

MALARIAL FEVER.

After Effects Leave the Victim Weak and Depressed.

Miss Emma Huskinson, a Captain in the Salvation Army, Tells How She Regained Health Through the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

From the Sun, Orangeville, Ont.

Among the oldest and most highly respected residents of Orangeville is Mrs. John Huskinson, whose daughter, Emma, has for a number of years been an acute sufferer from the after effects of malarial fever. A reporter of the Sun hearing of the wonderful effects which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have had on Miss Huskinson, called at her home to enquire into the truth of the rumor. After stating the reason of his visit, she was kindly received by Mrs. Huskinson, who gave him the following facts of the cure: "Some years ago, said Mrs. Huskinson, 'my daughter Emma, who is now Captain of the Newmarket corps of the Salvation Army, was attacked by malarial fever. She was under a doctor's care for a long time and although she recovered sufficiently to go about, the after effects of the fever left her very weak and the doctor did not seem able to put any life into her. She had frequent headaches, was very pale, and the least exertion would greatly fatigue her. We thought a change might do her good and consequently she went on a visit to Toronto. While there she was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and at once purchased a supply. Before she had finished the second box she noted a marked change for the better; her appetite improved, her color returned, the feeling of exhaustion had disappeared, and by the time she had taken half a dozen boxes she was enjoying the best of health and all her old-time vigor had returned. Although her work in the Salvation Army is hard and exposes her to all kinds of weather, she has since been able to do it without the least inconvenience."

"Some time after my daughter's cure I was myself completely run down, and to add to my trouble was seized with a severe attack of rheumatism. Remembering the benefit my daughter had received from Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, I decided to use them, and before I had taken half a dozen boxes I felt fully recovered, and have been in the best of health ever since. My advice to all ailing is to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have restored more weak and ailing women to girls to robust health than any other medicine ever discovered, which in part accounts for their popularity throughout the world. These pills are sold by all dealers or may be had by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CHINESE EXECUTIONS.

Criminals Fare Sumptuously—Then Beheaded.

[North China Herald.]

The 10th ult. was another grand day for the executioners of Soo-Chow. Originally the date had been fixed for the 9th, but owing to the great influx of sightseers it was postponed twenty-four hours. Although the hour of execution was not made public, thousands of people had congregated by noon in the "Woolongkai" or Dragon-st., which runs due north and south, past the Great Pagoda to the execution ground. As the principal prisons are situated at the southern end of the city, the procession had to pass along this street. By three o'clock the first cries of "They are coming!" were heard. In front were the soldiers, banners, and officers on horseback; then came the prisoners, each borne by two coolies. These unfortunate men were all tied securely with stout cords in a most elaborate fashion. Four pieces of rope were used. From the ankle runs a piece was wound spirally round each leg to the hips, and the same was done round the arms from the handcuffs to the shoulders with the two remaining pieces. The four cords thus securely tied, one to each limb, met above the head, where the bamboo was passed through them. A more fiendish way of carrying prisoners could hardly have been devised, as when the coolies lift the criminal, the cords tighten, and by the end of a three mile walk they have buried themselves deep in the flesh.

Each prisoner was accompanied by some half dozen soldiers and two runners, and a yellow flag announced the crime for which he had to suffer. He was allowed to wear trousers, and in his long matted hair there was attached a wooden peg with an inscription to facilitate identification after cutting of the head.

Following the prisoners came some officials—three magistrates with their retinues as usual—and finally the Soo-Chow "Fu." The writer followed the procession, which made its way through densely packed streets to its destination. It seemed as though all Soo-Chow had found its way to the Dragon-st. But not a sound was heard from the spectators. The soldiers formed a square when the execution ground was reached, and the condemned were thrown into a heap like so many pigs. The officials mounted the pavilion, standing to order as the "Fu" entered. After the customary salutations the "Fu" seated himself in the middle, the magistrates to the left and the military officers to the right. At 4 o'clock the word was passed that all were in readiness, forthwith five prisoners were brought within 150 feet of the pavilion, the first on the left raised in a kneeling position, had placed at the distance of fifteen paces to the left of the culprit, made a hasty advance with his sword, as it was concealed behind his back, stopped short, took a glance at the prisoner, nastily drew his sword, and the soldiers firing a badly-directed volley at the moment, cut off the man's head. A wild shout of approbation rent the air from the thousands that had gathered outside the square. This was at once suppressed by the soldiers. The second criminal followed, and so it went on till twenty-three bodies lay on the ground, the whole grewsome operation lasting twenty minutes. The heads were placed in bags, to be dispatched to the districts where the crime had been committed. Runners carried on a brisk trade by dipping charms in the blood. As the heads were being taken back to the respective yamens people along the streets rushed out and stuck little flags and other emblems into the bags containing the heads.

When the last head had fallen the officials rose from their seats and exchanged courtesies. The "Fu" left the scene first, the others following according to rank. The writer, who witnessed the entire proceedings, must bear testimony to the good behaviour of what was the greatest crowd of Chinese ever seen in Soo-Chow city. In all sixty-eight executions have taken place, and more are to follow. The officials I have met have an idea that the present is the right time to show their power and strike terror into the hearts of the evil-doers not yet arrested. It appears that the plot was widespread. At Yang-Chow the prisoners were found full of arms and ammunition. The following occurrence shows the nervous tension among the people. On the 6th, at the fall of the ninth head, a soldier carelessly let fall a spear. This so terrified the executioner that he missed his aim. A shout was raised, "They are coming!" Who? The insiders who had promised deliverance. A general stampede took place of soldiers and spectators alike, with the result that several persons fell in the canal and one person was drowned. The only military officer who remained at his post managed, however, to restore order after a time.

It must not be forgotten that prisoners condemned to death are allowed, some time before execution to partake of a good feast, wine in abundance, and no doubt opium as well. When carried along to meet their fate they are already dead to the world, insensible to pain. I did not hear a sound from them, nor did any of them move a limb perceptibly while lying in a heap on the execution ground.

Dizzy Spells and Headache

Weak, Nervous, and Run Down, would Shake with Horvounes—A Terrible Case—A Remarkable Cure.

Mrs. Chas. H. Jones, Pierceton, Que., writes:—"For years I have been a great sufferer with my heart and nerves. I would take shaking spells and a dizzy, swimming feeling would come over me. Night after night I would never close my eyes, and my head would ache as though it would burst. At last I had to keep to my bed, and though my doctor attended me from fall until spring, his medicine did not help me."

"I have now taken five boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and it has done me more good than I ever believed a medicine could do. Words fail to express my gratitude for the wonderful cure brought about by this treatment."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food makes pale, weak, nervous men, women, and children strong, healthy, and happy. In pill form, 50 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.
