U.S. Has Trouble Finding Polaris Sub Bases In Med.

ROME (AP) — The United States was reported here encountering political problems in finding a Polaris missile base in Spain or Italy.

But an American source said Washington is going ahead with plans to station three Polaris subs in the Mediterranean starting April 1.

The source said the three will run long distance patrols out of Holy Loch, Scotland, until a Mediterranean base is found.

Premier Fanfani's Italian government faces a general election in late April or early May and is eager to go to the voters with an Italy free of U.S. missile bases. Jupiter land-based missiles are being withdrawn from Italy.

Gen. Franco of Spain is said to be demanding admission to NATO as his price for permitting use of the base at Rota, Spain.

U.S. Deputy Defence Secretary Roswell Gilpatric discussed the Polaris problem with Fanfani and Defence Minister Gullio Andreotti. The source said Gilpatric told the Italians Washington wanted to maintain April 1 as the target date for closing Jupiter missile bases in Italy and Turkey, with the Polaris subs taking the place of the Jupiters in NATO defence lines.

DISCUSS ALTERNATIVES

The informant said Gilpatric and Andreotti discussed alternatives if the Spanish base of Rota remained unavailable to the Polaris subs.

The defence pact between the United States and Spain must be renewed. Gilpatric was to have visited Madrid to get the talks going. But last weekend Washington announced his trip to Madrid had been postponed. The U.S. embassy in Madrid said neither Spain nor the United States was "ready to start talking."

Washington, the source said, was not prepared to promise NATO admission to Madrid as the price for a five-year extension on U.S. use of the Spanish bases.

In Italy, the problem was one of domestic politics. Fanfani and Andreotti are Christian Democrats and staunchly pro-NATO. But the government needs the backing from the left-wing Socialist party, which is neutralist and anti-NATO.

Fanfani opponents have accused the premier of playing a double game—pretending to get rid of NATO missile bases while planning to let Polaris subs operate from Italian bases.

Last week Fanfani's office said the Polaris subs would not operate from an Italian base.

Canada's Cuban Exports Decline

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian exports to Cuba plummeted last year to their lowest level in 15 years.

The trade department said here exports to the Communist - controlled Caribbean island totalled $10,800,000, little more than one-third the $31,100,000 record established in 1961.

Not since 1947 had Canadian exports to Cuba been at such a low level. The total that year was $7,500,000.

Officials here believe that commerce between the two countries—a cause of much criticism of Canada by elements in the United States—will continue to sag in 1963.

They predict that exports this year may drop to $4,000,000 or perhaps less, because of Cuba's dollar shortage and the reorientation of its trade toward the Communist bloc.

Cuba's dollar earnings largely dried up last year after the U.S. stopped buying leaf tobacco from the island.

It was receipts from this trade which had enabled Cuba to finance essential imports from Canada and a few other Western countries.

Because trade prospects are considered dim, the trade department does not intend within the foreseeable future to replace the Canadian commercial attache in Havana, it was learned.

The last attache, Alfred Savard, was withdrawn several months ago.

KELLER DIES

Dr. Keller began his career as a pastor and teacher in Egypt. Later he was a proponent of the World Council of Churches. He was author of more than 100 books.

OIL MOVES AGAIN

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—The flow of Iranian oil to world markets resumed Monday after a three-day interruption caused by the revolution in neighboring Iraq. Iraqi pilots returned to the job of navigating tankers and freighters on the Shatt-al-Arab River. The Shatt-al-Arab separates Iran and Iraq at the head of the Persian Gulf.

Opening lead—ace of spades.

You don't look a gift horse in the mouth. If the defenders give you a chance to make a contract that should be defeated, you grab that chance for what it's worth and hope everything comes out all right.

Look at this hand where the defence could have taken the first three tricks against five diamonds doubled. West led the ace of spades, on which East played the three, requesting a shift to some other suit. East knew that a spade continuation would be harmful, and wanted West to play a heart.

But West, reluctant to lead away from the K-J, and seeing a singleton club in dummy, shifted to a trump in an effort to cut down dummy's ruffing power.

It was a fatal error. Playing as though he had seen the opponents' cards, declarer proceeded to make the contract. He took the diamond in dummy, cashed the ace of clubs, and ruffed a club.

Then he led the queen of spades. East could not afford to duck—otherwise, declarer would discard a heart—so he covered with the king. South trumped and ruffed another club. When he now trumped the seven of spades, West's jack fell, establishing the ten as a trick.

Declarer now ruffed the last club in dummy, discarded a heart on the other spade, and then conceded a heart to make five diamonds doubled.

Of course, West should have played a heart at trick two, in which case South would have gone down. It was hardly possible for South to have both the ace and queen, in view of East's jump to four spades with a relatively poor suit. East was bound to have some strength in hearts.

From declarer's viewpoint, the queen of spades play had to be right. East was marked by the bidding and the opening lead to have the king of spades. The best chance of developing the ten of spades into a trick was to lead the queen from dummy. It provided some hope of establishing the vital eleventh trick.

Heavy Deficit For Canada Is Predicted

TORONTO (CP —Based on present tax rates and expenditure programs, the Canadian Tax Foundation predicts a deficit in the fiscal year 1963-64 of at least $600,000,000 and perhaps as high as $800,000,000.

Deficit for the current 1962-63 fiscal year ending March 31, the foundation says, may approach $600,000,000 instead of the $570,000,000 forecast by the finance minister Oct. 22.

The forecast assumes that the gross national product will grow between three and four per cent in 1962 compared with the estimate of nearly eight per cent in 1962. Revenues from sureharges on imports are not counted in revenue potential for the coming year in view of statements that they would be lifted "as soon as possible."

Indications are that non-budgetary cash needs will not greatly exceed this year's level, the foundation states.

Commenting that its forecast was prepared before dissolution of Parliament, the foundation says it describes the bounds within which any finance minister will operate in the coming fiscal year.

"Whatever government is elected, it will have to start from these realities." It also comments:

"Although the throne speech Sept. 27, 1962, stated that the objective of the government was 'a balanced budget,' it would appear that little progress can be made toward this goal in the coming year unless new taxes are introduced or spending cut back drastically.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A N R

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
