Sympathetic Messages.

BERLIN, June 15.—Emperor Frederick died at 11 o'clock today.

The Reichsanzeiger (official paper) publishes the following: "The royal sufferer has ended his earthly career. By God's decree the Emperor-King, our most gracious master, passed to his eternal rest shortly after 11 o'clock this morning, after long and grievous sufferings, which were borne with admirable fortitude and submission to God's Will. The royal house and German people have been twice bereaved within a short time. They deeply mourn the all too early decease of our much beloved ruler. (Signed) Minister of State."

BERLIN, June 15—noon. The death of the Emperor caused intense excitement in the city. The members of the royal family, and ministers were present in the death chamber at Friedrichskron Palace at Potsdam. A Ministerial Council was held just before the Emperor died.

Bismarck, who presided at the Council, was much agitated.

LONDON, June 15 (1 p. m.) The stock market is inactive and foreign securities a shade firmer, the impression being that the death of the Emperor of Germany will cause no weakening of Prince Bismarck's power, and that a peace policy will continue to predominate in Germany.

It is now stated the remains will be interred beside those of Frederick IV.

The issue of the proclamation of William II. to the nation is not expected until after the funeral.

LONDON, June 15. The St. James' Gazette says the Emperor was a true man and his loss is very great. The new Emperor has his own ideas as to what to do or not to do for the safety of Germany, and these may have a certain importance to England. The Emperor Frederick's death may suspend whatever warlike designs exist in Europe. Later events will move quickly, and England must promptly decide the part she means to play in certain contingencies.
