Three very fine looking sheep await their turn before the judges at the Alberton Exhibition which concludes today. (Photo by Wotton).

With only two legs evoked considerable interest yesterday when exhibited at the Alberton Exhibition. Despite its obvious physical handicap this freak pig is able to balance himself and move about at will. Owned by Mr. William E. Morrell of Knutsford, this three month old pig is one of a litter of fourteen. It has no hips or hind legs, and according to a veterinarian it is a direct freak. This unusual animal will be on exhibit again today at the exhibition. (Photo by Wotton).

136 Blood Donors At Kensington

Short 68 donors in first two days of blood donor clinics, Kensington obtained 136 of its objective of 150 donors at the Red Cross clinics held in St. Marks Hall last evening under the chairmanship of Mr. Gordon Cooke. Ninety-nine of these donors represented some 20 of the districts surrounding Kensington while the remainder were residents of the town. The newly renovated St. Marks hall was kindly placed at the disposal of the Red Cross for this clinic and provided most convenient quarters.

The ladies of Margate Womens Institute as well as of Kensington provided and served most delectable refreshments for the donors and workers while other efficient helpers carried out the many different duties in connection with the clinic.

With four of the seven clinics of the week completed the quota is short by 68 to date. It is to be hoped that the clinic to be held today at Afton Hall in New Dominion, at North Rustico tonight and at Charlottetown will exceed their objectives and make up for the 68 the island is short at the present time.

World's Population May Double Next Century, Say Experts

ROME (AP)—Experts yesterday told scientists from 70 countries here for the world's first population conference on population, that the earth's present 2,000,000,000 population may double in the next century.

Birth rates are relatively stable, the experts report, except for the post-war baby booms in the United States and some Western European countries. The population gain is attributed to progress in prolonging man's life span despite the toll of wars, accidents and the increasing known fatality rate of cancer and heart disorders.

Harold F. Dorn of the National Institute of Health, Bethesda, Maryland, placed before the conference's opening day session a report that in the United States men born in 1970 may expect to live three years longer, and women four years longer, than those born in 1950. His figures for life expectancy of white males were 1950, 66.6 years; 1970, 69.8 years. For white females: 1950, 72.4 years; 1970, 76.4 years.

Hurricane Leaves

Voluntary war topped at the storm's height. The coastline, its communication lines crippled, the 6,000-ton Liberian freighter, Rosario, out of Bremen, Germany, which reported trouble off the shoals of Nantucket. Later the ship radioed she had ridden out the storm and needed no help.

After several hours' search, the coast guard picked up three boys adrift in a boat on Quincey bay. A fishing boat identified only as the Friendship radioed she was in distress and trying to reach shore at Noman's Land, an island at the tip of Martha's Vineyard.

WATERS RISE

Swirling waters rose to four feet in Providence and five feet in Westerly, R. I. In Westerly's main street several automobiles were covered completely as they stood parked on the street. Declared emergency areas were Cape Cod, Mass., New London, Conn., Providence and Westerly.

Scores of yachts were splintered at City point, south Boston. Several radio and television towers were blown over in the greater Boston area.

New Bedford and Fall River, each with a population of more than 100,000, had no electric power. A state of emergency was declared in Malden, a Boston suburb, and two national guard companies were mobilized for overnight duty.

The navy reported that the aircraft carrier, Nebuta, Bay was driven aground at the navy yard in Boston. The carrier, being overhauled, snapped her stern line. Seconds later, a shore crane crashed into the carrier's bow, breaking a second wharf line and sending the vessel adrift. The winds drove the ship into the muddy beach at a 15-degree list.

At Fall River, Gulf Oil Corp. officials estimated damage to its waterfront properties at $1,000,000.
