the attention of the Government. He made the question the subject of a speech in the Upper House, and the case he made out was so strong that a Conference lost no time in getting the fullest official information. As a result, a conference of fishery inspectors was held at Ottawa in April, 1891, among the recommendations of that conference being the prohibition of mud digging within 200 yards of any live oyster bed, subdivision of productive beds into three sections to be fished alternate years, and the restocking of old and depleted beds. An appropriation of $5000 was voted by parliament for the survey of oyster beds, and a start has been made at Shediac, where 270 acres of water area have been set apart for the purpose of carrying on natural and artificial reproduction.
Petitions have, in fact, been received for the setting apart, survey and restocking of the following waters:
Shediac Harbor, Baie Verte and Tidnish, in the Province of New Brunswick.
Eastern Harbor, Cheticamp, Fader's Pond on the south side of St. Ann's Bay, Sydney River, Lingan Bay, Mira Bay, Catalone Bay, East Bay, and Big Glace Bay, in the Province of Nova Scotia.
Summerside Harbor, Orwell Bay, Emore West, and Winter Rivers in the Province of Prince Edward Island.
Two experts were brought out from England a few weeks ago, and the work has since been progressing very satisfactorily under their supervision. A system of licensing grounds, especially for oyster planting, has also been devised similar to that in force in France and other European countries, and also in some of the United States. Certain areas in San Francisco Bay, it is said, yield a rental of $100 per acre, but here the fee is fixed at $1 per acre, and the following licenses have been issued:
Mrs. D. Hatton & Co., Montreal, 81 acres near Baie du Vin River, County Northumberland, N. B., for fifteen years.
Joseph Haley, two acres in Pownal Bay, P. E. I., for nine years.
Chas. A. Hyndman, Charlottetown, 40 acres in North River and Ellen's Creek, P. E. I.
Messrs. Hatton & Co. have already planted a large area, chiefly with Prince Edward Island oysters, for carrying which they have a steamer. Several other parties have applied for areas in various parts of the province.

Blood Poisoning!
SKODA VICTORIOUS!
THE FOLLOWING CASE WILL BE YOUNG FOR BY MANY OF THE BEST CITIZENS OF BRISTOL, AND THE CURE THAT FOLLOWED IS TRUTHFULLY RECORDED.
"For months I had been a great sufferer from supposed Blood Poisoning, and its attendant results. My legs would swell to twice their ordinary size, and from my feet to my hips both legs were one solid mass of great purple sores. My arms and body also became affected in like manner. Senseless itching and burning tormented me day and night. I lost my appetite. My bowels became constipated. I was much reduced in flesh. People said I would die, and I believed there was no help for me. This was my condition when I began taking SKODA'S DISCOVERY and SKODA'S LITTLE TABLETS. I was using SKODA'S LITTLE TABLETS, using SKODA'S DISCOVERY, and I had gained fifteen pounds in flesh, and I had proved in every way.
Less than one course of the DISCOVERY, with SKODA'S LITTLE TABLETS and SKODA'S OINTMENT, has completely cured me.
My appetite is excellent. Swelling all gone from my legs. I feel well. Bowels in good condition. And my skin is free from sores and blotches, and only the slight scars upon my legs tell of my previous trouble.
