WASHINGTON, June 12 (AP)—The Communists have revived the charge that United States "secret agents" are sabotaging farmers behind the Iron Curtain. Last summer, Russia and Communist-run Czechoslovakia protested that American fliers dropped potato bugs on Czech fields and in Soviet-occupied East Germany. Now the story is that U. S. "agents" spray a mixture of arsenic and lime over East German pastures.

other would get more than his or her share. They tried to push each other away. They growled at each other, funny little baby growls. Each tried to get in front of the other so as to get the biggest share of that syrup. As it spread out on the floor they walked about in it. They got it all over their little fur coats. Their faces were smeared with syrup. Such a mess as they were!

Soon they had that syrup licked up. It wasn't enough. They were greedy, were those two little Bears. They went looking for more. They couldn't find it because it was all in cans that were sealed, but they knocked those cans all about. They climbed on the bunks with their sticky feet and pulled off the blankets. They knocked down some more dishes from a shelf and most of these broke. For a moment they were frightened by the crash, but only for a moment. They wanted more of that delicious sweetness.

At last sister found a big pail. Quite by accident she got the cover off. What a find that was! That pail was full of soft maple sugar. She looked over her shoulder to see what her brother was doing. He was still trying to find a little more of that syrup to lick up. She crammed a pawful of sugar into her greedy little mouth. M-m-m-m! How good that tasted! She scooped out the sugar and stuffed it into her mouth as fast as she could. Brother looked up. He saw what she was doing. He rushed over to get some too. She tried to push him away. She slapped him. He slapped back. In an instant those two little Bears were fighting. They were slapping each other with their stout little paws. They upset the pail, and there was sugar all over the floor. They rolled in it as they fought. It was shameful. Of course. Selfishness is always shameful. So is quarrelling and fighting.

Meanwhile the inside of that little sugar house was a mess, a sticky mess. They were in mischief and no mistake about it; the sweetest mischief ever was.

Principal Of Knox College Resigns Post

OTTAWA, June 13 — (CP) — The 77th General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada accepted with regret the resignation of Rev. Dr. Walter W. Bryden, principal of Knox College in Toronto.

Dr. Bryden has been principal for the last six years and a member of the staff for 31 years. His resignation — due to ill health — will take effect Sept. 30, 1952. The Assembly approved one year's leave of absence with pay.

The Assembly referred back to members of the Board of Administration and the Board of Management of Knox College (present at the Assembly) the College Board's recommendations of salary increases for the principal and professors.

The recommendation called for an increase in the principal's salary and house allowance to $7,000 and an increase in the salaries and house allowances of the professors to $6,000.

James Dutton of Peterborough, Ont., chairman of the Board of Administration, said the matter warranted further consideration.

Rev. Dr. J. B. Skeene of Vancouver said the Board of Management of Knox College was perfectly competent to advise the Assembly. The Assembly should look to the board for advice. The Board of Administration was stepping "a little out of its sphere."

Dr. Bryden said the recommendations should come from the two boards.

The Assembly was told that 164 ministers receive the annual minimum stipend of $2,000 and 129 ministers' children had up to now benefitted from the $1,000,000 pledged the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

The pledge was given the church a few months ago by an anonymous donor. It has been reported

Senator Norman Paterson of Ottawa and Fort William, for many years a prominent Presbyterian Church supporter, was the million-dollar giver.

Rev. Norman Kennedy of Regina, the new Moderator, said it was a magnificent example in Christian liberality.

A report presented to the Assembly today by Rev. Dr. A. I. Burnett, minister of St. Andrew's Church where the Assembly is being held, said the donor had pledged $100,000 yearly for 10 years, payments being made quarterly. Already $50,000 had been received.

The Assembly upheld actions of the General Missions Board in a matter concerning three Church missionaries in British Guiana who resigned and returned to Canada in protest against a policy they did not approve.

The missionaries said the Missions Board had made a pronouncement in British Guiana that the purpose of missions schools was not to make Christians or to build up the Church but to educate.

They said they did not believe this policy was that of the Assembly and asked an investigation of Mission Board policies.

Rev. G. Deane Johnston of Brantford, Ont., chairman of the Missions Board, said the three missionaries — Rev. T. R. Maxwell, Rev. J. D. Firth and Rev. E. I. McPhee, all of Toronto — had been heard by the board on their return to Canada early this year. He said their resignations had been accepted because it was clear their presence in the colony had brought about a condition of tension.

He denied the board had made a pronouncement that the purpose was solely to educate.
