'Back-To-School' Jitters Even After Fifty Years

ELORA, Ont. (CP) — Veteran school teacher Lois Black started teaching in a one-room rural school and obtained degrees and diplomas until when she retired three years ago she was associate professor in modern languages at a South Carolina women's college. After 50 years' teaching, Miss Black bought a house in her native Wellington County, Ont., and settled down to retirement. But this fall the call to teaching was so strong that Miss Black will be back in school, teaching a junior class in a two-room school at Waterloo.

"For the 50th time I shall have the 'back-to-school' jitters, but they'll disappear as soon as I face my new class," says Miss Black with a laugh. "Children today aren't as fond of hard work as they used to be. But we have a larger percentage of happier children," says this experienced educationist. EMPHASIS SHIFTED Children used to have compulsory chores at home but today the emphasis has shifted to entertaining the youngsters. "Teachers are often alone in trying to instill ambition," Miss Black declares. But modern entertainment media have made children more observant and she is often amazed by their ability to take in a great many details at a glance. Miss Black started teaching in a small rural school at Acton, and took a three month course at Elora Model School. Later she obtained a teaching certificate at the University of Toronto. Not content with her qualifications, after four years more teaching, she took a high-school specialist certificate with honors in English and French at the University of Western Ontario and a master's degree in French at Columbia University, New York.

Many Island Friends Attend Amherst Wedding

Trinity - St. Stephen's United Church Amherst, N.S., was the scene of a wedding of interest to friends throughout the Maritime Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock when Rev. L. B. Campbell D.D. united in marriage Joan Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Darrel M. McGuire of Amherst and Paul Whiteney, son of Lieut. Commander and Mrs. Clarence A. Balcom of Dartmouth, N.S.

The church was decorated with baskets of white and pink gladioli and lighted with white tapers in wrought iron candelabra. The guest pews were marked with sweetpeas and white satin bows. Gordon White of Charlottetown played the wedding music. Walter T. Purdy of Amherst was soloist, singing "The Lord's Prayer," and during the signing of the register, "O Perfect Love."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of embroidered slipper satin, form fitting and long in the bodice, bellying out in a full chapel trained skirt. The long sleeves tapered to points over her hands. The long veil of silk net, with embroidered border, worn by the bride's mother at her wedding, was held in place by a matching cap. She wore a single strand of pearls and matching earrings, gift of the groom. Her cascade bouquet was of sweetheart roses and stephanotis.

Miss Margo McGuire was maid of honor for her sister, wearing a floor length gown of white embroidered Swiss nylon over aqua taffeta with strapless bodice and full skirt, and matching shrug jacket, headress and mitts. She carried a fan of white sweetpeas and yellow sweetheart roses.

The bridesmaids, Miss Phyllis Tait of Charlottetown and Miss Marjorie Scott of Halifax, wore identical gowns of rose shirring nylon tulle over taffeta, with strapless bodices, shrug jackets, and floor length full ruffled skirts matching headresses and mitts. They carried fans of white sweetpeas and peach sweetheart roses. The flower girl, Miss Roni Le Fenwick of Kentville, cousin of the bride, was in a dress of white flowered organza with full skirt over crinoline with matching bandeau. She carried a basket of peach sweetheart roses and sweetpeas.

The best man was Graham Wilson of Dartmouth. The ushers were John Merry of Middleton, Robert Dickie and Alfred Howard of Halifax and George Hill of Dartmouth.

Following the ceremony a reception attended by 125 guests was held at the Fort Cumberland Hotel. Dr. Lemuel E. Prowse of Charlottetown proposed the toast to the bride, to which the groom responded.

The bride wore an aqua suit with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Her sister, Miss Lucy Chaisson, as bridesmaid, wore a pink suit with white accessories and corsage of white carnations.

The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Kenneth Gavin.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents.

The house was attractively decorated with pink and white streamers. The bride's table was centered with a three-tier wedding cake, topped with miniature bride and groom and flanked on either side with bouquets of seasonal flowers.

After a brief honeymoon trip to St. John, N.B., the young couple returned to Alberton South where they will reside. On Monday there was a family supper at the home of the groom's parents. A three-tier wedding cake, surmounted with miniature bride and groom, centered the table. It was flanked with vases of cut flowers.

A FAREWELL As we leave P.E. Island for our home in California we wish to thank all our friends and relatives for the wonderful birthday party and all their kindness which made our vacation here one to be long remembered and as we drove across the island, those thoughts are in my mind. As we drove one evening across P.E. Island And watched the sun go down Its golden hue with the clouds so blue Formed a bridge from earth to heaven And as it sank lower and lower And passed from view in the west I thought how our Father in Heaven This beautiful Island has blessed Mrs. M.S. KEEP IN TRIM Does A Girdle Keep Figure From Spreading

By IDA JEAN KAIN During the hot weather season, to wear or not to wear a girdle seems to be the question. Many of you inquire if going without a girdle will cause your figure to spread more. Let's analyze the situation. A girdle affords a certain amount of outside support. If you take this support away and your own muscles are not up to bracing the abdominal wall, chances are your figure will spread. Toss calorie discretion to the summer breezes, and extra pounds will figure in the spread—both with or without a girdle. Now, let's view the situation from other angles. If you use your girdle as a prop and settle into it instead of pulling it up and leaning against your own backbone, then the constant use of a girdle promotes the loss of muscle tone. To cure the cause of the spread, restore tone to your own muscles and practice on-the-girdle posture. Thus your own girdle soon becomes your own shape. Are the loveliest figures those which are well constrained through proper corseting? No! That "corseted" look is never young and lissome. TAKE IT OFF The question boils up frequently as to whether a girdle should be worn while doing housework, walking and taking exercises. If you are in good healthy condition, it is better not to wear a girdle while doing your housework. Give your own muscles a chance to strengthen. Also remember that the best exercise is the practice of good posture—pull up firmly with that fine strap of muscle that extends from the pelvic girdle and attaches at the top of the thorax. And pull in snugly with the bias muscles that span the midrib of the abdomen. This up-pull muscles are not attached to the breast bone nor to shoulder girdle. The middle muscles must take the up-lift action—shoulders should be relaxed.

When walking for exercise, leave off your girdle, but be sure to pull slim through the middle, for this strengthens the muscles and streamlines your figure. Never wear a girdle while doing callisthenics.

Summed up... you do not need to wear a girdle for health purposes if you are in good physical condition. If your muscles have gone completely to pot, restore tone before discarding your girdle for long periods. Also there are certain cases where a girdle gives needed support — with a drooped stomach, in some conditions of lower back troubles, and when you are recovering from an illness.

However, it is ridiculous for healthy normal women to have the notion they must wear a girdle every minute in order to keep from spreading. Cure the cause... rather than restrain the effect!
