

MR. AND MRS. IAN WILLIS TAYLOR

Pretty Autumn Wedding Held At Clyde River

The Clyde River Presbyterian Church, was the scene of a pretty autumn wedding in October, when Velma Ruth, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. MacKinnon, Clyde River, became the bride of Ian Willis, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Taylor, Charlotte-town, in a double ring ceremony performed by Rev. R. A. Patterson. Mrs. Gordon MacKinnon played the wedding music.

The lovely bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a ballerina length gown of embroidered lace and net over white satin. Her shoulder length veil was held in place by a tiara of sequins and seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses with satin streamers.

The bride's only sister Shirley was bridesmaid. She wore a dress of shrimp tulle taffeta with V neckline and cap sleeves. She carried a nosegay of yellow roses and white mums.

Mr. Ray Thompson, friend of the groom, was best man and Mr. D. Taylor and Mr. Eric MacKinnon were ushers.

Miss Shirley MacDonald as guest soloist sang very sweetly "The Lord's Prayer" during the signing of the register.

The bride's mother wore a coffee brown dress, matching hat and a corsage of yellow roses. The groom's mother wore a navy blue dress and a corsage of red roses.

A reception was held at the bride's home where a salad supper was served. The table was centered with a three tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom.

Following the reception, the happy couple left on a short honeymoon trip throughout the Maritime Provinces.

Mr. and Mrs. George Gamble, brother of the groom, was the best man. Mr. Benjamin Blanchard, brother of the groom, was the best man.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the pastor Rev. J. M. Trainor, who celebrated the Nuptial Mass that followed.

The bride looked charming in a pink ballerina gown of nylon net over taffeta with matching accessories and corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Jackie Arsenault, the bride's sister and matron of honor, was attired in a mauve ballerina gown of nylon net over taffeta with matching accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. George Gamble, brother of the groom, was the best man. Mr. Benjamin Blanchard, brother of the groom, was the best man.

ELLEN'S DIARY

The Old Lady Winked

On Island farms these days write a saga of Winter. Today at Alderlea prisms of icicles decorated the eaves, the millpond was bridged with ice and white fields and trees frosted with snow stretched away to the hills. In the sunshine and hush of the morning it was a beautiful scene. All at once, leaving more leisurely Autumn days behind them, the farmers must now take up the more burdensome choring of Winter. This is their portion when every animal of the field has been stabled. If as it sometimes happens, a second Indian Summer should appear, it is unlikely that any of these will be freed to roam the fields even briefly, or to feel the earth or snow beneath hoofs before Spring comes to pastures again. At a barn over the fields where some of the young are stabled without the convenience of water-bowls, they must daily go down to drink at the stream. It was to that yard, in advance of the recent snowfall that the younger farmer found the flock of sheep quietly forgathered.

"I wonder if this spell of snow will last?" a visitor asked this morning. "I don't know," he added with a wry smile. "We're due for another long Winter!" "The spruces are holding to the snow of Sunday's fall," James said. "And that's a sign of falling weather. This time I's say, rain." "Now that the snow will fill then and," he chuckled, "the plow may not be stopped after all!"

icicles drip now in the yard-lights in the milder weather prevailing. "Do you know what day this is?" Granddaughter questioned coming in after school. "Has it something to do with your house?" "Yes, something important" she nodded. "A wedding Anniversary?" "Yes—the thirteenth! ... And

MARY HAWORTH

Young Girl Attached To An Alcoholic

Dear Mary Haworth: I am a girl 23, brought to this country in my childhood, by an aunt, after my parents were killed in the late war. Aunt Maud is very kind, but definitely old school, so I can't turn to her with my problem.

Not only because of my early history, but also because I was the unfortunate loser in a love affair three years ago. I was married to a man who was a drunkard. He was a very kind man, but his drinking was very bad. He was a very kind man, but his drinking was very bad.

He proposed marriage and I accepted, but reminded him that he was free to change his mind at any time, if he ever doubted that I could make him happy.

MAN FADES OUT What followed is terribly confusing. He became very vague about himself and the future, and especially avoided the subject of us, although still insisting that he loved me more than he'd ever loved anyone. Also he began to drink heavily, off and on. I've never been able to get an explanation for his performance. Nor wast continues to form a bunting-type bag bottom with small pockets in which to carry the baby's essentials. Then there are ski suits that feature mittens which can be snapped or buttoned on. Other suits have roomy parka-like jackets with drawstring bottoms to keep out winter's cold blasts.

Other ski-type suits have longer jackets that may also be worn as coats. One especially snug, warm new ski suit of this type has a blanket coat made of nylon. The lining's quilted and there's a detachable hood. The matching ski pants are tapered at the ankles. For the carriage set, new pram bags are available in nylon and other synthetic fibres with warm quilted linings. The tops are made like ski jackets with ducks embroidered in front. The elasticized

KEEP IN TRIM

Be A Winner Mentally—And Reducing Is Easy

By IDA JEAN KAIN Success in any venture begins in one's own mind. The key to triumphant weight loss is to first make up your mind that you really want to be free from the burden of fat.

Back of making up your mind is deep desire. No doubt you have long wished to be slim, but nothing happens until you resolve to make the wish come true. Resolve—that's a rousing word, for it adds the element of action.

To reduce successfully, you must feel convinced that you can achieve ideal weight. Being well informed on nutrition and applying nutrition knowledge makes reducing certain. You know, of course, which foods are fattening . . . for years, you've been uneasily aware of the weight maker. But are you equally well informed on which foods provide the nutrients needed to keep in a fine state of repair?

In reducing, you must include the essential protective foods in daily fare. Do you have lean meat, fish or fowl, milk, skim milk or buttermilk, and an egg daily? Do you include green leafy or yellow vegetables, a raw vegetable salad and a citrus fruit or juice daily?

By and large, this just about wraps up the meaning of John's help in correcting your neurotic engaged to you, I think. The alcoholic personality can't tolerate demands; they "shatter" him. And in effect, you had leveled two demands on John. First, in wanting a respectable courtship—meaning that your favors weren't "for free," he had to "earn" them. Second, in pitching for marriage, as the basis of unreserved companionship.

Evidently John felt sufficiently smitten and clinging to say amen to your ideas at first; but living up to them is something else. He went to pieces unconsciously, to get out of that.

You can't save him; that's his job. My advice is, get psychiatric help in correcting your neurotic affinity for defeat in love. M.H. Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of this newspaper.

LET'S EAT

How To Eat Ice Cream Without Gaining Weight

By IDA BAILEY ALLEN "No one food is responsible for more eating pleasure than ice cream," I was saying. The Chef thoughtfully patted his waistline and concluded: "To serve desserts a la mode tastes very good. But to eat whole portions of two desserts one on top of the other, that bulges the waistline."

"There's a way out, Chef" I said, "so that ice cream topped desserts can be enjoyed in moderation without causing the scales to go on a rampage. Just eat half as much of both dessert and ice cream!" Monday's Dinner: Tomato saladettes; chicken fricassee; flaky rice; mixed vegetables; hot biscuits; snowy peach pie; coffee tea, milk.

All measurements are level: recipes proportioned to serve 4 to 6. Snowy Peach Pie: This consists of a meringue shell and ice cream peach filling. Meringue Shell: Beat 2 egg whites with 1/4 tsp. salt until foamy throughout. Add 1/2 c. sugar 3 tbsps. at a time, beating after each addition until the sugar is blended. Continue beating until the mixture stands in peaks. Add 1 tsp. vinegar and 1/2 tsp. vanilla. Spoon into a lightly buttered 9-in. pie plate. Spoon up the sides 1/4 in. above the edge of the pan. Bake 35 min. in a slow oven 300 degrees F. Cool.

To put together. Just before serving, fill the meringue pie shell with scoops of ice cream and garnish with 2 (10 oz.) pkgs. almost thawed quick-frozen peaches. Serve the peach juice as a sauce. Chicken Fricassee Platter from the Chef:

That - bake mixed fricassee flaky rice and chickn vegetables, in a casserole, about 45 min. in hot oven, 400 degrees F. When hot correct the seasoning if necessary. To serve heap the rice on a heated deep platter and garnish with pimiento strips. Around it spoon the chicken fricassee. Garnish with minced parsley. Edge with broiled tomato halves, spoonfuls of mixed vegetables and sprigs of cress.

Groom's Daughter Acts As Father's Matron-Of-Honour

A profusion of gladiol, hydrangea blossoms and potted plants provided a lovely setting for a wedding of interest to relatives and friends on Prince Edward Island, when on September 15, 1956, Mrs. Lillian Irene Stewart of Charlottetown was united in marriage with Charles Holmes Simmons of Alstead, New Hampshire. The double ring ceremony, which took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Gamble, was performed by the Rev. William A. Nicolas of the North Congregational Church.

The bride was becomingly attired in a blue gown with white lace collar and cuff, and wore a corsage of blue and white midget carnations.

The Matron of Honor was the groom's daughter, Mrs. Harold Butler, who wore grey with a corsage of pink midget carnations.

The groomsmen were George Stanley Gamble, nephew of the bride. Immediately following the ceremony, a delicious buffet lunch was served to a large number of relatives and friends, after which the bride and groom left on a motor trip through Connecticut and New Hampshire. For traveling the bride wore a grey suit with navy accessories. The happy couple are residing in Alstead, New Hampshire.

The bride and groom are both former residents of Kingston, P.E.I.

Blanchard - Rogers Wedding Solemnized At St. Mark's

St. Mark's Church, Lot 7, was the scene of a pretty autumn wedding on Wednesday morning, November 14, when Mary Shirley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Rogers, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony with Kenneth Edward, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fern Blanchard.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the pastor Rev. J. M. Trainor, who celebrated the Nuptial Mass that followed. The bride looked charming in a pink ballerina gown of nylon net over taffeta with matching accessories and corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Jackie Arsenault, the bride's sister and matron of honor, was attired in a mauve ballerina gown of nylon net over taffeta with matching accessories.

"Sled Set" Snow Suits

In many sections of this broad and wonderful land, it won't be long before the first snow flurries are tumbling down. They're a welcome sight indeed to the "sled set."

This year, backyards and neighborhood hills may well resemble a junior edition of the slopes at St. Moritz, Tignes and Alpine styles have inspired snow suit fashions for little tykes.

The new styles are geared for extra warmth and comfort, designed for action and to stand the wear and tear of sliding and snowball fights. Praise be, they're also easy to launder. Snug knitted hibs and turtle necklines provide extra warmth.

One smart snow suit for that especially feminine sub - junior miss has a roosebud - patterned braided yoke, turtle neckline and knitted cuffs at wrists and ankles. A matching hat is designed with ear muffs that may be worn up or down. Made of nylon with a quilted lining, the suit is completely washable.
