The Beauties of Paris.
KEEPING THE TREES AND SHRUBBERIES IN ORDER—BOOK STALLS AND NEWSPAPER STANDS.
It costs $375,000 annually to keep the trees, shrubberies and seats upon the boulevards and in the public squares and gardens of Paris in order. It is estimated that the trees in the avenues and boulevards of Paris number 82,000; those in the cemeteries, 10,400, and those in the squares and courtyards of various buildings, 8,300. There are also 8,000 seats for the accommodation of the public. The expense of keeping up all the extra-mural recreation grounds, exclusive of the Bois de Boulogne and the Bois de Vincennes, is rather more than $60,000. The Bois de Boulogne covers 2,182 acres, and in summer 20,000 cubic feet of water per diem are used to lay the dust, while more than 25,000 cubic feet are required to feed the ponds and cascades. The Bois de Vincennes covers 2,302 acres, and consumes nearly 50,000 cubic feet of water per diem.
A sum of $45,000 is paid annually by the proprietors of restaurants and cafes for the right of placing chairs and tables upon the pavement in front of their establishments, and about half as much is paid by the owners of shops for exhibiting their goods outside their windows. The book stalls which are placed upon the parapet of the Seine, and the boot-blacks and commissionaires contribute to this sum. All the unoccupied corners of streets and public buildings, where rubbish always finds its way in other large cities, are utilized, and the municipality obtains $9,000 for permission to erect stalls there for the sale of knickknacks.
A much larger revenue is derived from the kiosks in which the newspapers are sold, and this privilege has been leased to a company for a term of fifteen years, which will expire in 1884. The company pays the municipality a sum of 50 francs for each kiosk, and has also to bear the cost of keeping them in repair and lighting them. There are 300 of these kiosks at the present time, but the number will shortly be increased to 350. The municipality has the right of appointing the persons who rent the kiosks from the company, and fixing the rent, which varies from 5 francs to 30 francs a month, according to the situation of the kiosk. The company obtains a large sum from the advertisements cut into the glass of the kiosk windows, in addition to the rent paid by the news-vendors. In ordinary years the public vehicles plying for hire in the streets bring in a revenue of nearly $740,000, and there are 160 cabstands, to each of which is attached an inspector, appointed by the Prefecture of Police.

Curious Case of Mistaken Identity.
CINCINNATI, Nov. 27.—A curious case of mistaken identity on one part and heartless deception on the other hand has just been brought to light in Covington, Ky. Some eight or ten years ago a man named Ignatius Goetz lived with his family in Lewisburg, a village near Covington. Not prospering in his affairs he entered the regular army and went to Texas. After remaining there two years he received injuries of some nature and was discharged, and instead of returning home went to Chicago, turning up just before the great fire there.
Here he fell in with a stranger named Allen, strongly resembling him in personal appearance, and the two set out during the fire to plunder and rob, in which scheme they were caught and narrowly escaped lynching. On being tried both men were convicted and Goetz was sentenced to serve six years in the Penitentiary, his partner being sent only for four years. Upon reaching the Penitentiary they were both placed in adjoining cells and became very intimate friends.
Allen, after serving out his sentence, came to Covington, and, finding Mrs. Goetz, claimed to be her husband. At first she would not believe him, but he finally succeeded in convincing her and took up his abode with her. Everything passed quietly until about a month ago, when Goetz himself returned, having served out his time. When the first meeting had taken place Goetz was informed of the deception that had been practised on his wife and at once sought out legal redress.
But Allen had learned of his coming, and fled across the river to Cincinnati. Goetz followed, with his family, and undertook further proceedings, but soon learned that he had fled this city and gone to parts unknown. The woman is respectably connected in Covington, and is earnest in her protestations that she was a victim of deception.
E. A. Woodward, formerly clerk of the New York Board of Supervisors, and of the Tammany Ring thieves, is a very candid and outspoken man. When examined before the Tweed investigating committee a few days ago, he acknowledged that he had defrauded the city of $300,000. As he had returned half of that amount as a compromise, he thought he had acted as squarely as he should act. He had no intention to return the balance. He calmly assured the committee that there was no such thing as an honest politician. Any man would have acted as he had done, and he would do the same over again if he got the chance!

The Wretched Streets of New York.
No street in New York is ever really swept, and the garbage from the kitchens is never really removed. The sweeping-machine traverses the principal avenues at night, gathering up a part of the outside layer of dirt, where the way is clear. A gang of lazy and decrepit scavengers follow the machine after a while, to do some foolishness with brooms. They collect into heaps a part of what has been thrown up in rickos; and finally, after the heaps have been partly scattered by the winds and passing vehicles, the dirt-cart gathers part of what remains. When the butcher, and grocer, and baker, and drayman receive the carts which they have left in the streets over night, vast accumulations of unmolested dirt and rubbish are disclosed beneath them, where the machine could not sweep and the broom-brigade would not. None of the apparatus does its work thoroughly. The machine, the broom and the shovel are managed with equal carelessness, and the men, being under no effective supervision, give for their pay only the faintest presence of labor.

Miscellaneous News.
For three years a man has lived alone in a tenement house in Troy, N. Y., working at his trade as a wheelwright, doing his own cooking and having few friends. A sentence that was often on his lips was, 'When a man can do nothing else he can die.' Some days ago his body was found in his room, where he had built a fire in the charcoal furnace, closed the windows and gone to bed to die. On a play-bill he had written some rambling sentences: 'Thus endeth the first lesson. I leave my daughter and my grandchild. So mote it be. Now will we test the grand mystery of science. If a man die shall he live again? Where is my son? Where is my wife? Where they are, I shall be. I am glad my course is ended. How tired I am.'

FOUR HUNDRED AND FORTY-FOUR TRAINS A DAY.—London is at length promised the completion of the underground railway. All that has been wanting to this since the opening of the Metropolitan line to Aldergate has been the making of a line hardly over a mile in length from that station to join the District Company's railway at the Mansion House. This is to be set about at once; the prospectus has been issued. The Metropolitan Board of Works and the City Commissioners of Sewers give a subvention in the aggregate of half a million. The District Company are bound to run at least 444 trains a day over the line as soon as it is completed, and these will traverse the whole of the inner circle without change of engine or break of any kind. The line will cost two millions sterling.
CAUCHON'S FLIGHT.—An Emerson special to a Chicago paper says Cauchon's flight from Tetu, the Emigration Agent, when the latter rode toward him for the purpose of welcoming him to Manitoba, "will never be forgotten by those who were there. The new Governor was in a carriage, and when he looked back and saw Tetu waving his hands frantically, urging his horse to the utmost and madly shouting, he put his head, covered by a velvet skull cap, out of the window and yelled to the driver to drive like—well, something like Jehu, the son of Nimahi." Surely his Honor took the gentlemanly Emigration Agent for an escaped Beaufortite.
A well sinker at Conches, near Rouen, in France, 18 years of age, has been extricated from a well after twenty days' imprisonment, caused by the giving way of a mass of earth. Food was supplied him during that time, and his spirits remained so good that he frequently played cards with one of the men engaged in liberating him, a task effected by sinking another well at a short distance and making a communication between.
During the labor troubles in Pennsylvania last summer a Vigilance Committee was organized at Reading for the protection of life and property against lawless aggression. On the 1st of August a procession of working men was passing through the streets, and under a mistaken idea that the city was about to be sacked, the Vigilantes fired into the crowd, and three men were shot dead. Forty men have been fully indicted for the murder, and their trial has begun.
A British member of Parliament, Mr. Jenkins, has devised an original way of spending a honeymoon. He has been in Bulgaria viewing the horrors of war and investigating atrocities.
One of the social stars of Paris is rebuked by a friend, who says, sternly, "Cora, if I were you I should be afraid of having bad luck. The way you neglect your poor, old, blind father is awful, and you so rich now."
THE FLOODS IN VIRGINIA.—The damage by the floods in Virginia is said to be unprecedented in the inundated district. Along the James River hundreds of persons have lost from $100 to $5,000 worth of property, and many from $10,000 to $15,000. In the neighborhood of Buchanan, twenty colored persons were drowned, and much destitution prevails.
"In life, what has struck you most?" was a card question read out to a sad member of an evening party. "My husband," replied the questioned, in the most abstract and innocent of manners.
