Stewart's Body Supposed to be in Canada.

The latest sensation in regard to the whereabouts of the body of A. T. Stewart is that it is secreted in some part of Canada. An Upper Province exchange says:—"The Stewart grave robbery continues to be the sensational mystery of the hour in the United States. One by one the various detective theories started to locate the thieves and their singular booty have been abandoned for the now favorite one that the body of the great merchant prince is hidden in a safe place in Canada, and that the authors of the sacrilege only wait for the excitement to pass away to impose conditions on the widow and Judge Hilton. The mysterious movements of the police indicate that they have at least got hold of the right clue. As it never entered into the minds of the framers of the extradition Treaty between Canada and the United States to include such crimes into the treaty, the thieves are at liberty to negotiate at their ease for the return of the body, and Superintendent Walling is already said to be in treaty with them on the subject. They ask $100,000, and declare that they will not give it up for a cent less. One of the most skilful of the police detectives and another of Pinkerton's Agency are actually in Canada, seeking to effect a bargain in the matter, which is believed to be in the hands of a Montreal lawyer, who is acting as intermediary for the thieves, who are passably well known, but will be found difficult to punish by law."

From the Capital.

GALT'S MISSION—SAVING THE PUBLIC MONEY.

An Ottawa correspondent, under date of Nov. 17, writes:—"Sir A. T. Galt sailed for England on Saturday. It is understood that his mission is to confer with Her Majesty's Government as to the best means of opening up and developing Canadian trade with the British and foreign West Indies. He accompanies Mr. Tilley, who has gone to England to repair the negligence of his predecessor. The Government are resolved to push energetically the opening up of new avenues of trade for the Dominion. They are determined not to be mere 'flies on the wheel.'"

"A saving to the country of a salary of $3,200 has been effected in the Department of the Interior. When Mr. Meredith was superannuated, after years of service, the late Government might well have embraced the opportunity of making this saving. It was, it is said, pointed out to Mr. Mills, then Minister of the Interior, that the Department was then over-manned, and that Colonel J. Dennis, Surveyor-General, whose salary is also $3,200, could readily perform the united duties without increase of salary. This suggestion was, however, not acted upon, and Mr. Buckingham, at the time Mr. McKenzie's private secretary, although an official of less than five years' standing, and of necessity utterly ignorant of the duties of the department, was placed over the heads of old and experienced civil servants. This has been remedied by the present Government, Mr. Buckingham being relegated to his former position in the Public Works Department."

THE forty-sixth United States Congress will have 115 new members out of a total of 293. Twenty-one of the 53 new Democrats are from Northern States.

England and Afghanistan.

WAR ACTUALLY BEGUN—ADVANCE OF THE BRITISH TROOPS INTO THE KHURUM VALLEY.

LONDON, Nov. 21.

The Government has published a long dispatch from Lord Craubrook, Secretary of State for India, to Lord Lytton, Viceroy of India, recapitulating the negotiations with Afghanistan. The dispatch traces the first estrangement between England and the Ameer of Afghanistan to the refusal of the Gladstone Government in 1873 to give a definite answer as to how far they would help him if he was threatened by Russia. The dispatch points out that, on the accession of the present Government, the relations of England with Afghanistan had to be considered with reference to the rapid march of events in Turkistan; consequently, when Lord Lytton was sent to India, he was intrusted to offer the Ameer the protection he previously solicited, namely, substantial pecuniary aid, the recognition of the dynasty and a pledge of material support against unprovoked foreign aggression, conditionally on the Ameer allowing the British agents to have access to the position in his territory (except Cabul) where they could acquire trustworthy intelligence of the events likely to threaten the tranquility and independence of Afghanistan. Such access was necessary as a substantial proof of the unity of the Ameer's interests with those of Great Britain. The dispatch then narrates the abortive ending of the mission of Col. Sir Lewis Peel and General Sir Neville Chamberlain, which were undertaken in pursuance of these instructions, and shows that the latter was suggested by Lord Lytton, who thought that after the ostentatious reception of the Russian mission, the policy of inaction was no longer tenable and that the refusal of the Ameer to receive a British mission was improbable and would be inexcusable. The dispatch concludes by stating the terms of the ultimatum, namely: a full and suitable apology within a given time, the reception of a permanent British mission and amnesty to the tribes who escaped the British Envoys. The Ameer has been informed that unless a clear and satisfactory reply is received by Nov. 20th the Viceroy will be compelled to consider his intentions hostile and treat him as a declared enemy.

It is announced that no reply to the British ultimatum has been received from the Ameer of Afghanistan, and orders have been accordingly sent to India for the troops to advance.

A Bombay despatch says that the Times of India publishes a despatch from Hull dated yesterday, which announces that the British troops have occupied Fort Kapion without resistance, the Afghans retreating hurriedly before them. Fort Kapion or Kaparyur is a station beyond the frontier line opposite Thal or Thul. Its abandonment or surrender was anticipated. The force at Thull, which it is believed is designed to march to the head of the Khurum Valley, drive out the Afghan force there and secure the highest point of the Pass, in readiness for a further advance in the spring, or for co-operation with the force operating against Jellalabad through the Khyber Pass, is under command of Gen. Roberts, and consists of two brigades. The first brigade is under Col. Cobb, comprising the Eighth Kings and Fifth and Twentieth Punjab Native Infantry Regiments, and the second brigade is under Col. Thelwell, comprising the 2nd and 21st Punjab and 5th Ghoorkas. Other regiments will be attached as they come up from Kohat. No resistance is expected until the upper end of the Khurum Valley is reached. The native tribes in the Valley profess good will towards the British.

The Daily News says that the Indian council has never been consulted or had an opportunity for expressing any opinion in respect to the Afghan question.

There seems to be a still lingering impression among speculators that the Ameer may submit when he knows that the British troops are actually in motion.

A despatch from Calcutta says that all the columns were ordered to cross the frontier to-day. All telegrams detailing the movements or disposition of the troops have been stopped by the military authorities.

The Globe's Lahore correspondent says:—"The British troops crossed the frontier this morning. A despatch from Thull says that the Tenth Hussars crossed the frontier this morning and found Fort Kapiyanga abandoned. Three children were left there. General Roberts' force at once moved forward on Fort Armedias, five miles further up the valley."

BRUSSELS, Nov. 21.

The Russian organ Le Nord, in an article on the Afghan war, says the reports, which will, doubtless, be propagated, relative to complications between England and Russia, may be characterized beforehand as false. All prospect of such eventuality may be put out of the question with perfect assurance.

LABORE, Nov. 21.

The British force advancing on Quettah has arrived at Kushak, ten miles distant. The cold is intense, and about 100 men are sick in each regiment. Warm clothes are urgently required. Considerable anxiety is felt regarding the weather. The proclamation of the Viceroy was read to the Belooch Chief, stating that the war was only to be waged against the Ameer. The Quettah column numbers about 5,260 men. A division commanded by Lieut. General Donald Stewart, numbering 6,330 men, has left Mooltan for Quettah.
