Will Discuss Diet Problem

If Mike Hennessy can write about himself in his column, he can write about the problem of dieting. He will discuss the problem of dieting, which is after all a very popular indoor sport, and who knows it may start the ladies reading our column. First of all, we want to establish the disagreeable truth that no matter how many new diet schemes a person tries, he will always end up by coming back to the same old, old same old driver, "will-power." Dieting can be made to look exciting and easy, and it may start following one with great enthusiasm, but sooner or later the old man "will-power" pops up and brings you back to stern reality.

Sleep Well With Snack

On the nights that we yield to temptation and have our snack, we write "muse" on the date opposite the date, and sneering at our image in the mirror, we say, "why, you cowardly, little piggy," or "heated, dandy, son of a rooster, you." It grieves me to have to sleep in the same bed with you. Instead of counting sheep to go to sleep, we keep calling ourselves names. We sleep well with a snack under our belt, however, after only three or four insults, we're sleeping like a log. So you are, folks. Why don't you try this new diet program, "man or mouse?" There's nothing but a mouse as you would see it in the mirror, and we are scoring under five mice. You see, the wife keeps pulling me to the dishes for midnight snacks within easy reach. But we're still fighting, and we can assure you, next week will be different.

Airmen Have Field Day

RCAP had a field day at 15 and the airforce took pontiacs Queen Elizabeth Park on Saturday. Both their baseball and softball teams won their ball games, each by the narrowest of margins. In the baseball game, Gaidel's Save-Easies 16-
