Sees Good Prospects For Developing Dressed Meat Trade With Newfoundland

Prince Edward Island shippers are looking out on a considerable amount of the dressed meat trade in Newfoundland, much of which is coming in from Montreal, Toronto, and as far west as Saskatoon, states Mr. Woodrow Wheatley, Charlottetown livestock and produce dealer, who returned recently from a week's business trip to Gander and St. John's.

These men quoted to him the following excerpt from the report of the Royal Commission on the Cost of Living in Newfoundland:

"Many Newfoundland butchers own small slaughter houses and kill a large number of P. E. Island cattle bought either direct from shippers on the Island on shipping point weight basis or at auction during the months of moderate weather. Most of the cattle sold on consignment are reported to be of lower quality than those bought direct. Nevertheless they are auctioned on a per head basis and realize high prices. The cattle imported by butchers are bought and settled for on f.o.b. P. E. Island shipping point weights, settlement being made on the local shippers' weights from scales owned by the shippers or other private operators, indicating that Newfoundland buyers of P.E. Island cattle do not have the protection and benefit of Government supervised weighing. Such protection is provided in other provinces where similar types of trading are carried on. The Commission is of the view that with a proper approach to the P. E. Island Government by the Newfoundland importer of cattle, buying f.o.b. that Province, public weighing facilities could be provided at strategic shipping points under Government supervision."

Mr. Murray, Director of Agriculture at St. John's, also complained of the "Eskimo traffic upsetting marketing conditions. He commended the proposed move to obtain a dressed meat refrigerator boat and said this would have the support of the Department of Agriculture in Newfoundland.

Mr. Murray told Mr. Wheatley that he would welcome more visits from marketing board or Federation of Agriculture representatives from Prince Edward Island who would study Newfoundland needs with a view to discussing better regulated marketing conditions.

Pickled Beef Consumption

The Royal Commission report also noted a very heavy consumption of pickled beef and fat back pork in Newfoundland, these products being much less perishable than fresh frozen or smoked meats. Eighty percent of these comes from the United States. Newfoundland consumes approximately thirty-five million pounds of meats per year, slightly more than one-third of which is in the form of pickled beef or pork, and only 20 percent of which is produced in Newfoundland.

Mr. Wheatley was also shown a copy of the "Newfoundland Journal of Commerce," official organ of the Newfoundland Board of Trade, in which it is stated that the prosecutions against parties violating the terms of the Inspection Act by marketing or transporting packages containing potatoes or turnips without provincial inspection tags, were instituted following a visit of the P.E.I. ship Eskimo to Corner Brook at the end of last September, and resulting events.

DEVELOPED FINE APPLE Charles Hammett Snow, a federal agricultural official who died in 1931, was responsible for development of the "Snow" apple.

Mr. Wheatley states that while the Newfoundland Government is evidently going "all out" in an effort to promote industries within their Province, and many new ventures are under way, he could not find out from any Government source where importers or traders in produce within Newfoundland were getting any Federal subsidy.

He quoted George Neal Ltd., commission livestock auctioneers, as stating that about 75 percent of beef coming into Newfoundland now is dressed, and that the trend is still further in this direction. He also interviewed eleven butchers in St. John's, who emphasized the need of getting dressed meats and complained of not getting proper weight and grades on what they were purchasing f.o.b. from this Province.
