Visitors Interested In Tobacco Harvest

Tobacco farms at Grandview, Upper Montague and Greenfield were visited yesterday afternoon by persons interested in promoting expansion of the crop in this province.

Priming or harvesting is well on the way to completion at the farm of Leonard Vaerewyck and Mark Vaneste, Grandview, where the owners estimate another eight to 10 days of harvesting will complete the job.

Harvesting is perhaps more than one-half completed on the farms of Marcel Moysart, Upper Montague, and John Power, Greenfield.

Keen interest was shown in the mechanical tying equipment

WENDALL MacLeod, Fort Hill, won the Perfection Special plowing match at Dundas Thursday. This match is plowed at a slower pace of regular competition rather than at the much more competitive matches.

Edwin Mills, Fortune Bay Takes Kings Plowing Title

By NEIL MATHESON

Edwin Mills, Fortune Bay, yesterday won the Kings County Plowing championship for what must be the fifth time. The runner-up position was taken by William MacInnis, St. Peter's, who won the provincial title four years ago.

Mr. Mills, who has represented the Island four times in Canadian competition and is eligible again next year, had best crown and best finish. Mr. MacInnis had the straightest furrow.

Third place in the county championship competition went to Ray Burke, Strathcona.

It was on September 15, 1960, that Mr. MacInnis first won the provincial crown for which he will compete next week at West Cape in Prince County. Edwin Mills was second on that occasion and Stanley Willis, Cornwall, was third.

The St. Peter's farmer represented the province in Canadian competition at Belleville, Ont., and also on the farm of Macdonald College, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Que.

ATTENDANCE HIGH

Match officials were smiling happily last night and President

Leslie Hunter suggested the attendance might be an all-time record for the match, though Thursday attendances normally are lighter than on Wednesday. Bad weather curtailed the Wednesday attendance slightly this year, but Secretary Albert Acorn said the Wednesday crowd was about average.

The entertainment this year was really good and large numbers of people stuck close to the central stand where dancers and vocalists entertained the crowd throughout the afternoon.

Plowing Judge Archie MacMillan, Truro, N.S., turned in his usually effective job, and his placings were received in the manner accorded a real craftsman.

Mr. Mills got into a spot of trouble in the early part of his plowing task but the experience he has picked up in competition through the last few years carried him through to eventual victory.

Gloria Hunter, Strathcona who topped the class on Wednesday for "Queen of the Furrow" contestants, yesterday won the class for Ladies and had the best crown, furrow and finish.

One of the most attractive bits of plowing seen for some years was the job turned in by veteran plowman, Truelove Taylor, Dundas, who topped the class for horse-drawn gang plows. The old gang always did turn in an attractive piece of plowing when handled by a master plowman, and that's what happened at Dundas Thursday forenoon with Mr. Taylor directing the operation.

All three plowmen turned in good plowing jobs with John MacLeod, Dundas, second with the best furrow, and Robert Jackson, Fortune, third.

Mr. Taylor had the best crown and finish.

Wendall MacLeod, St. Peter's turned in the best job in the Perfection Special, a match in which the general idea is to plow at normal field speed.

Carolyn Campbell, Whim Road, crowned "Queen of the Furrow" the previous day, presented the top award to Mr. Mills at the conclusion of the county title match Thursday evening.

REPORT

power to suspend licences for serious breaches of such undertakings.

CBC headquarters should be in Montreal, not "remote" Ottawa.

Recent CBC reorganization inappropriate and inadequate.

CBC lacks cohesion, unity, esprit de corps and easy and confident internal communications. It is overburdened with administration.

CBC's five-year forecast of expenditures in 1966-70 should be chopped by $33,500,000 to $769,500,000.

CBC should retain present share of TV and radio advertising markets—25 per cent and four per cent, respectively.

CBC should be given borrowing authority—maximum $200,000,000—for capital outlays approved by broadcasting authority.

Spending on CBC's international service should be increased.

Board of Broadcast Governors has not asserted its full powers under Broadcasting Act.

CBC should not receive for next five years additional TV services throughout Canada.

The private CTV network, apart from news and Telepoll, carries few programs of any real value or substance.

The "unsavoury feud" between CTV and its affiliated private stations should be ended, by compulsion if necessary.

Private TV stations are almost exclusively concerned with their own and local interests, the principal one being making a profit.

Private TV stations have been "woefully deficient" in development and use of Canadian talent.

The "necessary" private TV network shouldn't be allowed to fall into the hands of the private stations which have a "sorry record" of performance.

In 1963 the 229 private radio stations spent a "disgraceful" average of only $22.29 a day each on Canadian talent.

The broadcasting authority should establish annual awards for TV and radio productions similar to the Governor-General's awards for literature.

The authority should stipulate a minimum number of hours per week between 6 and 11 p.m. for public service (information and education) programs.

The 55-per-cent Canadian content regulation should be regarded as only a bare minimum.

The broadcasting authority should assess whether private broadcasters spend a fair proportion of income on "artistic creation."

Parliament should set explicit goals for broadcasting and hold the broadcasting authority to annual account for achievement of these goals.

Licences for broadcasting should be granted to educational institutions or corporations, even if wholly or partly owned by provincial governments.

The CBC should receive an annual statutory grant of $25 per TV household, such households now number 4,362,000.

WARNING

Audrey killed 500 persons in Cameron, La., in 1957, they know where to go and what to do with precision.

Exposed areas of St. Mary, Vermilion and Cameron parishes in Louisiana and Sabine Pass on the upper Texas coast were being evacuated.

Last October, an estimated 100,000 refugees were forced to take shelter from Hurricane Hilda, which took 37 lives in Louisiana—and left property damage in the hundreds of millions of dollars.

Louisiana's vast offshore oil and gas operations stood deserted Thursday. All operations were stopped and 3,000 workmen sent ashore for safety.

The Louisiana National Guard was placed on a standby alert.

The U.S. agriculture department announced it has stockpiled enough food in strategic areas to feed 100,000 persons. Medical dispensaries were being set up in refugee centres.

Extra supplies of anti-venom and typhoid vaccine were rushed to the threatened parishes. In some areas, the threat from snakebite is nearly as great as from wind and water.

Park Lifeguards Make 5 Rescues

George McGuigan, supervisor of lifeguards reporting on the work of the P.E.I. National Park Lifeguard Service which closed its 1965 season on Tuesday, Sept. 8, announced that the service had been responsible for five major rescues at various north shore beaches during the summer.

In addition a number of smaller mishaps had been handled and prevented some of which might well have developed into more serious proportions.

The service provided a staff of 16 fully trained lifeguards divided among nine lifeguard stations located at various points along the National Park beaches extending from Dalway to Cavendish.

Mr. McGuigan said in addition to carrying out their normal duties in connection with the safety of swimmers, members

DE GAULLE

The occasion was his semi-annual press conference in the luxurious Grand Ballroom of the Elysee Palace. The event, resembling a court occasion for the former French monarch more than a press conference, attracted an estimated 1,000 newspaper men and diplomatic representatives for the traditional De Gaulle dissertation on the state of France and the world.

MAY REMAIN PRESIDENT

He told reporters they would "certainly" know within two months whether he intends to run for re-election Dec. 5, but his remarks on other subjects seemed to hint he intends to be on the scene as president for another seven-year term.

Abolishing the integrated system would mean the end of any allied type headquarters and leave Western defence to a classic system of national alliances such as existed at the time of the First World War. De Gaulle did not advance any alternative to integration.
