OBITUARY

Inserted by friends and relatives as a tribute to the deceased.

MRS. (HON.) H. H. COX

On the morning of January 9th, 1963, at the Prince Edward Island Hospital, the valiant, generous spirit of Mrs. (Hon.) H.H. Cox passed to her eternal rest.

Service in her memory was held in the new, recently dedicated United Church at Morell. The address given by the Rev. D.R. McLennan was appropriately devoid of superlatives, so coincident with Maude's aversion to ostentation. The church scarcely held the large number, who paid their final respects, and bade their last farwell, to one whose generosity and interest in her friends, was a paramount characteristic.

As is usual in the "In Memoriam" address book were quotations from appropriate poems. Among them was one from William Cullen Bryant's Thanatopsis which Maude was addicted to quoting. She died we know with the faith and philosophy which these inspired words exemplified.

"So live that when thy summons comes, to join
The innumerable caravan, which moves
To that mysterious realm, where each shall take
His chamber in the silent halls of death.
Thou go not like the quarry slave at night.
Scourged to his dungeon. but sustained and soothed,
By an unfaltering trust, approach thy grave,
Like one who wraps the drapery of his couch
About him, and lies down to pleasant dreams."

The pallbearers, and flower-bearers, were her friends from Morell: Lou Kelly, Art Blaxland, Alban McAdam, Wendell Coffin, Jimmy Jay, Freeman Jay, Robert McKenzie, Gerard McInnis, Somerled Kelly, and Leland Anderson.

Three of her favorite hymns were rendered splendidly, and with evident emotion. by the United Church choir, directed by organist Mrs. Lohma Coffin, all of whom were personal friends of the deceased.

THE MONTHLY meeting of the York Men's Association will be held in Brackley United Church on Thursday evening February 14th, at 8 p.m. Guest speaker Reid Sangster.

S. Viet Nam, U.S. Friction Sparks Nationalist Campaign

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (Reuters)—Rumors of friction between the United States and South Vietnamese officials here are feeding a stepped-up nationalist campaign against President Ngo Dinh Dien's regime, diplomatic sources said Wednesday.

The six major clandestine groups opposing the president are generally anti-Communist, but some favor a coalition government.

U.S. Ambassador Frederick Nolting underlined the friction rumors Monday when he said in a speech relations between the U.S. and South Viet Nam could be improved if there was more frankness and "less touchiness" in the association.

First sign of increased nationalist propaganda against the regime came Jan. 27 when leaflets showered crowds celebrating the lunar new year at a waterfront carnival here.

The leaflets, signed by the leader of the anti-Communist National Revolutionary Council of Viet Nam, Dr. Pham Huy Co, called for overthrow of the Ngo government.

Press reports from Paris, where most of the nationalist leaders live, said Pham had called on his agents in Saigon to take "direct action" short of killing.

In the statement broadcast by a Communist North Viet Nam news agency, he suggested an international conference to guarantee the independence and neutrality of South Viet Nam.

Meanwhile, the government's campaign against Communist guerrillas received a boost Wednesday with the announcement that the U.S. will turn over to South Viet Nam five new warships specially designed to patrol coastal waters. The spokesman said 17 more of the ships will be turned over to South Viet Nam in the next months.

Bomb Threat Sparks Uproar In Washington

WASHINGTON (AP)—Pennsylvania Avenue was thrown into an uproar during the noon hour Wednesday by a man who drove his automobile up the U.S. justice department steps and threatened to blow up the building.

Routed by tear gas after a two-hour siege, during which he demanded an audience with FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, Nathan Wise, 33, was taken to a psychiatric ward for observation. He had no bomb.

Relatives in Phoenix, Ariz., where he was connected with a department store, said Wise cracked up about a year ago after his father's death and had been under psychiatric treatment.

"He's sick; he needs help," said Mrs. Joan Wise, his wife.

The building he chose for the lunch-hour drama is one of the big stone government edifices that line the south side of Pennsylvania Avenue, midway between the Capitol building and the White House.

It contains the offices of Attorney-General Robert Kennedy and the national headquarters and crime detecting laboratories of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The attorney-general was out of town, but Hoover was in his fifth-floor office when a sedan with Arizona licence plates suddenly veered across the sidewalk and came to rest halfway up the steps of the building's main entrance.

CRAWLS UNDER CAR

Wise got out from behind the wheel and crawled under the car, trailing a pair of wires and a small metal valise. In the car were several five-gallon cans which appeared to be connected to the other end of the wires.

Police and fire department emergency equipment quickly surrounded the area and all traffic along the avenue was halted at both ends of the building.

A call went out to the army for a bomb demolition squad. An ambulance slid into view and halted. Shoppers and government workers in stores and restaurants across the street were warned to stay away from glass windows and doors.

Police tried for more than an hour to talk Wise into coming out from under the auto. He was quoted as saying he had "evidence" that would result in the impeachment of President Kennedy and the whole cabinet.

Finally a small group of riot police wearing gas masks lobbed seven tear gas grenades under the car and Wise crawled out in a hurry. He was taken first to police headquarters and then to hospital.

The lethal-looking metal valise was found to contain nothing but newspapers and a flashlight. Army bomb disposal experts found no explosives in the cans.

Electrical service is available to 95 per cent of farms in Ontario—many of them in remote northern areas.
