WOES OF A CHAPERON

THERE IS A LOT OF BOTHER IN CARING FOR RICH MAIDS ABROAD.

One Madcap Who Flirted Outrageously and Finally Married a Penniless Prince—But It Isn't Always Disagreeable, and the Pay is Frequently Very Good.

To take a party of girls abroad for the summer may seem a simple thing, but any one who has tried it will swear that simplicity isn't the striking feature of the experience. Still, the number of women willing to undergo such chaperonage increases every year. The thing has grown into a regular business, and people with money and daughters are besieged every spring and fall by professional chaperons. The other day at a tea a Chicago woman who has made a great success of the business and has practically lived abroad for ten years was talking about the life.

"Once I went abroad for a year with one girl," she said. "She was the wealthiest girl in—well, I'll not tell you what state, but she was from the west. Her father offered me $5,000 and my expenses if I would take charge of her for a year. As to our expenses, he didn't put any limit upon them, so I thought the thing was too good to be refused. When the daughter came to Chicago, I decided I would have no trouble. She was remarkably pretty. Her manners were almost as impossible as her clothes, but I could replace the clothes and reform the manners. She seemed good natured and rather shy. We sailed for Europe, and on the steamer I had a foretaste of the wrath to come. That girl flirted with every one, from a Hindoo prince to the cabin boys. I couldn't take my eyes off her for a moment but she would do something to cause gossip, and yet when I wrestled with her she cried and seemed so grieved and contrite that I thought perhaps the child really didn't know better.

"We got through England pretty well, except one night at Cambridge, when I was ill and she slipped out and went rowing on the Cam with a young collegian who had dined at the table with us. When we reached the continent, my grief began. Some way or other wherever we went rumors of the girl's wealth arrived before us. The papers told fabulous stories about it, and we were fairly besieged by beggars and tradespeople and fortune hunters. In Paris I simply earned my bread by the sweat of my brow. My charge set all the American colony gossiping and finally one night announced to me that she was engaged to a penniless but good looking German attaché of unsavory reputation. We left the next morning, and I endured tears and reproaches until we were settled in Berlin and the German officers effected a cure. We were visiting Baron de M. and his wife, and we all kept sharp watch upon the men who flocked to the house. But one day the maid came to me in tears and told me that mademoiselle was planning to elope that night with the baron's private secretary. Naturally we stopped that, and I called to the girl's father, breaking my agreement and asking whether I should take his daughter home. He answered that he would come for her, and we went to Nice to wait for him.

"The night before he was to arrive we went to bed early. He came at 6 in the morning, went to her room and found a note beginning, 'Dearest papa, when you read this, I'll be the happiest of girls and a princess.' She had married an Italian prince in debt up to his ears and with no redeeming feature save a pair of black eyes. How did her father take it? Oh, he swore eloquently, but he forgave her, and he certainly behaved royally in regard to that.

"That is one experience. Then, three years ago, I took six girls abroad, and at a tiny village in Italy one of them was taken seriously ill. The doctor fooled about for a week and finally said she had smallpox. We had all been exposed, for she had been with us constantly. The hotel keeper would not keep us. Neither prayers nor money had any effect upon him. He simply said we must move out at once. There was no hospital, and we couldn't get away from the town, and no one would take us in."

"What in the world did you do?" asked the little fat woman who had started the conversation by saying something about the delights of chaperoning.

"Oh, I went to the priest. I've found that is the only thing to do when one is in a little foreign town and things go hopelessly wrong. Bless those dear fat fathers! They've saved me from lunacy several times. This particular priest was a saint. He abused the innkeeper in a style which my weak Italian couldn't approach, and he took us to a convent near the town, where the sisters behaved like a troop of seraphs. I telegraphed to Rome for an English doctor, and when he arrived the next morning he said the girl had the measles. She got well in a week, but I've kept that little church and convent in candles ever since.

"One doesn't have experiences like that often, but just the ordinary routine is had enough. You've no idea how senseless and annoying some girls can be. Sometimes there will not be a serene day in weeks. No two want to do the same things or like the same things, and the chaperon is a candidate for nervous prostration before she has had the party out for a week."

"Is it always like that?" queried the fat little woman sympathetically.

"No, indeed. I've had years that were charming and girls whom I loved, but any one is a goose to take the chances unless she can make a good income by it. She must make a liberal estimate of expenses, a very liberal one, and then, in addition to her own expenses, she should ask a good bonus. When I began, my expenses were divided among the girls, and besides that each paid me $200. Now things are arranged the same way, only each girl pays me $1,000 instead of $200. I couldn't make so much money in any other way, but if any one tells you that European chaperoning is not hard work don't believe it."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

ALMONT WILKES

2.31 1/2

The well known stallion, "Almont Wilkes" by "Hernando," 2.37 1-2, dam "Olivia Wilkes," 2.39 1-4, dam of "Gracie Wilkes," 2.30 and "Almont Wilkes," 2.31 1-2, by Geo. Wilkes, jr., will stand the season of 1898 at Nicholson's Training Stables, Grafton St., opp. Court House, Ch'town.

Almont Wilkes is a big, stylish, carriage horse; he stands over 16 hands high and weighs 1200 lbs. He is the sire of Montrose, 2.20 3-4, and Westie Wilkes, 2.39 1-4. Mont rose was the horse that put up such a gallant fight in the free-for-all at Ch'town track last fall, and there is no doubt that only for the concerted action of the other drivers, he would have won with ease. He trotted 13 heats, winning 1st places and 5 seconds.

Westie Wilkes started in the 2.40 class at Summerside last fall, a green horse right off the pasture, getting a mark of 2.39 1-4 in a field of seasoned campaigners, and his owner expects him to get a mark of 2.23 this year. This proves that Almont Wilkes sires speed of a high order, and being a remarkable good looker, has always been a prize-winner in the show ring even when up against the best in the land.

Let the searchlight of practice illuminate the dark places of Theory.

A THOROUGHLY Progressive Practical Instruction, in which young men and women are not only taught Book-keeping (in all its applications to commerce) both by single and double entry, but are trained how to do business, by actual business transactions. The students act as buyers, sellers, traders, bankers, book-keepers and accountants, in actual business operations, and the currency issued by the College Bank and the midses issued from the Emorium, are used in bona fide business transactions, just the same as in mercantile and banking houses. Book-keeping in itself may be learned at home, but a knowledge of how to transact business, cannot be thus acquired. That our course system of training is eminently practical write for testimonials from business men, and from students who are now holding lucrative and responsible positions.

TETLEY'S

SOUVENIR OF VICTORIA'S REIGN.

THE LONGEST REIGN IN HISTORY

There is no better tea retailed at 60c. than the tea sold in TETLEY'S JUBILEE CANISTERS. These were made as a souvenir of her Majesty's illustrious reign and are decorated with as handsome a piece of color work as has ever been seen in Canada. Her Majesty is presented in lifelike colors at the most noted periods of her life; 1837, 1838, 1897; in panels, accurate representations of Her Majesty's Army and Navy are to be found.

When the tea is consumed the tin will be useful as a handsome tea or cake cabinet.

The tea is worth 60c. The tin is surely worth 50c.

Sold by most dealers at 60c.; if yours cannot supply you send direct to
