

Baby Literature.

"Here comes the soagers, aunt!" cried Ike, at the door, "here they comes in their bear-skins!"

"In their bare skins!" said Mrs. Partington,—"glancing out of the window into the cold, towards the weathercock that had looked obstinately east for three days, much to the danger of a return of her rheumatism that an east wind always induced, so much so that she had declared her determination to move in the vicinity of some Catholic Church, whose vane always points one way,—in their bare skins such a day as this! Highlanders, I guess."

She hastened to the door, and a company, with huge and hideous caps, were then marching by. She saw that she was sold.

"Ah!" said she, "this is one of the horrors of war, to go looking so; and 'spos one of them poor creatures should fall down,—he is so top heavy his heels would go up in the air, like a cornstalk with, and all his brains would run down into his head. I can't bear to look at them."

At a church in Scotland, where there was a popular call for a minister, as it is termed, two candidates offered to preach, whose names were Adam and Low. The latter preached in the morning, and took for his text, "Adam where art thou?" He made a very excellent discourse, and the congregation were very much edified. In the afternoon, Mr. Adam preached upon the words, "Lo, here am I." The impromptu and the sermon gained him the appointment.

I say, Sambo, does you know what makes de corn grow so fast when you put de manure on it?

No I dont, Pompey. Now I'll jist tell you.—When de corn begins to smell de manure, it don't like de fumery, so hurries out of the ground and sits up as far as possible, so as not to smell de bad air.

"I can't bear children!" said Miss Prim, disdainfully.

Mrs. Partington looked at her over her spectacles mildly before she replied. "Perhaps if you could you would like them better," she at last said; "but why is it that unmarried old maids and single bachelors are always railing at the children? It seems as if they had never read the command to our forefathers to increase and multiply and punish the earth. For my part, I love the little dears, and I had rather hear a child cry any day than hear the brass band.

And she went right to work covering a ball for Ike.

A ragged little boy being kindly accosted and presented with some candy by a very tall man, looked up to his benefactor, and in a tone of sympathy asked—

"Does not your head feel giddy and dizzy?"

"No my child. Why do you ask?"

"Because it is so far away up there from the ground."

The gentleman passed on.

An Irishman with a heavy bundle on his shoulder, riding on the front of one of the Neck cars was asked why he did not set his burden on the platform. He replied,

"Be jabbers the horse have enough to do to drag me, I'll carry the bundle."

NOT BAD—A good thing is told of the President in Raleigh. While responding in a feeling manner to the welcome given him, he used the expression: "Let us, my dear friends, repair the breeches"—and before he could add "made by the war," an old woman exclaimed with perfect delight: "Bless the dear man, he has come home again to work at his old trade!"

I think, said a farmer, I should make a good Parliament man, for I use their language. I received two bills the other day, with requests for immediate payment. The one I ordered to be "laid on the table," the other to be "read this day three months."

An exchange, in speaking of the magical strains of a hand organ, says: "When he played Old Dog Tray we noticed eleven pups sitting in front of the machine on their hind haunches, brushing the tears from their eyes with their paws."

"Ma, if you will give me a peach I will be a nice boy." "No, my child, you must not be good for pay, that is not right." "You don't want me to be good for nothing, do you?"

A very indifferent orator having concluded an address, asked Catullus whether he had excited compassion. Certainly, replied the latter, for everyone who has heard you has pitied you.

A doctor up town recently gave the following prescription for a lady—"A new bonnet, a cashmere shawl, and a new pair of gaiter boots."

At a public garden in the suburbs of London, a waiter, observing one of his master's customers bolting before his bill was paid, roared out to a brother attendant: "Run, run, Bob, there's two twers and a glass of brandy and water escaped over the fence—catch 'em."

"No Cards" is fixed to marriage notices because the parties played their cards before marriage. This is a new theory; and will be generally accepted.

When a pickpocket pulls at your pocket, tell him plainly that you have no time to spare.

At a celebration of a marriage, a large number of young ladies were present, the minister said, "Those who wish to be joined in the holy bands of matrimony will please stand up," and all the young ladies arose.

"Am I not a little pale?" inquired a lady, who was rather short and corpulent, of a crusty old bachelor.—"You look more like a big tub," was the blunt reply.

A lady being asked why she did not use the medicated soap, replied that she got plenty of soft soap from her bean, and that always put plenty of colour in her cheeks.

in Mr. H. J. RICHARDSON'S Old Stand, which he trusts will be the real Fashionable one of Summerside. If an accurate fit, a stylish cut, and superior workmanship can ensure custom, he flatters himself he shall not be without patronage from the tasteful and discerning. Every trade requires brains, and none more so than the art of cutting and making up a garment to fit every variety of the human form; but some people seem to imagine that it requires no more judgment to cut a coat than to hew a log,—an erroneous idea, the effects of which are seen in the tasteless and ill-fitting garments we every day behold in the streets. There is no earthly reason to prevent us Provincialists from being as elegantly and fashionably dressed as the Americans, and the subscriber will use his best endeavors to reach a "consummation so devoutly to be wished."
