

More Poets—Well Known in, but not of the Island.

"I had rather be a kitten, and cry mew! Than one of these same metre ballad-mongers." —Shakespeare.

"Such shameless bards we have; and yet 'tis true, There are as mad, abandoned critics, too." —Pope.

"Imbecility may be pitied, or, at worst, laughed at and forgotten; perverted powers demand the most decided reprehension. A caustic is here offered, as it is to be feared that nothing short of actual cautery can recover the numerous patients afflicted with the present prevalent and distressing rabies for rhyming." —Byron.

"A plague upon the people fell." —Tennyson.

"Cease—cease your torments! spare the sufferers! Scotchmen, not their's the deed." —Southey.

"Dear harp of my country in darkness I found thee." —Moore.

(P. S.—Examiner arrived about dusk) "Maturer years shall happier stores produce, And ameliorate the well-concocted juice." —Cowper.

"Disenchantment! Disillusion! Must each noble aspiration Come at last to this conclusion, Jarring discord, wild confusion, Lassitude, renunciation?" —Longfellow.

"Ye muses pour the pitying tear." —Goldsmith.

"Why sleeps the muse— 'Tis sloth or pride that finds the gift too small." —Smollett.

"Sleep undisturbed within this peaceful shrine Till angels wake thee with a note like thine." —Johnson.

"Ye shepherds give ear to my lay." —Shenstone.

"Si casnibus silvas, silvae sint Consule dignae." —Virgil Buc.

"The vigor of these poems are no less remarkable than their pathos. The verification, although carrying the fanciful to the very verge of the fantastic, is, nevertheless, admirably adapted to the wild insanity which is the thesis of the poems." —EDGAR A. POE'S poetic principles.

"What we best conceive, we fail to speak. Wait, soul, until thine ashen garments fall! And then resume thy broken strains, and seek Fit perforation, without let or thrall." —Mrs. Browning.

"Io! Poem? Io! sing To the funny people's ring, Not a mightier whale than his In the vast Atlantic is." —Charles Lamb.

"Twinkle, twinkle, little star How I wonder what you are." —Old Ballad.

Tall Houses

The loftiest houses in England, and probably in the world, are some recently erected in the West End of London, which are twelve stories high and are flats. Elevators travel to each story, and electric bells and speaking tubes are in every room. There is a wine cellar for each tenant, the male servants are in liveries, the females wear a neat uniform dress, and one quarterly payment covers servants, taxes, gas, and every ordinary item of housekeeping, even down to insurance of furniture.

Art of Swimming.

Men are drowned by raising their arms above water, the unbuoyed weight of which depresses the head. When a man falls into deep water, he rises to the surface, and will continue there if he does not elevate his hands. If he moves his hands under the water in any way he pleases, his head will rise so high as to allow him full liberty to breathe, and if he will use his legs as in the act of walking (or rather walking up stairs), his shoulders will rise above the water, so that he may use less exertion with his hands, or apply them to other purposes. These plain directions are recommended to the recollection of those who have not learned to swim in their youth, as they may be found highly advantageous in preserving life.

Made a Mistake.

A farmer, as the story runs, who wished to halter a fractious horse running at large in a field, thought to deceive the animal and accomplish his purpose of stratagem. So he tied the end of the halter secretly around his body, and then hiding it behind him, and bearing a bountiful supply of oats in his hand, approached the beast with cautious steps. Finally, getting near enough to pat the horse on the neck, he soothed him a few moments, and then, suddenly producing the halter, clapped it over his head and secured it in a moment. As soon as the horse discovered that he had been tricked, he started on a wild run, dragging the farmer over stones and through brambles until he was nearly killed. Having been rescued and restored to consciousness, the farmer said: "The horse hadn't run fifty yards before I saw where I had made a mistake."

The Greatest Medical Discovery since the Creation of Man, or since the Commencement of the Christian Era.

There never has been a time when the healing of so many different diseases has been caused by outward application as the present. It is an undisputed fact that over half of the entire population of the globe resort to the use of ordinary plasters.

DR. MELVIN'S CAPSICUM POROUS PLASTERS are acknowledged by all who have used them, to act quicker than any other plaster they ever before tried, and that one of these plasters will do more real service than a hundred of the ordinary kind. All other plasters are slow of action, and require to be worn continually to effect a cure; but with these it is entirely different: the instant one is applied the patient will feel its effect.

Physicians in all ages have thoroughly tested and well know the effect of Capsicum; and it has always been more or less used as a medical agent for an outward application; but it is only of very recent date that its advantages in a porous plaster have been discovered. Being, however, convinced of the wonderful cures effected by DR. MELVIN'S CAPSICUM POROUS PLASTERS, and their superiority over all other plasters, they now actually prescribe them, in their practice, for such diseases as rheumatism, pain in the side and back, and all such cases as have required the use of plasters or liniments. After you have tried other plasters and liniments, and they have failed, and you want a certain cure, ask your druggist for DR. MELVIN'S CAPSICUM POROUS PLASTER. You can hardly believe your own convictions of its wonderful effects. Although powerful and quick in its action, you can rely on its safety for the most delicate person to wear, as it is free from lead and other poisonous material commonly used in the manufacture of ordinary plasters. One trial is a sufficient guarantee of its merits, and one plaster will sell hundreds to your friends.
