Victoria Park Ownership Is Disclaimed By Ottawa

Responsibility as to who should foot the bill for certain repair work at Victoria Park is once again being bandied about, this time by the federal government.

It is admitted that apparent ownership belongs to the City of Charlottetown, but even that thought is somewhat cloudy.

Wednesday authorities at Ottawa denied that Canada has any interest in the park, but it appears that under certain circumstances the property could revert to the Crown.

The question arose more than a year ago when City Council asked federal and provincial governments to aid in restoring the badly battered breastwork around the park. They repeated the request earlier this year. No replies were forthcoming.

Wednesday in parliament, the federal department of public works in answer to an order paper question said it did not consider repairs to the breastwork to be its responsibility.

IN ANCIENT DAYS

The problem goes back to what are now ancient days when the Provincial Legislature during the 51st year of the reign of Queen Victoria passed an act to amend and consolidate the several acts incorporating the City of Charlottetown.

It is interesting to note that a table of the acts repealed or amended contains mention of one of 1873 "An Act to vest a certain portion of Government House Farm in the City of Charlottetown for certain purposes therein mentioned". This particular old statute was not immediately available at the time of writing.

However, on June 2, 1873, there was a plan of lands made and signed by John Ball, land surveyor, and witnessed by D. O'M. Reddin vesting in this city the right to certain lands for the sole pudpose of "A park, promenade and pleasure ground, for the use of the citizens, the inhabitants of this Island, and all Her Majesty's subjects."

The power of reversion appears to be contained in Section 124 of the Act of 1888 as follows: The said city shall not on any account whatsoever, use or permit to be used, the said lands, for the purposes of circuses, shows, or exhibitions of any kind whatsoever, and should the same be so permitted to be used by the said city, the lands herein before mentioned shall revert to and be vested in Her Majesty, her heirs and successors."

HALF THE COST

This morning His Worship Mayor A. Walthen Gaudet said he had received request for assistance he had directed to this province's Cabinet representative at Ottawa had resulted in his receiving a copy of the Municipal Loan Act. The mayor said "we have no trouble borrowing money; what we want is Ottawa to pay half the cost of a new breastwork".

A quick check yesterday appeared to indicate that Victoria Park proper really begins at the road running past the ball fields and goes westward. The original line apparently ran from Brighton Rd. to the Park Roadway — apparently the park does not include the gun emplacement at Fort Edward, nor did it include the fields to the east of the above mentioned road.

One description, however, specifically mentions a piece of land "commencing at a stake set in the south side of Brighton Rd. in a direct line with the east side of North River Road thence south, etc."

This would appear to exclude the land on which the Prince Edward Island Hospital was built.

The act of 1888 states the lands vested in the city commence at the eastern shore on York River at the Brighton Road and follow the said road eastwardly for 20 chains then on a line southwardly until it meets the road leading from Government House to the shore. The land area mentioned is 40 acres, "a little more or less".

Federal Gov't Will Retain Hirings Curb

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government plans to maintain curbs on civil service hirings imposed last year by the former Conservative government as part of the foreign exchange austerity drive.

Robert Prittie (NDP—Burnaby - Richmond) was informed in a written Commons reply that special relief may be granted from time to time but that "present restrictions on recruiting will be retained throughout the remainder of the current fiscal year, after which time the policy will be further reviewed."

The fiscal year ends next March 31.

Last March, a minor change was made to permit the departments to recruit one employee for each five new vacancies. This replaced the original austerity measure of replacing only one of every 10 vacancies.

Opening lead—six of spades.

Here is a difficult hand played in the final round of the Gold Cup championship in England.

South got to six hearts and West led a spade. It was a sound contract, even though the outcome did depend on how the East-West cards were divided.

Declarer ruffed in dummy and played a low heart. East went right up with the king and returned a heart. If East had not taken the king at once, South's task would have been much easier and he very likely would have made the slam.

Declarer took the heart in dummy with the ace, played a club to the ace, and ruffed another spade. He then played a diamond to the king and drew East's remaining trump.

But when he now led a club to the king, East showed out, and when he then cashed the ace of diamonds, West showed out. As a result, South had to lose a diamond and go down one.

No doubt, South was unlucky to go down on the hand. He would have made the contract if the diamonds had been divided 3-2, or if West had had the four diamonds, or if the clubs had been divided 3-3, or if the Q-J of clubs had fallen. He could also have made the slam had he known the exact club and diamond distributions, but it would hardly be fair to criticize him for this.

However, he did make a play that proved costly. He should have assumed that the trumps were divided 3-2, and therefore should have won the heart return at trick three in his own hand.

He could then ruff a spade in dummy, cross to the ace of clubs, and draw East' last trump. Another round of clubs would have revealed the club situation and clearly indicated that the diamond length had to be with East. By then cashing the A-Q of diamonds, he would have been able to trap the jack and make the slam.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
