DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
2♥	Pass	3♣	Pass
4♣	Pass	5♦	Dble
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

This wild and woolly hand occurred in a women's team of four championship in England.

At the first table, North, playing the Acol system generally used in England, opened the bidding with two hearts. This showed a better than average opening bid, based in part on distributional values.

South responded three clubs and then went to five over the raise to four. North would probably have carried on to six, except that West decided to double five clubs, which became the contract.

West led the king of diamonds. Declarer ruffed in dummy and played the king of hearts. When West refused the heart and made all the tricks for a score of 1,150 points. If West had taken the ace of hearts, South would still have made the contract, but with only one overtrick instead of two.

At the second table, the bidding started the same way, but ended differently. It went:

North	East	South	West
2♥	Pass	4♣	Pass
4♦	Pass	5♣	Pass
5♦	Pass	Pass	Dble

The opening lead was again a diamond and South had no trouble making six, losing only a heart trick. But the declarer at this table, having bid the slam, scored 1,540 points, producing a net gain for her team of 390 points.

The opening lead, particularly at the second table, proved very expensive. West might have reasoned from the bidding that dummy would show up with no diamonds. North was hardly likely to undertake a slam lacking both the ace of hearts and ace of diamonds, unless she had control over diamonds.

On this basis, West could have led a spade. A spade lead would have defeated the contract.

It is interesting to note that six spades by West could not be defeated, and that neither West at either table chose to enter the bidding — except in the form of a belated double. Had either West chosen to act on the first round of bidding, the result might have been entirely different.

Social Worker Explains Words On Maritimers

TORONTO (CP) — Social worker Mildred Dimma said she was referring to a minority when she said Maritimers who come to Toronto are often uneducated, unprepared for big city life and have little to offer.

"I had no intent of disparaging the educational standards of the people of the Maritimes or the ability of the Maritimers to succeed in Metropolitan Toronto," Mrs. Dimma, executive director of the Metropolitan Toronto Travellers' Aid Society, said in a statement. "Many of our most prominent citizens are from the Maritime provinces."

She said she was referring to the few who come to the travellers' aid for help some of whom "are not equipped to meet the demands of city life."

"This is a problem common to all provinces of Canada and includes people from the hinterlands of Ontario," Mrs. Dimma said.

Her earlier remarks were made in an interview Tuesday.
