CHARLOTTETOWN Business College Writing Academy

Let the searchlight of practice illuminate the dark places of Theory. A THOROUGHLY Progressive Practical Institution, in which young men and women are not only taught Book-keeping (in all its applications to commerce) both in single and double entry, but are trained how to do business, by actual business transactions. The students act as buyers, sellers, traders, bankers, book-keepers and accountants, in actual business operations, and the currency issued by the College Bank and the mds. issued from the Emporium, are used in bona fide business transactions, just the same as in mercantile and banking houses. Book-keeping in itself may be learned at home, but a knowledge of how to transact business, cannot be thus acquired. That our course system of training is eminently practical, is evidenced by testimonials from business men, and from students who are now holding lucrative and responsible positions. SUBJECTS: Book-keeping by single and double entry (theoretical and practical), Actual Business Practice, Business Penmanship, Business Correspondence, Commercial Arithmetic, Commercial Law, Railroad, Steamboat, Banking, (actual practice in the College Bank) Typewriting, Shorthand and Navigation. FACULTY: L. B. Miller, Principal, Teacher of Book-keeping, Arithmetic, Business Practice, Business Correspondence, Typewriting and Navigation. J. W. Coulson, (Vice Principal), Teacher of Railroad, Steamboat, Banking, Accounting and Actual Business Practice. J. Harry Williams, Teacher of Business Penmanship. Wm. Moran (licensed), Teacher of Shorthand. George S. Inman Esq., (Law Firm McDonald & Inman) Lecturer on Commercial Law. For circulars and full information, write or apply to L. B. MILLER, Principal. All interested are cordially invited to call at the college and inspect our system of teaching, and work in general.

A Diplomat's Imprudence. Baron Magnus, whose cleverness was such that Prince Bismarck selected him for duty as German envoy at Copenhagen, a most difficult post during the reign of the late czar, by reason of the influence exercised by Queen Louise against the Berlin government, lost his place in the diplomatic service, as well as all the laurels of a long and otherwise successful diplomatic career, by imprudently attending a dinner at which Sarah Bernhardt was present. He had no idea that he was going to meet her, otherwise he might have staid away. While he was engaged in conversation with his next neighbor at table she gave a toast in which all united, and in which he instinctively joined with much gusto. It was only afterward, when he sat down, that he learned the late that he had been drinking the health of France and to the latter's recovery of Alsace-Lorraine.—New York Tribune.

The Swan and the Pike. The following accident was described to me by a friend who heard it from the lips of the man who saw it: My friend's informant, a laboring man, passed on his way to work every morning a pond on which were swans. One morning he saw a swan with his head under water—no unusual thing, so he thought nothing of it. The next morning it was in exactly the same place and position. Still, that was not remarkable, and he passed on. On the third morning, seeing the swan in precisely the same position, he called the attention of the keeper to it. The keeper proceeded to examine and found that the swan's head had been swallowed by a large pike. Both, of course, were dead.—Letter in London Spectator.

How "Titus" Was Written. "Of 'Titus' it must be said that it was the result of the belief of my mother in me," said Mrs. Florence Morse Kingsley, telling in The Ladies' Home Journal how she came to write "Titus, a Comrade of the Cross." "A favorite uncle wrote to me that such a book was wanted and said: 'Write it. You can do it.' I did not believe that I could, but my mother insisted. 'You can. It is in you. Write the book. It will be a success.' That year I was a very busy woman, for I had a young son, and 'Titus' was written with many interruptions. I would go off to write a chapter, be interrupted by a baby voice, drop my pen, rush down stairs to see whether there had been an accident of any sort or whether my little folk were having some special good time in which they wished me to join. "While writing 'Titus' I forgot all about the possibility of its being a success or failure; only I grew to love the story. And yet it came to me in an odd way. The hours were so filled up that I seemed to have no time to think, but I have always been in the habit of waking early, and when the sun was just rising those lovely summer mornings it seemed as though the story of 'Titus' came to me in a dream and as if I were compelled to write it."

Discreet Silence. An excellent piece of advice was that once given to George Gray, a young Methodist preacher, who was a mere boy when he began his work. Within a few days of the time he was 15½ years old his name was on the records of an annual conference as a traveling preacher—the youngest candidate ever received in the Methodist Episcopal church. He was sent to the Barre circuit in Vermont. As he mounted his horse to set out for his appointed field of labor, a jaunt of more than 200 miles, his uncle, a Methodist of much shrewdness and humor, gave him a parting address which he never forgot and to which he often referred in later years. "Never pretend that you know much, George," said he, looking up at the youthful rider from under his shaggy eyebrows. "for if you do so pretend the people will soon find out that you are sadly mistaken, but neither," he added after a moment's pause, "need you tell them how little you know, for this they will find out soon enough."—Youth's Companion.
